Then you will like Herbert Rawlinson in his role as Ralph Merriwell in Her Big Adventure, which will be shown at the Broadway theater starting today.

Grace Darmond, the beautiful star, plays opposite Rawlinson and to her falls the part of the young office girl, who, winning a prize of a thousand dollars decides to spend it in one riotous week under the guise of a countess.

Things go along merrily until the real countess arrives at the hotel and then the fireworks begin. There is a real kick in every scene and as many hearty laughs brought on through the unique situations in which the pretending countess and the temporary bellhops find themselves.

Palace Theatre

Five great acts and a feature picture make up the program at the Palace for the last half of this week.

The fascination, glamor and intense rivalry of the race track furnishes the splendid background against which is projected a striking story in "King of the Turf." Louis Joseph Vance and John Brownell collaborated in writing this F. B. O. Gold Bond special, and these famous authors have injected into their rattling melodrama a note of humanness and sympathy that keeps it real as well as thrilling from start to finish. Nor have they forgotten comedy, in fact, no picture of recent memory has been so riotously amusing as the production that comes to the Palace theatre for a three day engagement beginning today. Most of the fun-making arises from the delightful transformation which three yeggs undergo when they accept an unusual invitation to visit Colonel Fairfax in his southern manor. This is developed with a sure touch that shows a knowledge of human nature and a whimsical philosophy which occasionally breaks into outright burlesque. The race of "Soup" Conley and "Bat" Kelly for the track is motivated by drama, but it finds its greatest asset in the slap-stick comedy which has been injected. A corking cast which includes George Irving, Patsy Ruth Miller, Kenneth Harlan, Al Roscoe, Kathleen Kirkham, Mary Carr, David Torrence, Dave Kirby, William Franey and Ed Phillips has been handled with fine skill by Director James Horan. Particularly brilliant is the direction of the comedy scenes and the two big races are features of the picture.

SAYS U. S. NEEDS EDUCATION TO BECOME MUSICAL NATION

NEW YORK, May 12 (AP)—Because Americans are musically uneducated or miseducated, the United States is not a musical nation, declares Archibald T. Davidson, associate professor of music at Harvard and conductor of the Harvard Glee Club.

"The fundamental cause of our lack of advancement toward an appreciation of music by the great body of our people is found in the absence of a logical and continuous plan of music education based on the highest standards," he says in his book published today by Harpers.

"Everyone who teaches music, and particularly those who have to do with the training of adults, must be impressed by the fact that the continuity which exists in other branches of education and which insures normal progress from elementary schools through higher institutions, is lacking in musical instruction.

"More alarming is the indifferent attitude displayed by many young people toward music. This attitude is wholly incomprehensible until one has made an examination of the aims, methods and material of modern American music education. We thus far have escaped defeat, oppression and such other experience as seem to produce in nations a veneration for beauty and a desire to express it, not necessarily in the work of skilled observers but through the simple channels of popular eloquence.

"If we are to bring our people in large numbers to a real understanding and love of music, education must do its part, but only through a well-considered progressive plan, honestly and skillfully administered, and without hope of immediate result."

POETRY

Among the Hills

Times waits among the hills;
I have drunk peace
Here, where the blue sky fills
The great cup of the hills,
And fills with peace.

Between the earth and sky,
I have seen the earth
Like a dark cloud go by,
And fade out of the sky;
There was no more earth.

Here, where the Holy Grael
Brought secret light
Once, from beyond the veil,
I, seeing no Holy Grael,
See divine light.

Light fills the hills with God,
Wind with his breath,
And here, in his abode,
Light, wind and air praise God,
And this poor breath.
—Arthur Symons

Wanderer's Song

The earth is my country,
I travel unknown,
Yet where I may wander
I go not alone,
The hills are my kindred
And the place where I dwell
Knows her son like a mother
And comforts me well.

The wind is my comrade,
His counsel is good,—
Long days on the upland,
At nightfall, the wood:
Her wide eaves are shelter
And her bed is the best
With a rain-song for slumber
When wanderers rest.

The earth is my kingdom,
My king, who is he?
His crown is the desert,
His scepter the sea,
His feet tread the hill-lines
That are lost in the dawn,
And his hand plucks my heart-strings
Compelling me on.
—T. Morris Longstreth in The Christian Science Monitor.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, May 13—(AP)—Settlement of the British strike brought about a sharp rally at the opening of today's market, but it quickly petered out, and closing prices disclosed considerable irregularity. Trading started off at a brisk pace, but turned dull on the decline, the day's sales barely exceeding 1,100,000 shares.

The initial outburst of buying apparently represented the hasty retreat of a frightened short interest. Opening gains ranged from 1 to 5 points. When it became apparent, however, that the rally was attracting little outside participation and that operators on the long side looked aggressiveness a renewed selling attack was launched against the motor shares, several of which crumbled to new low prices for the year.

Thereafter the market fritted forward and backward with a moderate rally under way at the close. Both the rail and industrial averages closing higher on the day.

The bullish effect of the termination of the British strike was offset to some extent by the announcement that the Luther cabinet have been overthrown in Germany, and by reports of revolutionary disturbances in Poland. Sanking was also showed a disposition to await more definite information on the manner in which the English miners' wage question is settled before drawing any conclusions as to the economic outlook abroad.

The day's domestic news was largely favorable. The weekly steel trade reviews reported that business during the first ten days of May was better than the corresponding period last month and that the British strike had resulted in a diversion of some foreign business from England to this country However, both the steel and iron composite price averages declined indicating a narrowing margin of profit. U. S. Steel common opened at 122 and then slid off to 120 3-8, closing just above that figure for a small fractional gain on the day. The independent steels closed practically unchanged.

The strike on the motors sent Dodge Brothers A, Jordan, Moon, Stewart-Warner Speedometer and Kelsey Wheel to new low prices for the year, the former resumed breaking 7 points to 88 and later rallying to 92.

Rails displayed a firm undertone on publication of a report showing that earnings in the first four months of the year had established a new high record for that period, and were 4.7 per cent above those of last year. The demand centered for such issues as Atchison, Atlantic Coast Line, Rock Island, New York Central and Delaware & Hudson, all up 1 to 2 points.

Commodity markets were mixed. Wheat rallied at the opening and then broke sharply on favorable weather reports; active futures closing 3 1-8 to 3 1-2 cents a bushel lower. Cotton sagged 8 to 9 points. Raw sugar advanced 2-32d of a cent a pound but futures yielded slightly. Coffee advanced 13 to 18 points in sympathy with a firmer spot situation.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent, and then dropped to 3 1-2, closing at the bottom Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

An active demand for sterling exchange followed the announcement of the settlement of the strike. Demand bills on London advanced over a quarter of a cent to $4.85 7-8 French francs held relatively steady, just under 3.15 cents. Italian lire crumbled to a new low record at 3.87 3-8 cents in the early trading but rallied later. Polish marks touched a new low at 9 1-2, presumably in response to reports of revolutionary disturbances, but trading in that currency was extremely quiet.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, May 13—(AP)—Simultaneous with news that a revolution in Poland had started, heavy selling of wheat today brought about a decided break in grain values here. Previously, sending of the British general strike had failed to stimulate any big advance in prices. The wheat market closed unsettled, 3 1-4c to 3 3-8; net lower. May, (new) $1.61 1-4 and July $1 38 3-4 to $1 38 7-8, with corn 1-4c to 3-4c down, oats 1-4c to 3-8 and 3-4c off and provisions at 12c to 30c decline.

The maximum fall of wheat prices today as compared with top figures early was just five cents a bushel, even. The most pronounced weakness was in the May delivery, which at the opening had led the upturn and had scored a gain of 1-2c. It quickly developed, however, that no important fresh buying power was in evidence, and the market soon began to sag. Notice being taken that the coal strike in England continued, and that recent speculative purchases were being let go of freely to realize profits notwithstanding that export business from Canada estimated at 1,000,000 bushels was noted.

Greatly increased pressure to sell wheat became apparent after the disturbing advices from Poland were made public. The depressing effect was emphasized by weakness of the New York stock market, and by word that German cabinet had been ousted. An additional bearish factor was uncertainty over how many contracts here will be settled in the absence of any adequate stock on hand and with sharp watch being kept on all dealings of 100,000 bushels or more. Crop comments were bearish except as to Illinois winter wheat. Shipments from Argentine to Europe showed 1,000,000 bushels increase for the week.

Corn and oats were relatively firm, but yielded at the last to influence of wheat weakness. Developments concerning farm legislation at Washington appeared to be a strengthening factor in the corn market. Packers' selling and a decline in hog values weakened the provision market.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, May 13—(AP)—The favorable reaction of Wall street to the ending of the British general strike today started a movement of investment funds into the bond market which resulted in the establishment of higher price levels throughout the entire list. The continuance of easy money conditions aided the advance.

Foreign obligations quickly responded to the news of the settlement by moving forward under the leadership of United Kingdom issues. These bonds rebounded to around the levels prevailing before the strike was called, while the French, Belgian and Italian issues followed with gains ranging from substantial fractions to more than a point. Polish 8s and 4s were outstanding exceptions, both being driven down about 3 points to new low records on the news of a revolutionary movement in Poland. Nearly $400,000 of the 8 per cent. bonds were sold.

Buying activities in the domestic list centered largely in representative railroad bonds. Atchison General and adjustment 4s were in demand and moderate gains were recorded by Baltimore & Ohio 4s, Chesapeake & Ohio second 4s, Terre Haute income 5s, New Haven 4s of 1956, Norfolk & Western Consolidated 4s, "A," 6 1-2s and St. Louis Southwestern second 4s. Among the miscellaneous issues which developed independent strength were Cuba company 6s, Peoples Gas 5s, Murray Body 6 1-2s and Booth Fisheries 6s, the last named mounting more than four points.

Interest in new financing tomorrow will center in the offering of $40,000,000 New England Telephone & Teegraph company 25-year 4 1-2 per cent. bonds at a price of 94 1-2. Thep roceeds will be used to pay for past and future construction and to repay advances made by the American Telephone & Telegraph company. J. P. Morgan & Co. will head the underwriting syndicate, which will include Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the First National bank, the National City company and other large financial institutions.

PROBATE JUDGE EXPLAINS ABOUT MAKING A WILL

The advisability of making a will and how to avoid many complications in drawing up such a document was ably explained and discussed by Judge of Probate Nelson J. Ayling at the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Judge Ayling's talk held the interest of the large number present and it proved to be a talk that was well worth hearing. Judge Ayling spoke as follows:

A thoughtful, prudent man not only tries to accumulate sufficient property during his earning period to provide for the necessities of his family when his earning capacity has ceased, but also for the maintenance of his widow and children after he is gone. Furthermore, this man should familiarize himself with the provisions of the law pertaining to estates and decide for himself as to whether his domestic relations are such that he ought to make a will.

A man may dispose of his property during his lifetime in various ways but if it is parted with it t an ceases to belong to him and he may live to regret the act. Deeding over property to another and reserving a life use thereof is not uncommon, but when completed the title has changed and he ceases to be the owner.

The only way a person may absolutely own and control his or her own property unrestricted during life and then dictate as to who shall be the objects of his bounty after death is by will, executed according to the few simple rules of Connecticut procedure, and in this connection, I have reference only to residents of this state.

Distribution Without Will

In the first place a person should know how and to whom his property would go in case of death without a will, for perchance the law of distribution of intestate estates covers exactly what is desired. Therefore, if there be no will, distribution is as follows, viz:

In cases of those married prior to April 20th, 1877, the surviving husband is entitled to the life use of all of the estate of his wife at her death, and at his death the principal thereof is distributed to her next of kin in equal degree. In case of the death of a man whose marriage took place prior to April 20th, 1877, his widow is entitled to the use of one-third of his estate during her lifetime, which is called her "dower" and the two-thirds distributed to his next of kin and at the death of the wife the one-third, or "dower" interest set out to her is again distributed to and among the same persons or their legal representatives.

As to those who are unmarried or who have married since April 20th, 1877, and there is no will, distribution is as follows, viz:

If a wife and children survive, then the wife is entitled to one-third absolutely, and the remaining two-thirds a divided among the children.

If children survive it all goes to the children.

If no children survive and no parent, then all goes to the wife, regardless of the amount; if a wife survives and one or both parents also survive the decedent, but no children, then the wife takes all of the estate up to $2,000 and, one-half of the balance, and the other half of the balance goes to the parent or parents surviving decedent.

If no wife nor children survive, then all goes to the parents.

If no wife, child nor parents survive then to brothers and sisters of the decedent, and the representatives of brothers and sisters, perstirpes and not per capita, and all of the whole blood, but if there be no brothers and sisters or those who legally represent them of the whole blood, then equally to the brothers and sisters of the half blood and those who legally represent them.

If none of the above named classes of relatives survive, then to the next kin in equal degree, kindred of the whole blood to take in preference to kindred of the half blood in equal degree.

The above briefly sets forth the most common and usual lines of distribution and applies to real estate the same as personal property.

The Surviving Spouse

In this connection may I call attention to the changed status of the surviving spouse in the distribution. In marriages prior to April 20th, 1877, in the absence of a will, the widow was entitled to the use of only one-third, while the surviving husband was entitled to the use of all the estate of his deceased wife during his lifetime, and neither estate could be defeated by will. The law has repeatedly changed from that date until at present the surviving spouse, whether man or woman, shares exactly alike and furthermore if the man dies, the widow is entitled to her allowance for the support of herself and children from the estate pending settlement. On the other hand, if the wife dies and all the property is in her name, and even if the survivor husband is old, feeble and infirm the law will not allow him his support from his wife's estate pending its settlement, nor for the support of any minor children. The theory is that the husband is the head of the family, is liable for its maintenance, and the wife's estate is under no such burden when the husband survives.

Of course there are instances where the law of distribution goes far back of this, and involves "ancestral estate," which is a technical legal term, but it is of unusual occurrence and need not confuse our minds at this time.

The law of distribution as it exists today in Connecticut, seems eminently fair, and the changes which have been brought about seem equitable and just. Of course a law cannot be enacted to suit everybody nor all unusual conditions of family relations, but there has to be an arbitrary law of distribution in the absence of a will to the contrary.

Making a Will

Now as to the man who is not satisfied with the manner in which the state distributes his property, or who desires to make disposition of the same he can do so by making a will. A will is a disposition of property to take effect after death of the maker. It must be executed by a person competent to make a will, and in conformity with certain legal requirements. It may be revoked, altered by codicil, or destroyed, and has no legal status until after the death of the maker, who is called the testator.

Who may make a will? All persons of the age of 18 years and of sound mind, may dispose of their estate by will.

What constitutes a will? It must be in writing, subscribed by the testator, his signature attested by three witnesses. Each of them subscribing their names in his presence and in the presence of each other. It must appear that the testator intended it as and for his last will and testament, to take effect after death.

When these simple requirements are complied with, he has made his will, and it is immaterial what disposition is made of the estate. If he does not try to get into involved matters but specifies clearly and distinctly by plain language the gifts he wants to make and to whom, signs his name in the presence of the three witnesses and they all sign in his presence, and it is sealed, he has made his will. He can make a new one when he has more time, or desires it in a more finished manner, or a more intricate disposition of his estate. No layman should attempt to draw his will involving a trust provision, or anything other than a straight out and out gift. Even lawyers do not always follow through to a contingent possibility the results of an attempt to limit a gift.

One Serious Mistake

Title to real estate is sometimes clouded by uncertainty or meaning in the phraseology of a will and involves expense and trouble in clearing what could have been avoided by an able attorney in drafting the will. Well meaning husbands sometimes leave "the use" of their property to their widow, in the belief that she will be able to use not only the income but the principal of the estate if she needs it, and then give it to somebody else at her death. That is not only a fatal mistake but ties her hand and foot if th sincome alone is not sufficient for her needs, as it usually is not, and if the remainder men will not release their expectancy, then she cannot encroach on the principal no matter how much her distress may be. Frequently the remainder men are his children by a former marriage who are not always keenly alive to the comfort and happiness of an elderly widow who has survived their father by many years; or it may be nephews and nieces, living far and near, who are waiting impatiently and begrudging the time, while the old lady is twisting and turning in the most frugal manner and practicing self denial patiently waiting for her time because her husband had tied her hands. He would not have done it for anything in the world had he known or realized the effect of his limitation of the word use.

It is not necessary that a notary be present at the execution of the will, but if present he may take the acknowledgment of one or more of the witnesses and at the request of the testator, and thus prove the will then and there. If this is not done, it must be done when the will comes into court, and one or more of the witnesses make oath to the statement that the testator signed the document, was of the age of 18 years and upwards, and of sound mind, etc.

Severe Penalty

There is a very severe penalty for the fraudulent destruction or concealment of the will of another, or for failure to deliver it to the executor or an officer of the probate court after it comes to the knowledge of the holder of the will that the maker has died. A will which conveys property situated in Connecticut has been proved and established out of the state in and by a court of competent jurisdiction, may be established and proated in this state, whether it conforms to our regulations or not; that is, if a will is established, as a will in the state where made, and is a legal will there, the state of Connecticut will recognize it as good in this state.

Claims to Contest

Practically the only grounds on which people base their claims to contest a will, is the incapacity of the maker, or alleging undue influence. It is unfortunately believed by some that it is easy to break a will. That is an erroneous impression. In the 22 years I have occupied the office of judge of probate in this district, consisting of seven towns, there has been but one will set aside during that time; only one, and that was a small estate, and nobody cared very much. There have been several which have been taken to the supreme court to find out what the maker meant, so that the executor would be safe in making the payments under the direction of that authority. Women more often than men try to draft their own wills. I do not know why, unless it be that a man feels his uncertainty in that field, and the woman is willing to take chances. In either event, unless a simple absolute gift from husband to wife or vice versa, there is bound to be trouble to be ironed

The Cadillac touring car, 1930 model, belonging to Charles G. Pierce of the Scotland road, was missing Wednesday night from Church street near the Breed theater when Mr. Pierce came to drive home after attending the theater. The car has registration 14-934.

Police Captain Thomas Murphy spread the alarm to police departments in this vicinity and had a search made through the city. It is probable that the machine has been taken by some joyrider and will be found abandoned somewhere today (Thursday).

Bible Study at Y. M. C. A.

The weekly session of the Men's Bible class was held Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A., with a good attendance. J. W. Carlevale spoke on the popular recent book by Sherwood Eddy, entitled, "Facing the Crisis," especially dwelling on the chapters touching on "racial prejudice." In the discussion of the topic reference was made to the fact that Jesus knew no race or color, that He taught and practised love for all men. The leader stated that there was no good reason for men hating each other as in many cases they seem to do. All agreed that the teachings of Jesus were ideal and should be followed by all men, and that if this were done not only the racial problem but all other problems would be solved. Mr. Carlevale stated that whatever progress nations like China and Japan had made was due largely to the influence of Christianity. While America is far from being the Christian nation she should be, yet the spirit of Christ exists here to that extent that our American life is a marked contrast to the life of nations where this spirit has as yet little hold on the people. Mention was made of the influence of American missionaries and Y. M. C. A. workers in foreign lands, the latter especially working among the student class is making real progress in bringing the future leaders into contact with the Christ spirit, and, many are accepting the Christian religion.

H. A. CONGDON ELECTED TO HEAD GRAND COURT OF FORESTERS

The 26th annual convention of the Grand Court of Connecticut of Foresters of America was opened Wednesday morning at 9.30 o'clock in Fraternal hall, New Haven, with Grand Chief Ranger William H. Dunlavey of Waterville, presiding. Mayor Tower welcomed the delegates and extended the freedom of the city, expressing the hope that the delegates would enjoy themselves and return soon again. He spoke of the benefits of fraternal organizations to the individual and the community.

Grand Chief Ranger Dunlavey responded and thanked the mayor for addressing the convention.

The credentials committee reported that there were 260 delegates, grand and supreme court officers present. The resolutions committee reported on a large number of resolutions and referred several to the law committee and the reports of both committees were accepted as read. The uniformity committee made its report which was accepted and the committee was discharged.

The state of the order committee reported that it would embody the report of the grand chief ranger in its entirety and stated that the order in this state was in sound, healthy and financial condition, making both a substantial increase in membership as well as making a gain of $11,000 in the treasuries of the subordinate courts.

The place of next meeting committee awarded the convention of 1927 to the city of Norwich, thereby giving the honor to Court City of Norwich for the first time in 32 years, which caused a great demonstration from the entire delegation from eastern Connecticut.

A very interesting debate took place on the old age pension resolution and the convention went on record as being in favor of this and would give the measure its hearty support.

Officers were elected and installed as follows:

Past Chief Ranger Joseph C. Callahan of Court City of Norwich, No. 63, made the nominating speech in which he presented the name of Henry A. Congdon of Norwich, and it was seconded by Brother McGrath of Torrington.

Beginning with the office of grand junior beadle to which he was elected in Derby in 1922, Mr. Congdon has steadily advanced in the grand court and has taken an interest in the workings of the order and is now prepared to conduct the affairs of the order in the state in a creditable manner.

The election of Mr. Congdon gives to Court City of Norwich, No. 63, and eastern Connecticut its first grand chief ranger since 1898.

A very interesting talk was given by Supreme Secretary Thomas M. Donelly, of Jersey City, on the condition of the order throughout the country. He told of the increase that is being made in the present membership drive being conducted throughout the country. He also spoke of the workings of his office with the subordinate secretaries.

Past Chief Ranger Cosgrove of Hartford kept the delegates in a humorous frame of mind with his instructive talk which was interspersed with witty remarks.

On Tuesday evening the different courts of New Haven tendered the delegates an entertainment and ball and after the convention adjourned served a turkey banquet to 500 delegates and members with the members of the Companions of the Forest serving as waitresses.

Norwich delegates to the grand court were Joseph R. Portelance, Jr., Joseph C. Callahan, Henry J. Clement, William J. Dunion, James H. Casy.

"LA VIE" DANCING CLASS CLOSES SEASON ENJOYABLY

This week marked the closing of the season of the Tuesday evening dances for the "La Vie" dancing club and the hostess, Mrs. W. R. Duffy made it an especially memorable occasion by transforming Odd Fellows' hall into a veritable Japanese pagoda, gay with multi-colored streamers and lanterns and shower lights. Zimmerman's orchestra provided the dance music.

Shortly after the formal opening of the ball by the hostess, who wore a dancing frock of American Beauty georgette over spring green silk, an exhibition dance set to the music of "The Glow Worm," was beautifully rendered by a class of Mrs. Duffy's younger students. Their little silk frocks were in springtime colors. The participants in this number were Carmelita Valentine and Anna Moran who were garbed in orange veiled in green; Irene and Mildred Combies, and Helen Hogan and Evelyn Donahue in pale pink and rosebuds; Rose Valentine and Dorothy Crawford in Dresden silk and violet and Gladys Gomand and little Dora Combies in rose silk and pink georgette; the pages in this number were Donald Combies and Russell Culver. A charming version of the ball-room Charleston was given by Rose and Carmelita Valentine, Anna Moran and Dorothy Crawford.

A cotillion followed, led by Mrs. Duffy and during each of the figures favors consisting of Japanese parasols, swagger sticks, colored parasols, gold-tipped cigarette horns, flower blow-outs, bunches of violets, colored walking figures and jumping jacks were distributed. The finale was made festive with colored caps, throw streamers, and cones of confetti.

Just after the cotillion Mrs. Nelson Disco, on behalf of the club, presented Mrs. Duffy a huge basket of growing blooms and ferns, tied with ribbons of pink. Mrs. Disco's presentation speech voiced the appreciation of the members for the delightful and efficient manner in which their hostess had made their weekly dance gatherings so enjoyable.

SIX-CHURCH CONFERENCE HEARS MEXICAN MISSIONARY

The conference of six churches was held at Hanover Wednesday, 155 attending. The services were opened with an organ prelude by Miss Jennie Gallup. The pastor of the church, Rev. Dwight Stone, presided. Rev. E. G. Crowdis, of Taftville, led the responsive reading. Rev. W. J. Reynolds of Lisbon, read the Scripture from John 14. Rev. George W. Clark, of Preston, offered prayer. The offering was received by Rev. William Prentiss of Plainfield and Mr. Reynolds. The sermon was by Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, pastor of the Congregational church in Willimantic. His subject was The Man Who Nobody Knows, his text being John 14-9. He said that so many people are indifferent to Christ's teachings because they are misinterpreted. The tragedy is that His so-called disciples are not lifting Him up. Some of the misinterpretations that have alienated men from Christ he noted. First, that many Christian religions is a thing of negatives — ascetic in its conception. It is the sin of an acid spirit that alienates this word from Jesus. The old time religion is the gospel of love, good will and peace. Another is by substituting loyalty to the denomination to loyalty to the Kingdom. We can learn to trust others and to work for a common cause. To follow Jesus and have love and forbearance. His teachings are misinterpreted by the indifference and disloyalty of Christians' lives. We Christians are charged with a tremendous responsibility. We should enter into more intimate fellowship, go forth and proclaim Him and bring in His kingdom. After the benediction by Mr. Wheelock, dinner was served in the parish house. Grace was said by Rev. H. H. Conklin of Baltic.

The afternoon session was opened by a devotional service of song. The scribe of the conference, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox of Jewett City, read the report of the last conference, and called the roll. There were 13 from Newent, 21 from Plainfield, 21 from Preston, none from Pachaug, 12 from Jewett City, 40 from Hanover and 73 visitors. Rev. Mr. Prentiss gave a notice for the evening, and a resolution of appreciation for the courtesy and hospitality of the church and for the fine music was offered by Mr. Reynolds and seconded by Mr. Smith. Greetings were received from Rev. G. C. Pollock, Norwich; Rev. Frank A. Fuller, Putnam; Rev. Charles T. Peck, of Broad Brook; Rev. H. D. Rolason, of Middletown, and Rev. Roderick McLeon of Newport, R. I., the latter two being present.

Mrs. Howard Briggs presented the work of financing the new Congregational church in Washington, D. C.

The afternoon address was on Present Conditions in Mexico, given by Miss Frances E. Tredwell, one of the recent workers among our Mexican neighbors. Seldom has a conference listened to such a rapid fire, vivid, humorous description of conditions under which Miss Tredwell worked, and which gave a side to the Mexican situation which was a revelation to the congregation. She exhibited many curios in basketry, blankets and pottery. She decried the lurid newspaper stories of bandits and murders, and other stories of the life the Mexicans live. She answered several questions at the close.

One of the most delightful features of the conference was the music by the Lotus Male Quartet of Boston. They sang, I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes, The Lord's Prayer, Response, Cast Thy Bread Upon the Waters, Tell Me the Story of Jesus, The Lord Is My Shepherd, Jesus Whispers I Am With You, The Old Rugged Cross, and Blue Galilee.

The conference closed with benediction by the pastor. The decorations on the platform were ferns and hothouse roses. Geraniums were the dinner table decorations.

STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT GIVES RABIES WARNING

During the 10 months period ending April 30, 1926, 75 heads of animals were examined for rabies in the laboratories of the Connecticut state department of health of which 31 were positive and 44 negative. More heads were examined during this period than for any one of the preceding seven fiscal years. Most of the heads examined were those of dogs. Occasionally the head of another animal is brought in for examination where rabies is suspected.

Certain precautions should be taken to avoid exposure to rabies. One is to beware of stray dogs. Rabid dogs wander away from home during the excited stage of the disease and often travel for long distances. A stray dog that appears in the neighborhood may be a rabid dog during the excited stage when it is most dangerous. Stray dogs should be impounded in some safe place where they have proper care until their owners can be located.

Another precaution would be not to fondle sick animals. When it is necessary to handle sick dogs or other animals where rabies may be suspected gloves should be worn to protect the hands from the animal's saliva. Many persons are exposed to rabies by getting saliva on the hands without being bitten. The virus is present in the saliva and may enter the body through a cut or abrasion.

A sick dog should be penned up and watched for further symptoms. If the dog really has rabies symptoms will soon develop so that a veterinarian will have little trouble in making a diagnosis. When the dog is killed at once upon suspicion of the disease it may be too early to find laboratory evidence of rabies. In that case a negative report would give a false sense of security. Upon penning up a sick dog, the health officer and dog warden should be notified.

SETTLEMENT FOR $650 IN MRS. FLYNN'S APPEAL

Settlement for $650 was effected out of court Wednesday morning in this city in the case of Mrs. Mary Flynn of New London, who appealed from the finding of the board of compensation, which offered her $500 for a narrow strip of land necessary to the city in the Church street widening programme. Mrs. Flynn in her case, which was to have been tried in the superior court Wednesday, before Judge Earnest C. Simpson, sought to obtain $1,500 for the strip of land. Director of Law Thomas E. Troland represented the city while Attorney C. Hadlai Hull appeared for Mrs. Flynn.

The case was called and counsel for both sides asked for a short recess. A conference with the judge took place and Director of Law Troland, acting for the city, offered Mrs. Flynn $650, $150 more than the board had set as the compensation.

BACKUS HOSPITAL HAD MANY VISITORS WEDNESDAY

DESCRIBES WORK OF GIRLS' VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE

The work of the vocational adjustment bureau for girls in New York city, which is a non-sectarian, non-commercial placement agency for the maladjusted girl, was described to a Norwich audience at Slater annex Tuesday afternoon by its director, Dr. Emily Burr, who came here at the invitation of the Norwich neuropsychiatric clinic committee. In New York the work is at the present time, Dr. Burr said, being financed by grants from various foundations, benefits given during the year and memberships, but it is hoped that the city or state will eventually take over the work. A similar vocational bureau has been started in Pittsburgh through the cooperation of all the local social agencies.

Girls are sent to the New York bureau, said Dr. Burr, from approximately 80 social and civic organizations, and the aim of the placement bureau is to overcome maladjustments in girls by placing them in work best suited to their mental and emotional capacity.

Manual dexterity, ability to do repetitive work, ability to follow directions, speed, etc., are some of the factors considered. Dr. Burr particularly emphasized that a careful evaluation of girl's personality and environment is made in order to not only place her where she will be able to do the work but also be happy. The experience of the director or placement has been that girls of marked avocational natures were the most difficult to place but much had been accomplished by the establishment of a workroom for this type of girl, where she may, under careful supervision, be trained in work which has not only therapeutic value, but also an industrial worth. The girls are subsidized to some extent, inasmuch as it was found impossible to pay them only what they had earned, the smallness of that amount often giving rise to discouragement.

MAGAZINE PROGRAMME FOR MISSION CIRCLE MEETING

The mission circle of the First Baptist church met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. A. Hurlbut, 48 Williams street. The meeting opened with a devotional service conducted by the president. A very interesting program of selections taken from religious magazines was prepared by Mrs. Charles Burke. A number of the members present took part in the program. Special mention was made of the all-day missionary meeting to be held at the church May 18 at which several missionaries will be present to give addresses.

At the close of the meeting a social time followed. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Given 12th Birthday Party

A pretty birthday party was given Nancy Pitcher, Wednesday afternoon at her home on Dixon street in honor of her 12th anniversary of her birth. In the games which were played prizes were awarded to Lucille Hayden, Frances Young, Elizabeth Young. Refreshments were served in the dining room at which the color scheme was in pink and green with a May pole effect. Miss Nancy received many useful and valuable presents.

BRITISH TRANSPORT, GENERAL WORKERS AND RAILWAY MEN REMAIN ON STRIKE

They Have Been Ordered to Remain Out Until Further Instructions—Discontent Caused by Disposition of Many of the Big Employers to Make New Agreements With the Workers Before Permitting Resumption of Work—Strike Seems to Persist in as Great Force as Before Called Off.

LONDON, May 13.—(AP)—How Great Britain will come through her greatest industrial upheaval was, if anything, more an enigma tonight than it had been at any time previously since the strike began. The country woke up today to find the rosy hopes of last night completely dashed—partly, it would seem, through discontent of the strikers at the way the strike had been called off, but more through the disposition of many of the big employers to insist on making new agreements with the workers before permitting resumption of work.

It is even asserted that some of the big railways and other concerns contemplated enforcing a reduction in wages, though, according to the statement of Premier Baldwin in the house of commons, who warned the nation to be suspicious of propaganda and misleading rumors, some of these reports, especially regarding the railways, were unfounded.

One big railway group tonight officially denied the rumors that they intended to reduce wages or otherwise penalize the men.

Notwithstanding the fact that the general strike has been called off, it in reality still persists in as great force as before. The miners never have consented to resume, and because of the attitude of the employers and by reason of other circumstances, the two big industries, the railwaymen and transportation workers, are ordered to remain out until further instructions. The situation in the newspaper field is without change, most of the papers still issuing in skeleton form.

No agreement has yet been reached by the railway managers and executives of the railway unions on the question of the re-employment of strikers. A conference on this subject adjourned at a late hour without a decision and will be resumed tomorrow.

The miners' executive after conferring for an hour this evening went to Downing street and were closeted with Premier Baldwin for a considerable time. Members of the executive returned to headquarters and refused to divulge anything, but it was officially announced that there had been a general discussion on the present situation. No mention was made of any possible plans for adjusting the dispute between the miners and mine owners which precipitated the general strike.

Premier Baldwin in the house of commons made a strong appeal for conciliation and advoidance of vindictiveness, and reiterated his intention to fulfill all his promises. One of the interesting aspects of the situation is whether this conciliatory stand on the part of the prime minister will prevail against the known tendencies of some of his colleagues to make it a fight to a finish.

The British Worker, organ of the strikers, reprints a portion of the king's message of last night to the people asking them to forget bitterness and work for a lasting peace, and declares:

"Those employers who are refusing to reinstate their workers unless wage reductions are accepted are deliberately and maliciously defying his majesty's appeal for peace."

In the house of commons, Ramsay MacDonald and J. H. Thomas complained earnestly of the attitude of the government organ, the British Gazette, contrasting it with the peaceful example of king and premier.

Much resentment has been infused into the relations between the strikers and their employes by today's events, and the situation therefore is full of anxiety, as well as uncertainty. There appears at best little likelihood of getting the wheels of industry turning again before next week.

Hardly anything is changed by the withdrawal of the general strike. In the words of the miners' secretary, A. J. Cook, the strike has been converted into a general lockout through the disposition of the employers to take the men back except under conditions.

The government retains full control, as before of food supplies and essential services, which are being operated by volunteer labor. Hyde park and other great parks are still in use as government depots.

The home secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks gives warning that the great army of newly enrolled special constables will still be required. Premier Baldwin's emphatic declaration that attempts to smash the unions cannot be tolerated and his admission that unions are a necessary part of the industrial machinery gives hope for an eventual settlement. The archbishop of Canterbury and other great peace advocates are still active in the cause of conciliation.

ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY SUPPORTS PREMIER BALDWIN

LONDON, May 13—(AP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury, who made a strong appeal for peace last Friday, today issued a statement endorsing Premier Baldwin's appeal of yesterday that the resumption of negotiations between the strikers and their employers be pursued in a spirit of co-operation and good will.

"I invite the prayers of everyone that the spirit of wisdom and mutual understanding may be given to those upon whom will rest the responsibility of the discussions which must now take place," he said, "we shall all, I hope, bear with glad readiness our share in meeting the inevitable cost of reconstruction."

FAVORS FORMULATION OF NAT'L AGRICULTURE POLICY

WASHINGTON, May 13—(AP)—Co-operation of farm and business leaders in a national conference to formulate a national agricultural policy was urged in a resolution adopted at the closing session today of the chamber of commerce of the United States.

Recognizing that the farm problem was of real concern to the nation, the chamber pledged its utmost efforts in assisting the grower out of his predicaments, at the same time making clear it had no desire to dictate to the industry as to its program.

"Agriculture is a business," the resolution said, "and its problems, including production, finance and distribution, are largely business problems by no means of solution—involving as they do, widely different industries and localities.

"Any help rendered must give due regard to the delicacy, intricacy and wide variation of the issues involved."

Twenty-seven other resolutions dealing with leading questions of the day were adopted before the chamber reelected John W. O'Leary of Chicago its president. Four vice-presidents named were: Lewis E. Pierson, New York, for the eastern states; William Butterworth, north central states; Robert H. Ellis, Memphis, Tenn., south central states, and Paul Shoup, San Francisco, western states.

DETECTIVES PROBABLY SLAIN BY GOLD THIEVES

KALGOORLIE, Australia, May 13—(AP)—The mutilated, headless bodies of Inspector Walsh and Sergeant Pitman, detectives attached to the gold theft investigation bureau of the police department, have been found in an abandoned mine shaft. They had been missing since April 28, when they set out to trap gold thieves operating in the western Australia fields.

Near the bodies was found a complete, illicit gold treatment plant. Police said they had undoubtedly been surprised by the thieves. The discovery caused considerable excitement in the gold-fields and the subsequent ugly mood of the miners indicated they might deal harshly with the murderers, if apprehended.

Portions of the bodies, including the partially buried skulls were found later in another part of the shaft.

(Kalgoorlie, a town of some 3,000 inhabitants, is the headquarters of the East Coolgardie gold fields).

UNION MEN TAKE PLACE OF UNOFFICIAL STRIKERS

LYNN, Mass., May 13—(AP)—For the first time in the history of the shoe industry here, a union today took the part of the manufacturers when 20 stitchers declared an unofficial strike. With the consent of the union new workers were engaged to take the positions vacated. A score of stitchers employed by the Freedman Shoe company walked out without seeking the sanction of their union.

SENATE PASSES M'FADDEN BRANCH BANKING BILL

WASHINGTON, May 13—(AP)—Facing further change in conference, the MacFadden branch banking bill was passed today by the senate with its provisions differing widely from the form in which they were approved by the house.

As it went through the house the measure carried the Hull amendments, which were assailed in the senate banking committee and on the floor. It was contended they divided the country into half branch and half unit banking by closing the door to further branch banking by members of the Federal Reserve system.

The amendments were stricken out and provisions inserted permitted both national and state bank members of the reserve system to create branches within the corporate limits of their home cities in states authorizing branch banking.

This change is expected to afford the battle issue in conference. Already maneuvering has been begun to reach a compromise with prospects that major portions of the bill may again be rewritten.

The bill passed the senate without a record vote after two days' discussion.

Sponsors of the bill claim that it would place members of the reserve system on a parity with outside banks and would strengthen the system by offering inducements to bank to assume membership.

The bill does not affect existing branches and banks having branches would be eligible to come into the system without closing them. In addition, the measure would provide permanent charters for Federal Reserve banks and would extend the time for which national banks may make real estate loans from one to five years. It also would permit interlocking directorates of reserve and private banking institutions.

HOPI INDIAN SNAKE DANCE TO BE STAGED IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, May 13—(AP)—A genuine Hopi Indian snake dance will be staged in front of the capital Saturday before members of congress in an effort to overcome objections that have arisen against this ancient religious ritual.

Senator Cameron, of Arizona, who is staging the performance with a group of selected Indians, said today five rattlesnakes and bull snakes would be used.

He contends there was no more harm in the snake dance than there was in the Charleston.

A NEW GOVERNMENT HAS BEEN SET UP IN PEKING

PEKING, May 13—(AP)—A new government was set up in Peking today a reconstitution of the cabinet of Dr W. W. Yen, which functioned in late 1924, before Marshal Feng Yu Hsiang became a dominant figure in the capital. The new cabinet announced the presidency vacant by virtue of the resignation of President Tsao Kun on May 1, and that it would assume the functions of the chief executive.

Although the new regime is without the status of a ruling cabinet, it is understood that it will operate as the executive with the consent of the military factions in actual control of the situation. Chief among the military authorities concerned are Marshal Wu Pei-Fu, leader of the old Chih party, Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, dictator of Manchuria and General Li Ching Lin risen to power through his command of the Manchurian-Shantung levies whose pressure caused the withdrawal of the national armies from the capital.

Dr. Yen has assumed for the time being, the posts of premier and foreign minister, although the name of Alfred Sze has been announced as foreign minister. Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, former minister to Great Britain and the United States, becomes minister of finance and Yang Wen-Kai, minister of commerce.

The first cabinet meeting was called by the premier alte today to issue declarations regarding the status and personnel of the new government.

The Yen regime represents a compromise between the political views of Marshals Wu and Chang, and it is likely that several shifts will be made later to conform to changing political conditions.

SLOW PROGRESS IN HOUSE ON FARM RELIEF LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, May 13—(AP)—Farm relief legislation made such slow progress in the house today that leaders predicted it might be late next week before reading of the bill for amendments is concluded and the way paved for submission as substitutes of two other measures—the Tincher credit plan and the Curtis-Aswell commodity marketing proposal.

The first amendment acted on today, approved by a viva voce vote, would require the consent of "a substantial number" of farm organizations before the proposed price stabilization scheme could be applied to any farm crop.

The amendment and the 17 others drafted by friends of the bill, are designed to eliminate features objected to by some members and to obtain additional votes for the measure.

In predicting late next week as the voting time, leaders pointed out that the house would be in recess Saturday and that friends of the Tincher bill did not desire a show-down until after the Pennsylvania primaries Tuesday so the delegation of that state would be present.

It is expected to vote almost solidly for the Tincher proposal.

ADMITTED GUILT AS JURY WAS BEING SELECTED

BRIDGEPORT, May 13.—(AP)—After six talesmen had been examined in criminal superior court on their qualifications to hear evidence in his case, and two had been chosen as jurors, Carmela Coccomo, 29, of New Britain, abruptly changed his mind this afternoon, waived his insistence on a jury trial, and admitted he was guilty after all of a charge of illegal transportation of alcohol.

Judge John R Booth sentenced Coccomo to ten months in jail. He was arrested after a thrilling chase during which state policemen fired many shots in Newtown last March.

Threat to Close Bay St..t Wood...Public

Gov. Fuller ... Will Act Un... Carelessness That ... to Fires in Curb...

BOS... May 13—(AP)—A warning that unless the carelessness that leads to forest fires is curbed the forests of the state will be closed was issued today by Governor Fuller. Governor Fuller called attention to the fact that 2,000 fires had already burned over more than 32,000 acres in Massachusetts to date this year.

"This is a very substantial increase over the number of fires and acreage burned last year," the governor's statement read. "The fire danger is increasing every day on account of the lack of rain. Because of the carelessness of people who visit the woods the menace is growing daily.

"Unless every precaution is taken to prevent fires of this nature, under the provisions of section 1, chapter 249, of the acts of 1925, I shall be obliged in the interest of all the people, whose property it is that is endangered, to close the woods of the commonwealth to the public generally in order to conserve both life and property."

FOREST FIRES RAGING NEAR FALMOUTH, MASS.

FALMOUTH, Mass., May 13.—(AP)—Two forest fires were raging uncontrolled in the Hatchville section tonight, and a thousand men were fighting them. The coast guard station at Wood's Hole, on the southwest elbow of Cape Cod, drafted every available man to help in checking the flames, and four of them were overcome by smoke.

The first fire started yesterday afternoon on the "Brick Kiln" road from West Falmouth to Hatchville. A strong wind swept it toward North Falmouth today, and only strenuous efforts saved two summer camps from destruction. At last reports the fire had burned 200 acres of pine and oak timber and was half a mile from Hatchville.

The other blaze started early today on the Hatchville-North Falmouth road a mile and a half from Hatchville. The north wind frustrated hopes that the fires would meet head-on, and each was burning fiercely in a different direction. The second fire by tonight had burned 150 acres of standing pine and oak. The volunteers at both fires included men from Onset, Sandwich, Bourne and Falmouth. Word came from Plymouth 25 miles away, that the smoke was plainly visible there.

COMPARISON OF COSTS OF GRAMMAR SCHOOL PUPILS

HARTFORD, Conn., May 13.—(AP)—Hartford pays more per grammar pupil for school maintenance than any other city of over 30,000 population in the state according to a bulletin issued by the state department of education. The cost data, which covers the 1924-25 school year, was compiled by Alfred D. Simpson, the department director of research and surveys. Hartford's average is $107.60 per pupil per year as compared with an average of $91.25 for the seven cities in this class. The other figures are: Bridgeport $72.91; Meriden $90.67; New Britain $73.15; New Haven $70.94; Stamford $93.37; Waterbury $97.65.

As regards high school per pupil costs New Britain is highest in this group with Hartford second. The list reads: Bridgeport $114.63; Hartford $182.99; Meriden $132.89; New Britain $195.59; New Haven $110.55; Stamford, $162.91; Waterford $153.54. The high school average for the state is $155.

In the second class of cities and towns, population 10,000 to 30,000, Greenwich is highest on elementary school per pupil costs with $108.47 and Stonington lowest with $54.06. For high schools, Derby is highest, $151.22 and Norwalk lowest $84.27.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 13.—(AP)—Convicted of "asininity" and over indulgence in spirituous liquors, seven Brown university students were suspended today for the rest of the semester by Dean Otis E. Randall. The scene of their downfall was the annual junior circus on the campus. The reason for it, according to Dean Randall, is the example set by the adults of today.

JOHN T. KING, FORMER REP. NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN DIED 11.05 LAST NIGHT

BRIDGEPORT, May 13—(AP)—John T. King, former republican national committeeman, died at his home about 11:05 o'clock tonight.

Mr. King was stricken with pneumonia Sunday and failed rapidly. Specialists were called from New York, Waterbury and New Haven but were unable to save the man who had ruled Bridgeport's republican organization for the past 20 years.

The patient suffered a sinking spell this morning and it was necessary to administer oxygen. This relapse passed and it was hoped by the physicians late this afternoon that Mr. King would recover. A second relapse occurred however, and with it came the end.

Mrs. King was at the bedside but their only child, a son, was in Paris where he is studying international banking and finance.

John T. King, of Bridgeport, a former national committeeman from Connecticut, was head of the republican organization in Bridgeport for 20 years and had played an important part in national political conventions. He was a close friend of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

Recently, King, along with Harry M. Daugherty, attorney general in the Harding cabinet, and Colonel Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian in the Harding administration, were indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government. The indictments followed an investigation of the transfer of $7,000,000 of the funds of the American Metals Company, Ltd., from the custody of the government to a Swiss corporation. The funds had been seized by the United States government during the war.

Mr. King was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., March 30, 1875. His early inclination had been to become a priest because of his religious belief, his studious ways, his aptness at learning in school, and his ability to write and talk. He had been left an orphan at an early age and was reared by an aunt in a devout Catholic home.

After studying in the Brooklyn schools, in which he won honors, he entered Niagara university with the intention of studying for the Roman Catholic priesthood. While in college his inclination changed and he decided that business and politics better suited him as a vocation.

Fierce Struggle is Going on in Warsaw

Eighteen Persons Killed and Eighty Wounded in the Streets of the City—Communication Cut.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 13—(AP)—A fierce struggle has been going on in Warsaw around Belvedere Palace where members of the government have taken refuge. Late despatches from the Polish capital report 18 killed, including two officers, and 80 wounded in the streets of the city.

Former President Pilsudski, in command of the revolting troops is in control of the capital and the situation has been greatly aggravated by the arrival in the outskirts of Warsaw of two regiments from Posen, to aid the ousted government.

A manifesto by President Wojciechowski thrown from an airplane declares that a majority of the army sides with the government and that troops are on their way to Warsaw to engage the Pilsudski forces. It appeals for support for the lawful government.

The inner city is completely in the hands of the Pilsudski adherents, and the marshal with his staff has his headquarters in the Saxon Palace.

The government apparently is endeavoring to delay negotiations until it is able to concerse the greater number of its forces in the provinces on Warsaw. An aviation corps has reported for service, and an airtight embargo on telephonic and telegraphic communications has been imposed throughout Poland to prevent Pilsudski from mobilizing his followers.

The president's guard and loyal government troops are concentrated in Belvedere, in addition to armored cars, the government troops have two light batteries, the spacious parks which surround the presidential palace have been the bcene of considerable fighting.

In an ultimatum Marshal Pilsudski demands the resignation of Premier Witos and the appointment of non-political heads of the war and foreign ministries, together with the withdrawal of all decrees promulgated by the Witos administration.

Up to the present the socialists have declined to join Pilsudski, and the government has therefore been able to keep the railways operating with socialist labor union trainmen.

Anticipating sanguinary fighting citizens have fled or are in hiding. Only hurrying troops are encountered in the streets. Warsaw looks like a deserted city.

The minister of war, Malczewski, is organizing the government defense in the provinces, leaving the protection of the government and the defense of Belvedere to General Dalserauowski, the commandant at Warsaw.

A despatch received by courier from the frontier describes Marshal Pilsudski's march on Warsaw. When he arrived at the city's eastern outskirts he was met by a detachment of government troops under command of an adjutant of War Minister Malczewski and a temporary armistice was agreed to.

In the name of the government Pilsudski was ordered to retreat, his officers being reminded of the penalty for insubordination against the legally established government. Pilsudski demanded the immediate retirement of the Witos government and the establishment of a non-partisan ministry of strong men.

No agreement was reached, and Pilsudski forced an entrance into the city, re-lining the government troops in a series of pitched battles in the neighborhood of the palace and the government building.

Pilsudski's cavalry dashed through the main streets in the direction of Belvedere, which, however, was successfully defended by the president's guards.

Pilsudski immediately took possession of the various ministries and railway stations and resumed negotiations with representatives of the government.

It is reported that General Romer, commander of the Lublin army corps has declared against the government. At Emberg and Cracow the workmen have demonstrated in favor of the former President Pilsudski.

Later despatches say that clashes between the opposing sides are becoming more frequent, though neither the government nor the revolutionists appear to launch a vigorous attack.

POLISH GOV'T HOLDS OUT IN BELVEDERE PALACE

PARIS, May 13—(AP)—A twenty-four hour silence has been broken by a despatch from Warsaw, Poland, forwarded by the Polish Telegraph agency, which confirms, but does not add much to, what is already known of the situation in the Polish capital.

The government still holds out in Belvedere palace, and a sort of armistice has been concluded to permit negotiations for a peaceful settlement.

CONCERN FELT FOR DIRIGIBLE NORGE AS BAROMETER AT NOME CONTINUES TO FALL

Considerably More Than Sufficient Time Has Elapsed For the Norge to Reach Nome From Point Barrow, Where It Previously Had Been Heard From—Ititarod, 275 Miles Southeast of Nome, Reported as Having Heard the Norge Call Nome Every Five Minutes For Some Time.

NOME, Alaska, May 13—(AP)—All indications here today pointed to a storm in this territory where the Amundsen-Ellsworth transpolar dirigible Norge was proceeding from Spitzbergen, via Point Barrow, Alaska. The barometer dropped .53 of an inch in the last 24 hours and continued to fall today. No communication had been made between Nome and the Norge up to ten o'clock this morning.

The time given in the foregoing dispatch 10 a. m. at Nome—corresponds to 4 p. m. eastern standard time.

APPREHENSION FELT AT NOME AS TIME PASSES

SEATTLE, May 13—(AP)—The American northwest continued to wait and hope tonight for some word out of the polar silence of the dirigible Norge.

Advices today from Nome, goal of the great adventure of Roald Amundsen and his party, indicated that some apprehension was being felt as considerably more than sufficient time had elapsed for the Norge to reach Nome from Point Barrow, where it had previously been heard from.

The last authentic word received here from the craft, was from St. Paul Island, in the Bearing Sea, where the United States navy has a powerful wireless station. This station reported hearing from the Norge five times last night and early today, the last time being at 2:29 a. m., eastern standard time. (All references to time in reports on the ship in this item are eastern standard).

At 2:29 a. m., St. Paul heard the Norge call an unidentified station and say: "Go ahead."

Other reports from Alaska said the Norge passed over Point Barrow at 1:30 a. m. and had been expected to arrive at Nome by 8 a. m. Point Barrow is about 550 miles north of Nome, on the Arctic coast.

Although all arrangements were completed to receive the Norge at Nome, efforts were made today to reach Amundsen by wireless to get him to fly south to Camp Lewis, near Tacoma, where there is a mooring mast. There is no mast at Nome. Amundsen had arranged with Ralph Lowman there, Norwegian consul, to have 100 men ready to haul the dirigible to earth. These men have been in readiness since yesterday afternoon.

What puzzled watchers here, was that so far as known, the navy radio station at Cordova, Alaska, reported that the St. Paul radio had at 5 p. m. received no word from the Norge for 14 1-3 hours and that the army radio station at Nome 500 miles farther north, also had heard nothing.

The only definite word direct from Nome was that at 5:30 a. m. the Norge had not arrived. It is believed, in view of the normal promptness of communication between that city and this, word would have been received had the ship arrived.

Nome is making gala preparations to receive the explorers. At this time of the year, the population is about 600 mostly Eskimos. But all were on the watch. An arch of triumph has been erected as part of the city's greeting.

NO AUTHENTIC WORD FROM THE NORGE UP TO MIDNIGHT

NEW YORK, May 13—(AP)—Despite static-garbled radio messages believed to have been sent from the Norge no authentic word has been received up till midnight tonight by the New York Times and the St. Louis Globe Democrat from the Amundsen-Ellsworth-Nobile polar expedition since shortly after it sailed over the pole.

REPORT THAT NORGE HAD BEEN CALLING NOME

JUNEAU, Alaska, May 13—(AP)—Radio operators of the steamer Northwestern, of the Alaska Steamship company, in port here reported at noon today that they heard a radio station at Iditarod tell a station at Fairbanks that it had heard the dirigible Norge, on a trans-polar flight from Spitzbergen to Nome, Alaska, call Nome every five minutes for some time.

A land radio station here, however, which listened all day, reported that it had heard no messages from the big airship.

Iditarod is approximately 275 miles southeast of Nome and 640 miles south, and slightly west of Point Barrow. It is 240 miles inland from Bering sea. The Norge traveling in a direct line from Point Barrow to Nome would pass about 300 miles, north of Iditarod.

POSSIBILITY OF ARCTIC TRADE ROUTE DISCUSSED

NEW YORK, May 13— (AP) — The Norge' feat in sailing over the north pole has once more brought the possibilities of a trade route over the top of the world into discussion.

The hours necessary to fly from Spitzbergen to Alaska over the arctic eliminate many weeks of time and a voyage half around the world on the part of a ship.

Vardo, Norway, whence the Norge sailed to Spitzbergen, is approximately 2,750 miles from Point Barrow, Alaska, by way of the north pole. Vardo is in the 70th latitude. If a ship were to follow approximately this latitude half way around the world it would eventually reach Point Barrow after traversing some 10,000 miles.

For commercial purposes, however, even this course would be impracticable. It is doubtful whether this trip could be made by water under 20,000 miles.

NORGE IS THE PHONETIC SPELLING FOR NORWAY

NEW YORK, May 13—(AP)—Norge, the name of the dirigible in which Amundsen, Ellsworth and Nobile are negotiating the northern wastes, is not a name from the imagination, but represents another patriotic gesture by Amundsen—the naming of his dirigible for his homeland.

Norge, pronounced Norg-eh, with the "G" hard, to rhyme with George, is the anglicized phonetic spelling of the native name for Norway, as Deutschland is the teutonic name for Germany.

AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE WEEK JULY 29 TO JULY 5

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(AP)— An American independence week will be observed throughout the country from June 29 to July 5 to mark the sesqui centennial this week year of the declaration of independence and the centenary of the death of Thomas Jefferson.

Decision to that effect was reached today by the commission appointed by the government to arrange for the observances at a meeting in the white house presided over by President Coolidge.

The commission selected Mr. Coolidge as honorary chairman, Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia, as honorary vice chairman and as the active chairman, Stuard G. Gibboney, president of the Thomas Jefferson foundation.

The commission plans to prepare a patriotic and educational program for the week with the cooperation of governors, mayors and civic organizations.

President Coolidge read a telegram from Felix M. Warburg, a member of the commission suggesting that as a tribute to Thomas Jefferson's stand for religious freedom, a Protestant, a Catholic and a Jew each contribute $100,000 to the fund for the purchase of Monticello and to the endowment fund.

GENERAL MOTORS CORP. TO ABSORB THE FISHER CORP.

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—Declaration of a $4 extra dividend on General Motors common shares and the formal announcement of an offer to purchase the entire properties of the Fisher Body Corporation, now 60 per cent. owned, marked the directors' meeting of the General Motors Corporation today. All officers were re-elected for the ensuing year.

In addition to the extra distribution the directors also authorized the payment of regular quarterly dividends on the preferred and debenture stocks on August 2 to holders of record July 5. The special dividend on the common will be paid on July 2, together with the regular quarterly disbursement of $1.75 a share, to holders of record May 24.

Acquisition of the Fisher Body Corporation will be accomplished through an exchange of stock on the basis of two-thirds of a share of General Motors common for each share of Fisher Body.

WOULD ESTABLISH PAY CAMPS FOR MOTOR TOURISTS

CHICAGO, May 13—(AP)—Elimination of free motor tourist camps and substitution of pay camps with a uniform charge of fifty cents per automobile, was urged by the Outdoor Life association of America, in its annual convention today. Tourist camps have had an astounding growth in America, the convention was told, but because of the evils attending free camps, it has been a mushroom growth. Last year's camps disappear, others spring up. One million campers are on the road yearly, crowding camps in favored places to capacity.

"PRINCE OF WALES" IN JAIL FOR CLOTHING DEAL

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 13—Eugene LeBond, 24, otherwise known as Gene White and sometimes known as Gray, was charged in police court with concealing and conveying to another person by sale, articles held under a conditional bill of sale. White, as he is familiarly known, pleaded guilty admitting his financial deal in answering questions put to him by Prosecuting Attorney Gauchen. White was alleged to have purchased an overcoat on the installment plan from the People's Clothing store on Main street here. Before it had fully paid for the coat he sold it to a local man for seven dollars. To another local young man he sold a suit bearing the mark of the P. & Q. Store, Worcester, Mass. Another overcoat which he sold bore the label of the Outlet Store, Providence. He got five dollars for one sale and ten dollars for the other. He swore that the suit and overcoat last mentioned had been paid for outright. In conducting an investigation of the break in the Benjamin Eisenberg store on Church street here early Wednesday morning, White was rounded up as a suspect. He was brought to headquarters for the second time in the evening by Acting Captain Frank McLean and questioned. White proved an alibi but he admitted disposing of the two overcoats and the suit, along with a pair of shoes. Judge Foss imposed a sentence of thirty days in the Windham county jail and White was taken to Brooklyn later in the day.

The police regard White as somewhat of a man of mystery. He came to Willimantic about five months ago and would not tell where he resided just prior to coming here. He said that he was born in Boston and at various times was located in Hartford and Worcester.

It was remembered during the investigation of the break that White had frequently been in the Eisenberg store. A search of his room failed to disclose anything incriminating. White said that he had $300 when he came here and that considerable of it was spent. He owed some bills and he was preparing to go to work. He stated that his parents were both dead and he had no place he could call home. Since coming here White had purchased over $100 worth of clothing at the People's Store, on credit. First he bought a suit for $42.50 and paid more than the required first payment. He then bought an overcoat for $29.25 and made all the payments on this. Several days ago White went into the store and said that the overcoat he had purchased there in March had been stolen from an automobile on Main street and he wanted to buy another. He secured one that cost $26 and a hat costing $3.50. It developed that the overcoat which he alleged had been stolen had been sold to a local man for seven dollars. People noted that White was always faultlessly dressed and in noting his style and carriage some people called him "The Prince of Wales". White admitted that he sold the clothes because he was in need of money. He said that he had a job to go to as a helper to a driver on a Norwich auto truck but he did not know the name of his prospective employer.

R. E. JACOBS' APPOINTMENT CLAIMED TO BE ILLEGAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, May 13. — Trouble has arisen in regards to the appointment of supernumerary officers of the police department made at the May meeting of the common council Monday night. Thursday, Mayor John C. Tracy stated that Russell E. Jacobs, one of the three newly appointed men had been notified not to report for duty, as his appointment is invalid. It had been brought to the attention of the mayor that all members of the police department must reside and vote in the city proper. When it developed that Jacobs is not a city elector although he has been a voter and resident of the town of Windham for eight years, the chief executive stated that steps would have to be taken to cancel the appointment to conform to the city charter. Mayor Tracy said that he had not previously investigated the application of the men recommended for appointment by the police committee. The other two men appointed Monday night were Edgar B. Rodman and Daniel Connell.

A change has also been made from a previous announcement that Supernumerary Officers Albert Monty, F. Rudolph Laramee and Pierre Marrotte had been assigned to regular duty. After conferring with Corporation Counsel W. A. King, Mayor Tracy decided that two new regular men would be sufficient for the present, so Officer Marrotte is retained as a supernumerary. The proposed cancellation of the appointment of Jacobs comes as a disappointment to all those interested. Jacobs was recommended as having all the qualifications of an officer, including physique, he being 6 feet 5 inches tall and weighing 225 pounds. When asked concerning their attitude regarding the apparent mix-up in appointment, members of the police committee, of which Councilman W. E. Jackson is chairman, stated that they knew nothing of the move to cancel the appointment of Jacobs. Definite action on the matter will not be taken until the next meeting of the council.

Amid colorful decorations, the members of the city medical society gathered for their annual banquet at a tea room here Thursday night. The ceremonies opened at 9.30 o'clock with a splendid repast. Music was provided by George W. Hickey, piano, and Robert C. Fletcher, violin. Arthur Roy and Ray Tallman were heard in popular numbers. The after dinner exercises were highly entertaining including stunts, speech making and singing. Dr. Arthur J. Girouard was toastmaster. Dr. Frederick E. Wilcox was chairman of the arrangements committee.

DANIELSON

PROOF OF CRUELTY FOUND NEAR ATTAWAUGAN

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 13—A charnel piece of wild folks of the woods, where lay a dead deer, a fox, a skunk, a crow and two hounds—all within the radius of a few yards, was what County Game Warden John F. Ash, of Pomfret, and Deputy William M. Franklin, of this place gazed upon in checking up a report that came to them from the owner of a farm place near Attawaugan.

The carcass of the deer was badly decomposed, the fox was without his pelt and there was evidence that the beginning of this woodland tragedy dates back to the late winter or very early spring. The game officials, using pick and shovel, buried what remained of the carcasses—and none too pleasant was their task.

Deputy Warden Franklin reconstructs the tragedy something after this fashion: late in the winter or in the very early spring someone shot a buck and did not get him. Eventually the buck collapsed in a peaceful glen and died of his wounds. In due time a man appeared and seen the dead deer, now partly eaten by other wild things. The idea suggests itself that if the carcass be impregnated with cyanide of potassium, a death dealing thing, that foxes that come to feast will die almost in their tracks—and fox pelts are valuable during the cold weather season when they are prime.

The cyanide is applied and, in due time, come the fox, the dogs, the skunk and the crow, all to die as a penalty for such indulgences as they may have allowed themselves at a gruesome feast. When the wardens found the mess, the fox was minus his pelt. That had been stripped from him to adorn some fair one in cold seasons to come. Bloated carcasses of the hounds lay nearby. They had died almost as they finished gorging. The skunk and the crow, likewise had passed out to satisfy man's greed for a few paltry pennies. A collar, with tag, was retrieved from the neck of one of the dead hounds. The other was collarless.

No such evidence of the lawless use of poison to slay game has come to light previously in this territory. The use of cyanide has been reported time and again during the past three or four years, but never before has its destructive effectiveness been so demonstrated. An investigation of this case may possibly bring something of value to light. At least that is the hope of the game officials—and of all real sportsmen.

AMERICAN LEGION POST HOST TO STATE OFFICERS

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 13—State Commander Harry C. Jackson of New Britain and Chef du Guerre E. C. Schall of Hartford last their presence last evening to making a joint meeting of Roe & L'Homme post, American Legion, and the Woman's auxiliary thereof an exceptionally interesting and happy event. Another guest of honor was Rev. William C. Prentiss of Plainfield. Addresses by these gentlemen, a program of entertainment and refreshments were features of the evening. Readings, piano solos and piano and saxophone duets were included in the program.

At this time the Legion post is concerning itself with plans for the observance of Memorial day, jointly with other patriotic organizations of Danielson. The legion is particularly anxious to have all its membership in the procession of that day—to do honor to all the heroic dead—but also all veterans of the World war who do not happen to be members of the legion.

For Memorial day see our artificial flower designs, also pansies and all potted plants. A fine lot of sugar and Norway maples can be had. A. Bretschneider, Mechanic St.—Adv.

This will be a disappointing morning for trout fishermen if it brings an edict that Snake Meadow brook will be closed to fishing so long as the present period of drought continues. That was the forecast from Hartford Thursday for all state-leased streams, of which Snake Meadow is one. The advance announcement indicated that only heavy rain during Thursday would prevent the temporary closing.—and no rain came. However, the closing is not expected to be of any great duration. In case it is made effective, a heavy rain will mean an immediate lifting of the ban. As this is the ideal period of the open season for trout fishing, even temporary closing of the brook will be a cause of regret. However the fishermen may console themselves with angling along other streams meanwhile. Prevention of grass and forest fires is intended insofar as may be possible by holding up the fishermen for the time being.

Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Day, at the Maples, on the Goodyear road, funeral services for Chauncey Parkhurst were conducted by Rev. Roger C. Simson of the Danielson Methodist-Episcopal church. Relatives and a number of friends were in attendance. Burial was in Grove Hill cemetery at Rockville. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

At the home on Academy street Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, funeral services for Mrs. Ellen M. Adams were conducted by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church with numbers of relatives and friends attending. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. There were numbers of beautiful floral pieces. The bearers were E. H. Keach, Charles B. Guild and George Stone. Louis E. Kendy was in charge of the arrangements.

Though extreme caution against causing such happenings is being observed by the great majority of people who might be, in a way to bring them about, some forest fires got a start in towns in this corner of Windham county during Thursday. Up to late afternoon none of them appeared to be of any serious proportions and were being capably fought by crews of men.

East Killingly has its plan practically complete for its observance of Memorial day. That community makes a solemn rite of the Memorial observance each year, and this year will be no exception. The program of exercises is planned for the morning and details relative to them will be announced later.

Tent caterpillars—legions of them—are infesting the countryside and threatening destruction of foliage, if any develops this season. The loathsome tents may be seen along every highway in this section. Comdr. A. Bretschneider, with a valuable suggestion for bring it all them. He says: "Take a forked stick and tear the tents open—the birds will do the rest." The caterpillars make their escape at night and are snugly back in their tents again during the daytime. Various kinds of birds consider a caterpillar a luscious morsel and will feed on them voraciously if opportunity affords. They will get them, too, as the nests are torn open.

J. Carl Witter was in Hartford on business trip Thursday.

Dr. Hugo B. Campbell of Norwich will be here next Tuesday to conduct a clinic at the health station in the town hall building.

A long awaited bit of work was being accomplished Thursday when the top surfacing was being put on the concrete bridge put in over the Assawaga river in Main street last November. A traffic detour is in force while the work is underway.

Ascension day services at St. Alban's church were conducted by the rector, Rev. Leonard R. Richards.

Daily from now until next Wednesday (inclusive) Tax Collector James R. Walsh will be at his office in the town hall building to collect taxes due the town of Killingly. Attention is called to automobiles being taxable property in the town.—Adv.

A road grader with drag was being used by the town Thursday in smoothing off street surfaces that have received oil and gravel applications during the current week.

Charles Gunderson of South Killingly is making a trip to California.

Members of Leagues of Women Voters in Windham county will be in Putnam today (Friday) to attend a parliamentary school at which several interesting addresses will be made. There are to be morning and afternoon sessions.

In view of the fact that men are not at all interested in fashions, they will not mind the women teasing them a bit about tomorrow being Straw Hat day and the legendary opening of the season for such headgear.

F. H. CRANSTON, NORWICH ADDRESSES SCHOOL LEAGUE

Leffingwell School Improvement League held its May meeting Friday evening at the schoolhouse. The meeting opened by all singing "America." Rev. William B. Oakley offered prayer. The secretary's report and treasurer's report were read and accepted and preceded singing, "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Miss Carolyn L. Beebe was chairman of the entertainment committee. The entertainment opened with the singing of "Marching Through Georgia." Mrs. N. E. Whiting and Miss Alice A. Bishop played a piano duet, "No Surrender March." This was followed by a cute little Dutch song, "Hans and Gretchen", sung by Herbert and Helen Spicer, dressed in Dutch costumes. Miss Beebe introduced Frederick H. Cranston of Norwich Academy faculty, who was very interesting in his talk of what is being done by N. F. A. He also showed exhibits of printing, bookbinding, etching, etc. Mrs. N. E. Whiting and Miss Alice A. Bishop played a piano selection, "Cradle Song" (Berceuse). The singing of "Love's Old Sweet Song" by all closed the meeting. Cocoa and cookies were served. About 60 were present. The committees for the June meeting are entertainment, Rev. William B. Oakley and Edward Caroline; refreshments, Mrs. N. E. Whiting and Miss Linda Mowrey.

Rev. William B. Oakley was in Mystic Tuesday, Wednesday, he with Rev. J. R. Osborne of Mystic, motored to Hartford.

PUTNAM

The May meeting of Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter D. A. R. was held this week at the Odd Fellows' hall. Among other business transacted, it was voted to give $50 to the Springfield International college. Interesting reports of the Washington congress were given by the delegates. Of especial interest was Mrs. Barber's report of the address of the president-general announcing the existance now of 2000 chapters with a membership over 156,000. Miss Crosby spoke of the plans for the new auditorium to be built during the next three years. Mrs. E. L. Robinson sang two groups of songs: I'm a Blithesome Maid by Bemford, The Ferry to Shadow Town, DeKoven, Come, My Own Dear Love, Chaminade, and Violets by Ellen White.

The town of Pomfret's annual speaking and spelling contest filled Abington Music hall with parents, friends and pupils gathered to listen. The grammar grades' orchestra opened the program with a selection. After a song by the pupils, the first speaker was announced by FitzHenry Paine, presiding chairman of the school committee. The seven orations were interspersed with folk dances, songs and selections by the Kinderband. The judges, J. H. Merrill, Ralph C. Jenkins and M. H. Geissler, all of Putnam, announced Arthur Bellerive of the North school winner in the speaking competition. Anna Peterson of the Chandler district, was awarded second honors.

In the spelling contest, the North end again carried away the first honors with Helen Mayo getting first honors and Anna Peterson again winning second place for the evening. The Kinderband also went home with a feather in its cap; this orchestra showed the results of careful coaching and its music was thoroughly enjoyed. The musical program was under the direction of Miss Anna Ash, supervisor of music. The folk dances were taken mostly from the Scotch Highlanders and were well executed.

The winners Miss Mayo and Mr. Bellerive will compete at Danielson next week.

When Rev. and Mrs. Nathan B. Burton were recently given a reception at the Methodist church, in the nature of a "Welcome," it was attended by a large number of friends and constituents of the parish and church. DRIVER WITH CLOTHES AFIRE STARTS WOODLAND FLAMES

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 13.—A forest fire that started in Eastford last evening has swept over thousands of acres of woodland and is still beyond control, in spite of the efforts of a small army of men fighting it. A motor truck belonging to John Lewis of Hampton, exploded and set fire to his clothing in trying to extinguish the flames he rolled over on the ground and spread the fire in the underbrush. During the night and this morning the path of the fire grew in extent and swept over the standing timber on the estate of Dr. F. G. Goodridge, Dr. Joseph Hutchins, Joseph Elliot and many others in that vicinity. A large amount of cut timber was also consumed. The greatest damage has been in what is known as the Ragged Hill district of Pomfret. The wind is growing strong tonight and the trend of the flames is toward Woodstock. It is dangerous to the farm houses in that section, many of which are costly structures.

The ambulance of Day Kimball hospital was called out Tuesday night for an accident on the Providence road near Glocester. A woman whose home was in Woonsocket but whose name was not given out, was badly hurt but insisted on being taken to the Rhode Island hospital. She was placed in the ambulance but died before the hospital was reached.

About 70 members of Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows motored to Webster to attend the 107th anniversary celebration of Odd Fellowship in the United States. The Goodyear band accompanied them. After the services held at the Methodist church, the lodges marched to the Odd Fellows hall where a banquet was served, vaudeville entertainment was given and speeches made. Lucius H. Fuller, past grand master of the state of Connecticut, was presented a basket of roses and carnations during the evening.

Walter Rich of Woodstock avenue, who was operated on for apepndicitis at the Day Kimball hospital Sunday, is reported to be gaining strength, with all indications pointing to his recovery, although the case was an unusually serious one. Mr. Rich was driving his car Saturday afternoon and was taken ill on a return trip to Brooklyn.

A very fine program gave pleasure at a well attended meeting of the Parent-Teacher association held in the Putnam high school auditorium. Owing to the absence of the president, Mrs. Walter Rich, the meeting was presided over by Mrs. Alvira Barber. A very interesting account of the state meeting at New London was given by Miss Irene Bernier. The pupils of Miss Etta Whiting of Israel Putnam school and those of Mrs. Davison of the Putnam Heights school presented a program which was received with great favor. The orchestra of the Baptist church under the direction of Samuel Rich furnished music.

James M. Keith of Eastford was 91 years old Sunday and to celebrate the anniversary motored to Springfield, Mass., with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Keith to visit his daughter, Mrs. W. M. Cushman.

Dr. H. L. Pease of this city is in attendance at the 72nd annual meeting of the New England Osteopathic association, being held in Boston today (Friday) and Saturday at the Copley-Plaza. The banquet is to be held this (Friday) night.

The farmhouse and barn of Frank Jogbson, on Brandy Hill Thompson, was totally destroyed by fire Wednesday morning. In some way fire started in the barn and the burning embers from that caught the house which was also destroyed. Most of the furniture was saved.

LEBANON

Rev. Stanley Selfick took for his subject Sunday, Our Debt to Motherhood. There was a duet by Misses Eleanor Burgess and Julia Standish. The church was effectively decorated with flowering plants. In the evening service there was a debate, Resolved that modern civilization is detrimental to home life. O. L. Fuits upheld the affirmative and Mr. Nourse the negative.

The name of Stephen Manning was omitted from the list of those who united with the Congregational church May 2.

Rev. A. G. Littlefield preached a very fine Mothers' day sermon from the text Matt 12:49. Two bouquets, one of white carnations and sweet peas given by Mrs. Ida Abel in memory of her mother, the other of carnations given to Mrs. Littlefield by her daughter, Miss Beatrice Littlefield, decorated the pulpit. The C. E. meeting was led by Miss Cora Chappell.

The Mission circle held an all-day meeting in the chapel of the Baptist church Tuesday. Two quilts were completed. Dinner was served at noon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Geer, their son, Leroy Geer and daughter Miss Flora Geer spent Sunday with Mrs. Geer's sister, Mrs. Milan Whitaker, in South Killingly.

Mrs. C. W. Sikes, Mr. and Mrs. Basil G. Austin and daughters Misses Lucile and Janette Austin of Hartford were calling on relatives in Lebanon and Franklin Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dewey of East Hartford were recent guests of and Mrs. John Kneeland.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bryant of Putnam spent the week end with Mrs. Stevens' mother, Mrs. Julia Geer.

TONIGHT'S CAUCUS

One of the important preliminaries to an election is the caucus. The caucus of the republican party for the selection of candidates for city offices at the city election next month will be held tonight and in the interest of good government and the selection of the best possible candidates there should be a large and representative gathering.

The importance of the caucus is not to be overlooked. It should not be neglected. There is a duty to be discharged which should not be left to a few. When the ticket is completed it should be looked upon as expressing sentiments of the party, and only by a large outpouring of members can that be duly emphasized.

This is the year when it is necessary to elect a mayor as well as six members of the court of common council, a city treasurer, city sheriffs and members of the water board. It is thus a year that should mean a greater interest than is displayed in the so-called off-year elections. That interest should be forthcoming at tonight's caucus if the proper start is going to be made.

It is at the caucus that the wishes of the party members should be set forth. It is a time for decisions that will be accepted and supported on election day. It is the time for showing how the majority within the party stand and inasmuch as nomination means election for members of the water board it is the time for filling that important office, which is of particular concern at the present time because of the responsibility involved in the construction of the new Deep River reservoir.

In view of the fact that much depends upon the right candidates and a due insistence upon the part of the voters than at the caucus. Get there and voice your sentiments. Don't wait until tomorrow and vent your criticism over something which you do not like but which you made no effort to avoid.

The caucus is the time and place for early action. The republicans assemble tonight in town hall. Make it a point to get there and do your part in naming good government candidates.

VIBRATION FROM TRUCKS

Because there are protests against the big trucks and objections by the truck owners to increased restrictions doesn't mean that motor trucking is going to decrease. The motor truck is here to stay. It has undergone big development and gotten much encouragement because of the highly satisfactory service it renders, but there are conditions which cannot be ignored, whether it concerns motor trucks or something else, and it is because of that that property owners and civic organizations urge restrictions.

A situation which is coming in for attention now at Washington, in addition to the reduction in the loads permitted on eight of the bridges there, is the menace to the highways and the peace and tranquility of the homes that is attributed to the motor trucks. Washington residents are urging that they be kept off of residential streets since they shake the houses, loosen the plaster, wake the babies and through the noise and vibration even keep the adults awake. They are referred to as a detriment to property, and the cause of a large economic waste to the highways.

From the standpoint of the truck owners the claim is made that the trouble is all due to the uneven streets and that there is no vibration or damage on the smooth surfaced streets.

There are many householders outside of Washington who will sympathize with the protests which are being offered there against the vibration from the heavily loaded trucks and the manner in which they pound through the streets responsive to every little defect. Houses are made to settle worse than when trains go by. Perhaps there are bumpy conditions and holes which need to be remedied for the heavily loaded trucks but if the jarring of houses and business blocks cannot be stopped in any other way it must be expected that it will be brought about through increased restrictions. Modern highways have invited a different form of transportation, but those who are acquainted with the situation knew that the trouble from the vibration comes from the heavily loaded trucks. Residents of Washington are speaking for a great number of sufferers elsewhere.

OUR HOMICIDE CASES

Statistics may be uninteresting things but they reveal conditions which might not be known otherwise. We know, for instance, that there are many murders in this country every year and yet we would have difficulty, in actually drawing lessons from, the manner in which the guilty are punished if statistics were not kept concerning them.

We are told by the statistical bureau of the Metropolitan Insurance company that there were 10,140 homicides in this country during 1925 which is 24 times as large as would have been the case had murder, casualty or crime in general been handled in the same manner in this country that it has in England. We have in fact six times as many murders as Canada.

The insurance company has had particular interest in the police and judicial action following homicide cases among its policyholders and found that for two years 1923 and 1924 there were 411 of its policyholders slain. There were 64 cases where they were killed by police under conditions which justified it, leaving 326 assailants answerable to the law. Of them 34 committed suicide and 13 died before arraignment, but of the remaining 453 assailants 84 had not been caught within a year, while of the 374 caught 146 were released by magistrates or grand juries, eight were declared insane, 258 were brought to trial, 63 were acquitted and nine were still pending a year after the crime. In 187 cases there were verdicts of guilty and prison sentences of varying length were imposed, with nine released on suspended sentences or fined and seven of the eight sentenced to death were executed.

It is not to be supposed that the insurance company's cases were any different than would have been the case with 411 others. It throws a light on the manner in which those engaged in crime can figure it out that they can go the limit and stand about as good a chance of escaping punishment as of being made to pay the penalty for their acts. The marked contrast to the situation across the water should come in for closer study and attention.

PERILS IN THE HIGHWAY

Within the past few days the lives of two boys have been snuffed out because of the distressing habit of rushing into the lane of automobile traffic without giving heed to the danger and without apparently thinking what they were doing, otherwise than getting where they wanted to go as quickly as possible.

Both of these fatalities occurred where traffic was not heavy. One was in a village during a fire call, when the desire to get there completely eclipsed all thought of such harm as paralyzed when he ran from in back of one vehicle directly in front of another.

In the other case the boy had alighted from one vehicle and as he walked around it he was struck by another machine and sustained injuries from which he died.

It is not to be supposed that the driver of either car which struck the boys would have deliberately done it, or that they would not have done their utmost to have prevented the accidents had there been any warning as to their presence.

These deplorable cases are among the many which go to show the increasing need of paying due regard to the growing menace in the highways and of employing all caution for the protection of self and others under such circumstances.

These deaths were needless. Many others have occurred under similar circumstances, but how long will it be before the efforts in behalf of greater safety in the highways are headed in such a manner as to overcome such waste of human life? The streets are not places to play or places into which children should rush without looking.

FINGERPRINTING

Almost every day there is news of children lost, persons being found who cannot tell who they are and of other instances which reveal no means of disclosing identity. Dependence is placed upon descriptions, picture or something in the clothing that will reveal the name or the names of persons who can recognize them. In many cases it is all a matter of good fortune and there is a real obstacle when the persons actually set out to keep their real identity from becoming known.

Finger printing is doing a great deal to relieve the situation. It stands as a witness in the way of one person passing himself off for another, and is thus a protective measure of high value.

For the purpose of taking care of many possibilities that might not ordinarily be anticipated, there are those who are enthusiastically advocating every chance they get the taking of foot prints of babies soon after birth. This is extremely valuable in hospitals for the prevention of mixups, and what holds good in hospitals is equally true of foundling asylums.

The merits of such a system are self evident. It carries no detrimental features. The only objection that can be raised to it is that criminals are fingerprinted, but it isn't the fingerprinting that makes them criminals or that has anything to do with their unlawful acts. It is used simply for purposes of identification and there are many times when that is as desirable for the innocent as well as the guilty. Means of identification sought, numberless times might have been obtained had there been a much more general resort to the practice of fingerprinting.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Remember tonight's republican caucus and attend it with due regard for your duty.

Tonight's caucus in the town hall should have the attendance of as many of the party members as can get there.

MAKING EDDIE AGREE

The impatient gentleman waiting to use the public phone was conscious that the door to the booth was open a crack and that he could hear perfectly everything said by the wisp of a girl in the string-bean coat, the bandit-wrapped tight hat and the invisible hosiery.

"Hello, dearie," she chirped. The impatient gentleman groaned and looked at his watch. "She's due to chatter to that boy friend for 3 minutes straight," he told himself hopelessly, craning his neck toward the other booths all filled.

"Why, you oughta know," the girl in subdued agerrieved tones. Anybody else got the right to call you dearie. I'd like to know? Hunh? Aw, you know I didn't mean it. I was just joking! Don't you feel good or something, Eddie, you're so sort of peevish?

"Yes, I remember what you said last night, but I didn't think you really meant it—you were just mad and I always make allowances for folks when they are mad. Aw, you did not have good reason to be that way! Why you were way over to the other side of the room that last time he asked me to dance and how was I to know you were coming right over? Listen, Eddie, you mustn't talk that way. I can explain just as well as not!"

"Forty minutes," the gentleman in a hurry said pessimistically.

"Say," went on the girl in the booth, "why'n't you come on over tonight and let me tell you about it. It's so hard to say what you mean over the telephone. We could talk so much more confidently and—Why, yes, of course there's nothing I couldn't tell you over the phone, but I sort of thought I'd like to see you anyhow—"

"Bolt shop," muttered the impatient gentleman.

"Eddie," said the voice tremolo, "it'll be the first time in weeks that you've allowed chatter over after me and I'll seem so queer—aw, come on over—we'll just stay home and I'll make some of that swell fudge you like—"

"Feed him!" the impatient gentleman said grimly. "That's the system, sister!"

The string-bean coat surged closer to the phone and she listened intently for a few minutes. Her hand clutched the receiver with a sudden tightness. "Now listen, Eddie," she said a trifle sharply, "just a minute—you don't have to go back to work for just a minute, do you? I never heard you go on so and there isn't a word of it like what it really is, honest! Why, I don't give a snap of my fingers for that Arnold boy—"

"Tut, tut, bad break!" said the impatient man, shaking his head. "Too anxious!"

"Honest, Eddie!" the voice went on with a little roughening. "You know how it is when the music's going and the lights and everything and everybody laughing and having a good time—maybe I did dance with him a lot—but, I was thinking about you all the time honest I was! I couldn't stand there like a wallflower, could I, when you weren't around and he sat me to dance? You oughtn't to lay it up against me and act like this—honest, Eddie, come on over tonight and let me tell you all about it—I was so paralyzed last night when you blew up that I just couldn't think of a thing to say, that's why I didn't say anything then—aw, I have not had 12 hours to think up an explanation and I feel awfully."

"Stop crawling!" snapped the impatient gentleman, waving a hand at the booth. "No matter how wrong she is, a girl should never crawl—"

"Won't you, Eddie? Come on over about 8 and—"

"Go on over, you poor simp, and square it up!" growled the impatient gentleman as there was a sound of tears in the voice in the booth. "What's he want to be such a stiff-neck for? Hey, sister, he isn't worth it. Tell 'em side!"

"Will you, Eddie, honest? Will you, honest?" They received snapped up and the string-bean girl stood there a moment, dabbed her eyes with her handkerchief relievedly and then got out her vanity case to repair damages. The impatient gentleman waited patiently till she was through and had hurried out with downcast eyes and flushed cheeks.

"She's a nice little girl," he said, looking after her. "That Eddie's a boob! Say, geewilikins, if I have—it's forgotten what it was I was in such a hurry to telephone about!"—Chicago News.

Stories That Recall Others

Not Her Idea of Americanism

A young couple was seeking an apartment. Plenty of apartments but they had a boy.

They liked one apartment and on informing the custodian they had a child, that worthy immediately grew indifferent and told the couple children were not permitted in the apartment.

"We have seven couples in this building who have been here five to seven years, who have given us notice that they would move if there were any children in the apartment," the custodian said.

"Well, I'm glad to know that for I am raising a fine American boy and I wouldn't want him to come in contact with that kind of people," said the mother.

A Sum Shot

The beginner at golf was attempting his first game. His instructor calls this:

"I started him in on a short, easy hole and by some lucky chance he sent the ball straight off the tee, onto the green and it finally dropped gently into the hole. The man made no comment as we proceeded to tee up for the next hole. Again he struck the ball fairly and it sailed straight away for the next green, rolling well onto it. But the player seemed irritated instead of properly astonished. He scratched his head and muttered: 'Humph, by cracky, I missed that one.'"

From Small Beginnings

Sir Henry Irving, the Great Shakespearean Actor

Hundreds of thousands of American people saw Sir Henry Irving play his great Shakespearean parts and applauded him as the greatest actor of his time. Of these hundreds of thousands very few, indeed, knew that Sir Henry Irving was born as plain John Brodribb; Samuel Clemens took the name of Mark Twain, William S. Porter called himself O. Henry, John Rowlands became Henry M. Stanley, and John Brodribb made himself Sir Henry Irving. In every case the assumed name became the name known to the public.

As a boy John Brodribb was set to work in a mercantile house in London. He had had very little opportunity to go to school, and he fully expected to continue in the handling of goods and the keeping of accounts.

From the very first he had had marked imitative ability. In school and in business he amused his fellows by playing parts. He had fluency in speech and a quick memory. Added to that he had the ability to see the characteristic expressions or gestures of the people around him. Indeed, he was often irreverent in imitating to perfection the humorous characteristics of his superiors in position. He followed his own inclination and became an actor long before he was 20.

For many years the young man, acting under the stage name of Henry Irving, was simply an ordinary traveling actor, playing all kinds of parts in all kinds of places. His ability, naturally great, increased, and he went from the wandering circus to the great theaters in London. He was 23 years old when he made his first great success in one of Shakespeare's plays. At 41 he first played the part of Shylock, showing originality and peculiar sympathy of understanding. From then until his death at 67 he was recognized as the greatest actor of his time. Years before his death he received the honor of knighthood.

Patiently and slowly he had made himself a great interpreter of life.

Stomach Troubles Are Due to Acidity

Tells of Pleasant Home Treatment to Bring Swift Relief.

So-called Stomach Troubles—indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, sourness, etc., are in probably nine cases out of ten, evidence of "too much acid in the stomach" souring the food, causing the formation of gas and starting acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes a full, oppressive burning feeling known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining. Get rid of Gas and Acidity, and you get rid of Indigestion.

To stop or prevent the sourness and gas, to neutralize the stomach acids and keep the stomach sweet and free from Indigestion, a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia, should be taken in a little water after eating or whenever gas, sourness, pain or acidity is felt. This quickly sweetens the stomach, neutralizes the acidity, stops the pain and is harmless and inexpensive to use.

Bisurated Magnesia, powder or tablets only, can be obtained from any drug store and its daily use keeps the stomach in fine condition, enabling it to do its work without the aid of artificial digestants.

BEST MUSICIAN BEGINS TO STUDY BEFORE AGE OF 10

LONDON, May 13 (AP)—A musician cannot be made after the age of 14, is the declaration of Dr. John E. Borland, for 17 years the directing master of a music class of half a million children in the London elementary schools, who has retired.

Dr. Borland said the English really are a musical nation, but children who are naturally musical have so little chance to acquire a real love of music that it is not strange the English do not excel along musical lines.

ART EXHIBIT OF NATIONAL PERSONAGES SEQUEL FEATURE

PHILADELPHIA, May 13 (AP)—A gallery of portraiture, depicting many of America's greatest personages, is a feature of the Sesqui-Centennial exposition announced by the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts.

The plan provides for the removal of all pictures now on its walls and the entire space devoted to the display of what the academy terms "a gallery of national portraiture."

The exhibition is intended as "an illustrated history of the century and a half of American independence, and will not fail to show incidentally the rise and progress of the machine arts during that period."

Works to be eligible for the gallery must represent persons who had some part in local, state or national history or done by an artist of ability, important in the history of American art.

No more, no less . . . but Quaker Oats has the flavor

THE difference in breakfast cost is in their favor. The price is mostly in the name.

Millions demand the Quaker brand because of its toasty, wonderful flavor. For flavor is the important point in food.

Some 50 years were spent perfecting that famous Quaker flavor. Once you taste it, you are spoiled for ordinary oats.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. And that makes laxatives less often needed. Proteids, carbohydrates and vitamines and "bulk" are thus combined to make Quaker Oats an excellently balanced ration.

PIERCE CAR IS FOUND UNDER EAST SIDE SHED

The Cadillac touring car owned by Charles S. Pierce of Scotland road, which was stolen Wednesday evening from the rear of the Breed theatre on Church street, was found Thursday evening under a shed near the East Side Silk mill. Sergt. John Casey, in charge of the desk at police headquarters, was notified about 8:30 o'clock that the missing machine was under the shed on Stanton avenue. He detailed Officer Joseph Gendron to drive the car to police headquarters and on arrival of the machine at police headquarters, notified Mr. Pierce who shortly afterwards claimed the machine.

There were about three gallons of gasoline in the tank, showing that the car had not been driven very far by the person who took it. Nothing was missing from the car and it was in as good condition as at the time it was taken. The watchman at the silk mill said that the touring car had been driven under the shed about 10 o'clock Wednesday evening by a man in overalls. He thought nothing of it at the time as he supposed it belonged to an official connected with the silk mill, other than stating that the man who left the car under the shed wore overalls, the watchman could give no further description of him.

George E. Alley, 76 year old draftsman on the Boston, Revere beach and Lynn railroad has just rounded out a half century of service without loss of a single working day. He took the job on the Saugus river bridge on May 12, 1875 and has been there since.

FARM AT STATE HOSPITAL IS TO PLANT 40 ACRES WITH POTATOES

Planting time is on at the big farm at the Norwich state hospital, although the season is about three weeks behind its ordinary schedule. The ground is very dry, which combined with cold nights, has made very unfavorable conditions for germination for whatever seed has already been planted.

About the only crop which has come along well under the present conditions is the peas, of which three acres of a dwarf known variety have been planted and are up and growing well.

40 Acres in Potatoes.

The potato acreage will be slightly more this year than last, amounting to 40 acres. Of this 25 acres have already been planted in one plot with Irish Cobbler and Gold Medal seed and there are 15 acres more to go in. The planting is all done by hand by the patients at the hospital.

Other crops which are planted are the onions, both sets and seed, carrots and parsnips.

Ensilage and Broom Corn.

The planting of ensilage corn has just been started. There are 60 acres to be put in, which will be in three separate plots.

The broom corn seed is also about to be planted. Last year the crop of broom corn raised provided enough stock from which to make all the brooms that were used in the institution and there is still enough remaining to take care of the need for brooms until the new crop of corn is available. The brooms are made by the patients in the industrial department of the institution.

New Greenhouse Completed.

The main part of the new greenhouse has just been completed, but the work room remains to be finished. This spring an unusually fine lot of cabbage, tomato and pepper plants has been raised in the greenhouse and 5,000 plants of early cabbage have already been set out. Although cabbage plants are hardy and will stand considerable cold, the nights this spring have brought on killing frosts that have badly damaged the plants set out at the state hospital.

There are about 10,000 plants of tomato, peppers and other varieties remaining in the greenhouse which are still to be set out when weather conditions are favorable.

All the plowing and harrowing on the fields is done by the use of Fordson tractors.

Propagating Pine Seedlings.

An interesting development in the use of a part of the farm land at the state hospital by the state forestry commission is a propagation area for white and red pine. A section to the east of the road near the Brewster's Neck chapel has been devoted to use and many thousand seedlings of these two varieties of pine have been set out there.

DR. BURDSALL SPEAKER BEFORE NURSES' MEETING

Mental hygiene aims to better the treatment of mental diseases, but even more important in its program is the prevention of mental disease and the increasing of human efficiency and happiness through the direction of better mental adjustments," said Dr. Elliot Burdsall of the Norwich state hospital in a lecture at the Backus hospital in which he clearly explained the nurses' part in this program of prevention. He presented in an interesting and graphic fashion the modern methods of dealing with incipient mental disorders, and said that Norwich is fortunate in having a neuropsychiatric clinic in connection with the general hospital, to which such cases of incipient mental disorder may be referred for treatment.

NORWICH MAKES PROTEST AT ABOLISHING EXAMINATIONS

The Norwich chamber of commerce has entered a protest against the abolishment of the custom of holding prospective drivers' examinations in this city and has mailed a letter of protest to Superintendent Robert T. Hurley of the state police. It is through the recommendations of Sergeant Clifford N. Gorgas that Norwich has "been left out in the cold" as the sergeant has succeeded in abolishing the one day examination each week in this city and has substituted in its stead a week examination plan in New London, the examining officer being stationed at the motor vehicle branch office in New London. Hereafter, under the present plan, Norwich people will have to go either to New London or Jewett City to take their examinations for drivers' licenses.

The letter from Secretary John J. O'Rourke has sent to Supt. Hurley reads as follows:

"Norwich, Conn., May 10, 1926.
Mr. Robert T. Hurley, Supt.
State Police,
Hartford, Conn.
My dear Mr. Hurley:

It was with genuine surprise to Norwich and to the citizens of this section generally that the examination of prospective automobile licenses has been abolished, and all local applicants must now go to either Jewett City or New London.

This is a distinct detriment to Norwich in view of the fact that Norwich is the largest and most important community in eastern Connecticut. May we be permitted at this time to quote a few figures in substantiation of this statement. The municipal business of Norwich for 1925 amounted to $51,998,317. New London $27,016,795, all other towns in New London county $48,155,280. A comparison in the jobbing business between Norwich and New London shows $13,455,000 while New London had $10,250,000. The banking business likewise bears out our contention of the importance of Norwich. The total banking transactions including saving bank deposits were $475,871,727. New London $228,470,555, all other towns in New London county $15,561,980. You will please find enclosed a map of eastern Connecticut together with important business statistics of this section indicated thereon.

In view of the above quoted figures it seems very strange that the people of Norwich and its immediate vicinity should be compelled to go to New London or to Jewett City in order to be examined for automobile licenses. It is only too apparent that Norwich is the more central point for New London county and there seems to be no justification for the discontinuance of the practice of holding examinations in Norwich. The population of Norwich is over 30,000 with a trading area of approximately 60,000 more people which seems to us as another reason for the injustice in discontinuing applicants for examination in our city.

May we have an opportunity for representatives of the Norwich chamber of commerce to discuss this matter with you, either in Hartford or in Norwich?

By the board of directors,
Respectfully yours,
JOHN J. O'ROURKE
Secretary."

DEPARTMENT HAD THREE CALLS FOR FIRES

Three telephone calls were answered Thursday by the local fire department. The first call came in at 5:16 a. m. for what was thought to be a chimney fire at No. 159 West Main street, owned by Louis Markoff and occupied by Peter Harris. A backdraft had caused the house to fill with smoke.

At 10:45 o'clock there was a call for a rubbish and grass fire at No. 59 Forest street. The fire was quickly extinguished. At 2:09 o'clock in the afternoon a call was received from the residence of H. H. Vignot, No. 218 Washington street for a chimney fire. A small amount of chemical was used on the blaze.

ORDAINED TO PRIESTHOOD AT ST. JOSEPH'S CATHEDRAL

Charles H. Corcoran of this city was one of three Connecticut boys ordained to the priesthood Thursday morning in St. Joseph's cathedral, Hartford, by Rt. Rev. Maurice F. McAuliffe, auxiliary bishop. A large number of interested Norwich friends attended the ordination services.

The young priest is the son of Mrs. Lila Fitch Corcoran of 76 Fountain street, widow of Charles W. Corcoran. For the past year Father Corcoran has been a prefect in St. Thomas' seminary, Hartford. He will sing his first mass in St. Patrick's church in this city on Sunday morning.

Following his graduation from St. Patrick's school and three years' study at Norwich Free Academy, the young ecclesiastic matriculated at St. Thomas' seminary. After his course of study there he was assigned by Bishop Nilan to St. Bernard's seminary, Rochester, N. Y., for his five years' course in philosophy and theology. At the conclusion of the Rochester course he was recalled to St. Thomas' where he has been teaching while continuing preparation and study for the priesthood.

GROWING PHEASANT FOOD AT FRED STONE'S RANCH

Fred Stone, the comedian, has been spending several days at his Star ranch in East Lyme.

Among the other changes being accomplished at the ranch by Manager Morgan Chaney is the planting of 5,000 young trees and bayberry bushes. The bayberries are being grown for the consumption of the quail and pheasants which are kept at the place.

The coyote, which Manager Chaney recently brought back from Texas has attracted a good deal of attention. It being kept in the rear of the ranch house. It is somewhat tame but is secured to a tree by a long leash, which gives the western animal plenty of space to run around.

Fred Stone left Thursday for a week end in New York. He is in company with Rex Beach, the author, will return to the ranch Tuesday for a few days fishing.

BUS AND AUTOMOBILE COLLIDED IN GROTON

Antonio O. Fajer, bus driver, of 48 Cooley street, North Agawam, Mass., is under arrest on a reckless driving charge, and Harry Ellison, part owner in the Spicer Ice and Coal Co., Groton, sustained bruises and cuts about the left hand as the result of a collision between a bus operated by the Springfield Coach and Bus Co., and a coupe driven by Ellison, Wednesday night about 9 o'clock, near the entrance to the state highway bridge in Groton. The large bus, with no passengers aboard, crashed through a section of wooden rail fence near the Thames street parklet, and by a few feet only it missed dropping over a rock-strewn embankment.

Paper will be presented in the Groton town court Monday morning.

POLES WITH TRANSFORMER DISFIGURE STATION ENTRANCE

Now that the Hayes Pullman lunch cart has been removed from the space at the New Haven station entrance, a new disfigurement to the landscape has appeared in the section by the municipal gas and electric department of two poles supporting a transformer and platform between them. They occupy almost the most conspicuous place in the plaza, being set up at the foot of the sidewalk that runs down by the side of the Buckingham Memorial property.

A citizen viewing this unsightly blot Thursday remarked that a great public service could be performed if the same influences that succeeded in having the lunch cart moved would exercise an equally potent influence to accomplish the removal of these poles.

Frank Drago's Pupils in Recital.

Pupils of Frank Drago, well known Hartford and Norwich violin teacher, were heard Wednesday evening in an interesting recital in the auditorium of Christ church cathedral parish house, Hartford. Of special importance was the first appearance in Hartford of Miss Irene Paul, coloratura soprano, coming from Holyoke, Mass., where she won noteworthy musical successes. She delighted her Hartford audience.

Earl Swan, Norwich, pupil of Mr. Drago, won many new friends in his Hartford debut with his fine playing and pleasing personality. His selections were Concerto in D, (Allegro Moderato), Seitz; Barcarolle from "Tales of Hoffman," Offenbach.

Miss Bertha Blumenthal in rendering a group of piano solos left little to be desired, her playing left an impression which was altogether favorable as she rendered Chanson, Russe, Smith; Evening Chimes, Heins.

Scared While Driving Automobile.

A woman living on Prospect street was scared into a hysterical state on Thursday afternoon when driving her automobile on the Newent road towards Jewett City by having a man on a motorcycle in front of her brandish something at her which she thought was a revolver. She was too scared to obtain the registration number of the motorcycle or to be able to give any description of the man. She turned her machine around and found some man to drive it home for her, reporting to the police after her arrival here.

KANSAS CITY BUILDING
FIFTH AVENUE at 41st STREET

KANSAS CITY, May 15.—Two merchants of Kansas City have set out to transform their Main street to the middle western Fifth Avenue.

Sinclair Lewis' "Main Street" failed in her attempt to make over the Main Street of Gopher Prairie, Minn., but Kansas City citizens, realizing different methods and the progress so far by residents of their own cities,

In 1922, Robert Gross, then president of the Fifth Avenue association of New York, came to Kansas City and told of the improvements that had been made on the most fashionable street in America through the cooperation of its property owners and tenants. The Kansas City merchants adopted the program to their own Main street and just recently announced its purposes as follows:

To cooperate with property owners, lease holders and tenants in maintaining cleanliness, upkeep and improvements of property.

To eliminate overhead signs and other obstructions.

To check illegal bill-posting.

To constantly study to improve traffic conditions.

To bring about architectural betterment and conduct of building operations.

To prevent sanitary violations and noises and nuisances generally.

The first step was a request that all overhead advertising and other insignia of the upstanding school of merchants of yesteryear be taken down. The members compiled the street railways company took its yellow signals and a number of other small contributions made the general effect a worthy improvement. Almost overnight the street assumed a "dressed-up" appearance.

Success in the first campaign inspired the organization to a greater campaign, which now calls for an elaborate street and building renovation. "Follow the leader" became the game and the Walnut street and the Grand avenue associations are under way with the McGee street merchants shortly to follow. These groups are located on the principal downtown thoroughfares.

PROGRESS IN HAITI SHOWN IN ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET

WASHINGTON, May 13 (AP)—A reassuring glimpse of progress in the island republic of Haiti is afforded the outside world through dissemination of an illustrated booklet covering in graphic fashion the strides made in recent years in many lines of endeavor.

The booklet, printed in French, has found its way through official channels into many foreign countries. Copies of it have been placed about here by the Haitian legation. It contains upwards of 100 pictures of improved roads, modern buildings, and other construction projects in the island.

In the last ten years, more than 1,000 miles of paved roads have been laid, replacing highways that had deteriorated until they were little more than trails. A concrete highway connecting Port-au-Prince, the Haitian capital and Santo Domingo, capital city of the Dominican republic has been completed by the Haitians up to the border. When the Dominican portion is completed the trip between the two capitals may be done in hours, where formerly it took days.

This progress has been particularly notable during the administration of the present chief executive, President Borno, said a report in the booklet made by the Haitian minister of public works. His administration also has seen the construction of 14 schools, 13 hospitals and 21 lighthouses; installation of an automatic telephone system, and material progress in irrigation and cannals. Since 1921, there has been an increase of 250 per cent in the number of telephones in use and the telegraph system has been augmented and improved.

In order to foster trade between the United States and Haiti, the present Haitian import Customs tariff is being revised.

Some 350 American marines still remain in Haiti, completing their work of reorganizing the native constabulary.

UNUSUAL OCCUPATIONS OF NEW YORKERS

NEW YORK, May 13 (AP)—Of the many strange ways which people have found to make a living in New York city perhaps the strangest is that selected by Bill Smith. Beside being a porter with the Federal Reserve bank of New York, Bill is a champion duster, and confines his activities to gold bullion.

The gold stored in the underground vaults of the bank must be kept just as clean as the floors and office furniture in other parts of the building. Accordingly it is dusted whenever the vaults are opened. This may be every month, every three months, or every six months, depending upon how fast Uncle Sam spends his money.

On these occasions it is nothing for Bill to grasp his trusty duster, step into the vault, and flick the grey coating from several billion dollars worth of gleaming gold bars in an hour or two.

The gold is piled in a manner to make dusting an intricate job, but Bill approaches his subject in a masterful way. His dexterity frequently amazes the guards who accompany him into the vault.

As a runner up for the laurels of New York's oddest job holder there is Walter Baugh, who finds the commercial possibilities in fishing tackle to his liking. Each morning at 5:30 Mr. Baugh may be seen marching through Battery Park clutching a burden of fishing tackle and blood worms. He is tall, has only one eye, and eeks out a fair existence peddling rods, lines and bait to those followers of Izaac Walton who set out via Battery Park.

Fancying neither fishing tackle nor dusting, there are other individuals who wrest the necessities of life and some of the luxuries from the odds and ends abandoned by their fellowmen. Some persons salvage waste paper from the streets, working that in the first flushes of early dawn to beat the competition offered by the city street cleaning department. Tinfoil, paper salvaging are carefully baled and sold, while bits of lead are rolled into balls and bring a higher price.

Others make it their business to stay close to the docks and pounce upon bits of cargo spilled when ships are unloading. Fruit and nuts they seize, broken pieces of cheese, or occasionally a bolt of cloth which has slipped unobserved from some cargo slings, leaking cans of olive oil always bring to light several men with sponges and buckets.

Although confining their activities to the shore, these men have counterparts afloat. Those making a living from the water do not fish. Seated in small boats, they drift about the harbor salvaging drift wood which is sold along Park avenue impregnated as it is with salt and chemicals from the harbor waters, or wood produces vari-colored light in the drawing room fireplaces of the wealthy.

POMPEY AND BUBBLING OVER ARE FAVORITES TO WIN KENTUCKEY DERBY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 13.—(AP)—Derby devotees throughout the country tonight turned toward the racing secretary's office at Churchill Downs for at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning entries for the fifty second Kentucky Derby will go through the box. An hour or so later they will be made public and for the first time it will be known officially how many of the 134 original nominees have survived the training grind and will run for the $50,000 added purse and the glory that goes to a Derby winner.

Pompey and Bubbling Over, representatives of the east and of the west, now appear to be the outstanding favorites. Both have shown that they are superior runners, and turfmen, after watching Pompey show a sensational burst of speed on his workout this morning, called it a two-horse race. But Derby history shows that it is not always the favorite that wins, or even shows, as was the case last year when Quatrain was badly beaten.

That the Derby will be one of the fastest in several years seems probable because of the known speed of the two favorites. They are expected to begin running at the rise of the barrier and try to keep ahead of the pack for the whole mile and a quarter. With few exceptions, the horse that got the lead in the first quarter has won previous Derbys.

The greatest throng of all time is coming to the Derby this year. Seventy four special trains, the first few of which arrived today, have been arranged to bring a large quota of visitors to Louisville, passenger departments of eight railroads reported today.

Pullman sleeping cars on these trains and on regular trains due here are expected to total 740, according to an estimate made by the pullman company.

With arrangements for rail transportation practically completed, various agencies in the city prepared to entertain and house the visitors. Hotel facilities were so crowded today that a murder trial had to be postponed because court officials could not find a place to keep the jury during the trial.

Intersectional interest will be greater this year than ever before because of the unusually large number of eastern horses here for the race. Six horses owned by eastern sportsmen are to be entered, and about the same number will represent the west. The past performances of these candidates as two year olds, taken as a whole, probably have not been equalled by any former aspirants for the Derby in the 51 years that the event has been decided. And of these, Pompey was the champion with eight victories, two seconds and one eighth in eleven starts. His money winnings for the year totaled $121,620. Canter also won more than $100,000 as a two year old.

AMERICAN TENNIS STARS LEAVE FOR ABROAD SATURDAY

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—The final contingent of American tennis players who will represent this country in international team matches and championship tournaments abroad will embark for France Saturday. In the party will be Vincent Richards, Howard O. Kinsey and Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup.

Richards and Kinsey will represent America in team contests against England and France, while both will play in the French and British championship events. Mrs. Jessup's arrival in Europe will complete an American women's team of five players which also will oppose British and French players. Helen Wills, American champion, Mary K. Brown, Elizabeth Ryan and Eleanor Goss already are in France.

Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste, French Davis cup stars, who scored victories over Richards and Tilden on indoor courts here last winter, are expected to furnish the chief opposition of the American men's team abroad. The trip takes Kinsey on his first invasion of European courts.

Miss Wills and Richards will pair in mixed doubles events, the United States Lawn Tennis association announced, while Kinsey will be partnered by either Miss Browne or Miss Ryan.

WALKER CUP PLAYERS HAVE PRACTICE ROUNDS

LONDON, May 13.—(AP)—The American Walker Cup team planned to rest today in London, but eventually Sweetser, Gardner, Gunn, Ouimet and Bobby Jones, who with others were the guests of Lord Riddell at Walton Heath yesterday, again sailed forth into the Surrey Hills for further practice, this time on the fairways and greens of Sunningdale and Wentworth.

At the Wentworth club Ouimet, Jones, George Duncan and Dr. H. Roberts of Stokepool played a four-ball match, which the Americans won 3 up. Jones turned in a 67 which was the best card of the lot.

Francis Ouimet spent most of the time on the round in experimenting with his long game, and consequently took 77. Duncan had a 71. Both he and Jones came home in 38.

At Sunningdale, Gardner, Sweetser, Gunn and DeMontmorency played a practice match, Sweetser, leading with 68 for the old course.

Herman Kayoes Manty

CLEVELAND, May 12.—(AP)— Babe Herman, New York, knocked out Charley Manty, New Bedford, Mass., in the eighth round of their scheduled 12 round bout here tonight. Manty went down for a count of nine before taking the final count.

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—The New York Giants outplugged Cleveland today and won their second straight game from the Indians, 12 to 9. Babe Ruth led the attack with two home runs and a double driving in six tallies altogether and bringing his circuit clouting total up to ten for the season.

Joe Dugan, Yankee third sacker and leading American league hitter, was forced to retire when he had a finger on his right hand split by a line drive from Luke Sewell's bat in the fourth.

TIGERS TAKE LOOSE GAME FROM RED SOX

BOSTON, May 13.—(AP)—Loose fielding and heavy hitting marked today's 13 to 10 victory of Ty Cobb's Tigers over the Red Sox. Both teams used four pitchers, Boston's moundsmen granting 12 passes.

The hitting of Wingo for Detroit and five errors by the locals aided Detroit in evening the series.

RISKO-STRIBLING FIGHT AT GARDEN TONIGHT

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—Two of the most rugged young battlers now in the limelight, Young Stribling of Georgia and Johnny Risko of Cleveland, swap punches tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden in a ten-round bout that has the fistic railbirds guessing.

Sentiment appears likely to be evenly divided when they step into the ring for a scrap that has more than usual significance for a non-championship affair. It marks another bid for fame by Risko, who has been advancing by leaps and bounds in heavyweight prominence. While Stribling's showing will have an important bearing on his prospective fight with Paul Berlenbach for the light heavyweight title at the Yankee Stadium, June 10.

Stribling just turned voting age, gained a newspaper verdict over Risko in their only previous encounter, a 10-round no decision go last July. Since then the 22-year-old Clevelander has nearly knocked out Berlenbach and given Jack Delaney a rattling fight although losing the decision. It was in the Garden, March 19, that Risko scored his sensational victory over Berlenbach.

Risko, weighing about 190 pounds, will have an advantage of probably 15 pounds over Stribling.

RUTH IS EVEN WITH HIS RECORD OF 1921

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—By driving out two homers today and bringing his season's total up to ten, Babe Ruth reached an even footing with his pace in 1921, when he garnered his record crop of 59 circuit blows. The Yankee slugger must collect his 11th tomorrow, however, if he is to keep up with his record gait.

Since getting started, however, the Bambino has been hitting for the circuit at an even faster clip this year than he did five seasons ago. In 1921 he got his first homer on April 16 but it was April 29 before he blasted out the first one this spring. He has collected his last six in nine days.

REDS RALLY IN SEVENTH TO BEAT OUT BRAVES

CINCINNATI, May 13.—(AP)—Triples by Picinich and Mays in the seventh inning started a rally which enabled Cincinnati to defeat Boston today four to one. Picinichs three bagger came with two on base while Mays scored Picinich with his punch. Mays pitched brilliant ball, allowing only six scattered hits.

The game was a scoreless hurling duel for four innings, but the Sox found the ball after that and scored in each of the last five rounds.

EPSOM DERBY THIS YEAR IS VERY MYSTERIOUS

LONDON, May 13.—(AP)—The Epsom Derby, blue ribboned event of the turf, scheduled at Epsom Downs on June 2, this year has been termed the "mystery derby," by turf followers.

The activities of the principal candidates have been shrouded in mystery, as a result of the general strike and the curtailment of newspapers. For more than a week not a word from the training stables reached London and the general public although the strike has been called off is still unaware of the state of the betting or who is left in the race. The situation may be straightened out by June 2, but the racing public has still a long way to go to catch up on the news.

Trainers, of course, could not afford to interrupt their preparations during the strike, and they will have suffered very little financial loss, being protected by contract with their employers. But the thousands of managers, jockeys, apprentices, and others—making their living by the turf were heavily hit by the abandonment of racing during the strike. Outside a favored few the turfites were worse off than the strikers, because they had no society to look after their interest.

HAGEN-FARRELL MATCH AT GOLF CLUB ATTRACTING WIDE INTEREST

The Hagen-Farrell match is attracting even wider attention than was at first anticipated by the committee in charge of the match. Requests for tickets for the match are coming in from all sections of the state and it is expected that practically every golf club in Connecticut will be represented. This will be Hagen's farewell appearance in Connecticut before sailing for England where he is entered in a number of British tournaments.

One of the busiest men at the Norwich Golf club for the past few weeks has been Greenkeeper Skelly, who has put in many hours of work in getting the new course into shape for the coming match. The warm sunshine of the past few days has done wonders for the fairways and also for the greens. It is expected that by Sunday at 3 o'clock when the match starts that the course will be second to none in New England.

Johnny Farrell will be entertained by Dr. and Mrs. Franklin S. Wilcox over the week end, Farrell coming to Norwich on Saturday and Hagen, who plays at Clinton Saturday, will not arrive until Sunday.

"THE FARM PROBLEM"

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

In this talk I want to get down to at least one rather fundamental idea. And I have in mind two possible ways of beginning it. One is rather formal and dignified, something like this:—"The spirit of the age is materialistic. It stresses having rather than being. It greatly desires corporeal possessions, but has small regard for spiritual values. It is enslaved to things, and contemptuous of ideals." Etc., etc.

But, do you know, that sounds a little too dogmatic and preachy. As a certain university president once said to me, —he's an old college classmate of mine and we could talk unrestrainedly; —"This high-brow business doesn't get anywhere."

So I think I'll begin in a more modern style. I won't follow the high-brow line, but will try something simpler and, I hope, more taking.

We're all of us, business men, professional men, laboring men, farmers and so on,—we're all of us constantly and so intently occupied in grubbing out a living such as we and the wife and the weans want, that we're coming to think it is the chief end and aim of life. It takes pretty much all our time to gather in spondulix enough to pay for bread, butter, beef, boots and taxes. From that sorry fact it's an easy step to the feeling that the gathering of spondulix is THE one important thing.—There's a big difference between THE important thing and AN important thing. He would be a blind teacher and would deny that the preservation of physical life and the scraping together of means for such preservation is AN important thing. It is. But it's only one thing, and not the whole team, and the little dog under the wagon, too.

Now, congress is pulling hair and a whole horde of self-appointed agricultural doctors, including a lot of quacks and charlatans, are waving their arms and yelling over "the farm problem." I confess, right here and now, that I don't know what the "farm problem" really is. But I do know what these ballyhooing fakirs think it is.

Their idea of it is that the farmer wants to get more money with less work. And they think they're winning his eternal gratitude if they can put together some sort of scheme which will at least seem to tend towards that end. That's as far as their remedies appear to aim.

Just between us and the hitching post, is that in your opinion and to the best of your belief a correct statement of the situation? Is that dose of "more money and less work" the one medicine the farm industry needs? Is it warrantable as a sure-cure of all farm ills? Is it what really-truly farmers themselves are prepared to accept as a panacea?

Of course the farmer has a moral right to fair pay for his work and his products. That's as simple as A-B-C. He isn't getting it. That's also undeniable.

But—

Firstly. How on earth is it going to be possible for government to assure him such fair pay?

Secondly, if it could and did, would that end all his troubles, so that he should live happily ever after?

If you're supplied with the average amount of gray matter in your brainpan, you won't need to stir it up with any extra violence to discover that, while money is exceedingly useful and often absolutely necessary, it isn't, after all, the most essential thing of life. Life itself is much more important. Money is useful to preserve life. It is also sometimes helpful to develop life from lower to higher planes, though not essential to that end.

"Money makes the mare go," but money isn't the mare. "Is not the life more than meat, and the body more than raiment?" We must have meat to nourish our bodies, and clothes to protect them from weather. But they, and all the 10,000 differing items which they suggest, are simply to that end. That end is life. And the fuller, completer, higher the life they are devoted to raising the more worthily they do their work before being discarded.

Now, consider the farmer. He stands at the great gateways of life and steers, so far as he is able, the generative forces of nature into routes supplying human needs. He is, if not a creative producer,—he one but God is that,—an assistant in productive processes. Moreover, he is the chief assistant. Humanly speaking, everything depends upon the man behind the plow.

Such a producer never has been, is not now, and probably never will be adequately paid for what he does.

So long as the world is controlled by that combination of silliness and selfishness which we call "human nature" so long it will give its chief reward not to those who serve its needs, but to those who pander to its caprices and whims.

It will continue to pay more for silks than for cereals, more for pearls than for potatoes, more for opera than for onions, more for ribbons than for ruta bagas. It will go into ecstacies over the tints of new rose, and grow grouchy haggling over the price of a cabbage. I will scare quite more for show than for substance, and admire what seems rather than what is.

Since farming is essentially the business of supplying the world's needs, it never has been and probably never will be a "money-making proposition." Human nature won't pay anything like as much for its beef, pork, potatoes and bread as it will for its saw-saws and fribbles.

Nor can all the congresses and all the dictators and all the standing armies of the world change human nature. If it ever grows to something higher and better, the evolution will come from within. It cannot be imposed from without.

What sheer nonsense, then, to expect that any government, by clever camouflaging or trick legislation, can transform farming into a wealth-accumulating device!

Nor would it be wholly desirable, if practicable. The opinion of the hayseed and dipper to the contrary notwithstanding, the future of the race depends, not on everybody getting rich, but on everybody doing his job. To the true man, whether he be farmer or bricklayer or college professor, the doing that job well and thoroughly is always more important than getting pay for it. Payment is incidental: doing the job is fundamental. Who cares—or knows,—what Michel Angelo was paid for his supreme sculpture of "Moses," or the wonderful paintings of the Sistine chapel? He did not execute them for pay but for the vastly greater reward of expressing himself and winning the admiration of generations of art-lovers.

True, we are not all Michel Angelos. But to us each is committed a task, a task commensurate with his ability and opportunity. To do that task and do it well is greatly better than to seek one easier and better paid, whose doing is just an enforced drudgery, to be skimped and scanted whenever feasible.

The farmer who is naturally farm-minded cares more for making his farm better than for making his bank account bigger. Above all, he has the opportunity to evolve out of himself a more manly man than is possible for the tread-mill slave of organized industry. Not but that noble men sometimes develop in those ranks. But, when they do, it is in spite of hampering circumstances, not because of a helpful, environment, such as surrounds the farmer.

It is trite, perhaps to speak of the farmer's independence. Yet there are some of us who would rather be free and poor than rich and enslaved. In no other trade or profession is such independence possible as in farming. Even in the mere material aspects of existence, the industrious and intelligent farmer knows an independence which is hardly possible elsewhere. My mechanic neighbor gets his $10 or $12 a day wages. And then he pays a dollar a peck for potatoes, which I use in reckless profusion from my farm-filled bin.

Almost any New England farmer who is able to plan ahead and is willing to "bend his back" can declare a fairly complete independence of the market and the exactins of middlemen. He can, if he will, supply in the main all his food needs from his own land.

Moreover, he is his own man, lord paramount on his own acres. He is subject to the beck and call of no employer nor to the whims of any boss. His only masters are God and Nature. He works closer to both than any one else on earth.

There seem to be those who can't be comfortable if they are not rubbing elbows with crowds of men and women, or like ailments and imperfections with themselves. There are others who prefer to associate themselves humbly and reverently with the unseen but everywhere present Creator, and to absorb somewhat from His impeccable and omnipotent strength.

That is the farmer's privilege and opportunity. He is not fit to be a farmer if he prefers the smell of the slums or the exotic odors of the hothouse to the free breezes of the open lands. He has no call to complain of loneliness when he lives all the year round close to the great heart of the universe.

As he can, if he will, make himself independent of his material existence, so he can, if he will, make himself independent of the mob spirit which too often rules in centers of dense population.

"Happy the man whose wish and care
A few paternal acres bound:
Content to breath his native air
On his own ground."

THE FARMER.

A number of men from this locality were called to help subdue a forest fire near Wells garage, Groton Sunday. In the evening there was a disastrous fire in the Trumbull wood lot, owned by A. T. Wheeler, situated between the Mass farm, and Gustave Peuke's. All the young men in this community worked for hours to subdue the flames.

A bill is proposed to be brought before the legislature, in which a penalty of $200 or three months in jail, will be meted out to any person, who tosses away lighted matches, cigarettes, cigars or pipes.

Recently a man walking along a highway, threw away a lighted match without looking to see the result. It ignited the tall grass and dry leaves. It burned rapidly to a telephone pole which would have been destroyed had not some school children brought pails of water to subdue the flames.

NEW CHICAGO SKYLINE LIFTED TWICE AS HIGH

CHICAGO, May —(AP)—Chicago's coop, which only a few years ago caused a monotonous collection of box-like structures all under 300 feet, today is rapidly being transformed into a territory of sky reaching spires, domes and towers.

A new skyline is in process of formation, as impressive as that of famed Manhattan, and at a level double the height of the old line.

Lifting of the building height restriction gave impetus to the architectural reformation which in addition to popularizing the tower, has included a somewhat timid use of the set back a regular feature of present day New York construction.

The old building line here was 265 feet, permitting structures of 15 to 20 stories. To take advantage of every bit of available space allowed under the restrictive ordinance, virtually all loop buildings were of the packing-box variety and crowned by a heavy cornice. Not a roof was to be seen and the only tower of any consequence was the Tower building in Michigan avenue, somewhat similar to the old Madison square tower, and like it topped by a graceful bronze Diana.

But when the building height was raised, structures began to shoot skyward. Some of the older buildings tacked on a few extra floors, while most of the new ones climbed up around the 40 story level.

One of the first of the new structures was the Wrigley tower, which rises white and majestic just north of the Chicago river, its lines designed to accentuate the feeling of height. Across the avenue there arose the 36 story Tribune tower, a Gothic structure of variegated limestone.

These two buildings, with the Allerton club, a massive pile of masonry in the most modern of architectural styles and showing a complete roof, dominate the rapidly growing skyline of the near north side, an area spectacularly rehabilitated since the Michigan Avenue link bridge was pushed over the Chicago river at a cost of $16,000,000.

Across the river from the Wrigley building the impressive Jewelers' tower is nearing completion on the new six double decked boulevard, Wacker Drive, formerly the lowly South Water street. The main building is topped by a tower, which in turn is capped by a dome to be studded with colored glass and illuminated at night. The building rises 40 stories to a height of 438 feet.

In the heart of the loop is the great stone steeple of the Chicago Temple, surmounted by a cross 568 feet above street level. A block away is the tallest hotel in the world, the 46 story Morrison tower. One of the most commanding of the new Michigan Avenue structures is the 32 story Straus building.

An interesting feature of the buildings of 15 to 20 stories is that most of them have roofs that can be seen from the street. The box and the cornice are passing into the architectural limbo.

"SILVER QUEEN" OF UTAH TRAVELS 50,000 MILES YEARLY

HONOLULU, May.—(AP)—Fifty thousand miles yearly for a quarter century has been the average travel record of Mrs. Susanne Emery-Holmes, the "Silver Queen" of Utah, she declared, claiming to have traveled about 1,250,000 miles since 1930.

"But that's not far" she said. "That's only twice around the world every 13 months. Sometimes I dash over to Europe several times a year—or I may go to Egypt or South Africa—or anywhere fancy calls.

"In recent years, though, my hobby has been my home in Pasadena. I am trying to make it different and I am accomplishing this from the ideas I have gained while going over the world."

Mrs. Emery-Holmes owner of the Holmes silver mines in Utah, is reported one of the wealthiest women of the world.

SACRED WHITE ELEPHANT TO BE VIEWED IN AMERICA

LONDON, May.—(AP)—America is to see a real white elephant. The sacred white elephant from Burma, which made its premiere at the London Zoo May 1, will remain here four months and then go on to the United States.

This elephant is a pinkish white all over and is regarded as a sacred beast in Burma. A special bungalow was erected for the animal, which cannot be sheltered with other elephants because of its sacred character.

SEVERAL LARGE BULGARIAN PRISONS WITHOUT INMATES

SOFIA, May.—(AP)—Several prisons in large towns of Bulgaria are now closed for lack of prisoners, and the judicial machinery of the country has virtually no cases of a political nature on the dockets.

Todor Kusseff, minister of justice, attributed this state of affairs to the amnesty law voted by the Sobranie.

King Has News Instinct

LONDON, May.—(AP)—King George has many of the qualifications of a good news reporter. After the engineer Major and Mrs. Court Treatt had recounted their adventures, which are to be put into a book, the King remarked:

"Make it human and tell your story in a chatty style with anecdotes of your experiences as they really happened, and as you have told them to me."

MOVIE MAKERS ALSO HAVE A SHARE IN TEMPERAMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May —(AP)— Directors have their quota of temperament, like the actors in the motion picture industry. James Cruze surrendered to his by stuffing cotton in his ears.

The muffers were not directed at the roar of cannon but to ward against the insidious influence of chain and piano-chan emotion-prompting orchestra. The orchestra, used universally in picture production largely for love scenes, affects directors as well as actors. Cruze said he did not want the music to make him overlook defects in the scene.

Some married are curious and some are temporary embarrassments.

WHAT MOVIE FOLKS WOULD DO IF PICTURES STOPPED

HOLLYWOOD, May—(AP)— Picture stardom does not remove the individual's interest in the ordinary pursuits of life.

Casually, this question was put to Colleen Moore:

"What would you do for a living if motion pictures and the stage were abolished?"

"Why, I would keep house, she replied.

That started a canvass of the whole lot.

Anne Q. Nilsson would run a ranch.
Harry Langdon would be a musician.
Lloyd Hughes would sell real estate.
Charlie Murray would be a police man.
Jack Mulhall would be a physician.
Lewis Stone would return to active service in the army.
Joyce Compton would be a secretary.
Dolores del Rio would care for her rancho in Mexico.
Dorothy Mackaill would design clothes.
Victor McLaglen would go back to the boxing ring.
Mary Astor would be a pianist.

Here's what the directors had to say:

Alfred E. Green would run a bookstore.

Lambert Hillyer would return to automobile racing and chemistry.

Belboni would be an artistic photographer.

Alfred Santell would be an architect.

Mervyn Le Roy, comedy constructor, said if there were no theatres he would start one.

Grateful persons are about as rare as benevolent ones.

Noted Scientist Returns From Egypt

Dr. James Henry Breasted, orientalist, of the University of Chicago, has returned from Egypt, where he represented John D. Rockefeller, Jr., when after 14 years a ten million dollar museum was refused by the Egyptian Government. Dr. Breasted also announced that he failed to find any evidence to contradict ancient inscriptions that would confirm the Fundamentalists' version of the Jews' captivity in Egypt.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

CARE OF LAYING HENS

Warm weather has at last arrived, and with the change of temperature, slight changes in feeding may be made. Grain feeding, which should have been held up fairly heavy since the lights were discontinued, may be gradually decreased until the proportion of grain and mash is about equal or slightly more mash than grain consumed during May, June, and July. A careful examination of some of the birds in the flock should supply information regarding the extent to which scratch grain reduction can be practiced. The birds must be kept in good flesh even through heavy grain feeding is necessary.

With the warm days, laying house ventilation becomes a real factor for consideration. End windows and doors should provide the necessary circulation of air. Under ordinary conditions, the back windows cannot be safely opened until well into May.

At this time of year the question of confining the laying flock or allowing them free range, naturally comes up. There is no question but what fertility and hatching ability can be increased by getting the birds outside. From the standpoint of egg production alone, the figures obtained from three years of Adult Poultry Club records, including 23,893 birds, are rather interesting. The flocks that were yarded in comparatively small yards averaged 141 eggs per bird. Those that were given free range averaged 143 eggs per bird. Flocks that were confined in the house all of the time averaged 145 eggs per bird; and flocks that were confined during the day and let out for a short time late in the afternoon, averaged 154 eggs per bird. From these figures, it would seem advisable to keep the hens confined in the houses during the early part of the day, so that they may be near mash and water. Incidentally, this means that the eggs are all laid in the houses, and are kept much cleaner. This system of management gives the greatest amount of benefit from a limited amount of range.

REAL ART IN SOWING SEEDS

Sowing seed outdoors, evenly and finely is a real art acquired only after considerable practice. The knack, however, is gained by trying out a few packets. The trick is in holding the packet flat between the thumb and second finger, with the forefinger held above it in position to tap the packet regularly and just sufficiently to cause the seed to feed out. When the packet is opened the flap is creased to make a little trough down the center through which the seed, under the gentle tapping of the forefinger, will trickle slowly forth so that it is possible to sow it reasonably thin.

More seed is wasted by thick sowing than in any other manner for when the plants come up in thick tufts from seed dropped in a mass only a very few of them have a chance to grow.

Sow seed as a general rule with covering equal to twice its thickness. The finer the seed the less covering of earth until the finest and dustlike need only to be sprinkled upon the surface and pressed in. Vegetable seed, fortunately, is, for the most part, on the coarse side and can be sown much more easily than flower seeds, many of which are powder fine.

The ground having been spaded and worked to a fine tilth, make the rows for the seed run north and south so far as practicable as a matter of securing an even division of sunlight. Make the rows with the point of the hoe or with a plant label for the smaller ones or some other convenient pointed instrument, such as the big blade of a jacknife, and then scatter the seed. The depth of the row for the seed is determined by the size of the seed. Thin sowing will do away with considerable thinning after the seed is up.

Cover the seeds and tamp the earth firmly over them. This aids in germination by bringing seeds and moist earth into close contact at the start. If covered with powdery earth it will be necessary to wait for a rain to pound the soil and make the contact.

All the early garden seeds are now to go into the open ground and transplanting of others will be the order of the day.

MAKING THE MOST OF THE DOOMED CHESTNUT TREE

In forest production, as in the growing of other crops, diseases are very important. From the time tree seeds germinate until the mature trees are cut they are subject to the attacks of fungi which retard their growth and in many cases kill them.

Of our killing forest tree diseases, the chestnut blight, introduced on nursery stock from Asia, is the most destructive. This disease was unknown to the world until it attracted attention by killing chestnuts in the vicinity of New York city in 1904. At that time the chestnut was an important tree on a large part of the forest land of the eastern states. The disease spread rapidly from New York through these chestnut forests. In places where it has been present long-est there remains alive only an occasional tree of the many millions in the original stands. Such complete destruction over millions of acres is unequaled in the history of plant diseases.

Surveys just completed show that the blight is spreading rapidly over the 33 million acres of chestnut growth in the southern Appalachians. In a comparatively few years these trees will be heavily infected or dead. Unless owners plan for the utilization or sale of chestnut timber killed by the blight they will have to face severe losses. Woodlot owners who can not cut their diseased chestnut before it dies should remove it within two years after death, before insect injury, decay, and checking cause severe depreciation. The blight merely kills the tree but does not in itself reduce the strength of the wood or cause deterioration. Poles cut from dead trees that are perfectly sound, especially in the pan are as good as poles cut green and seasoned in a pile and therein the only reason for not cutting sound dead timber for poles is the possibility of breakage and transportation due to the seasoned timber being more brittle.

Dead timber is satisfactory for round fence posts or if hewed true. If there is no sap rot. For sawed products, (lumber, dimension stuff, sawed ties, switch timbers, sawed fence posts, shingles, and slack staves and heading) sapwood injury may be disregarded, as it will slab off. Though heartwood is usually sound for six years or more after the death of the tree, it checks badly after the second year if the tree is left standing. Trees intended for sawed products in which checking is a defect should therefore be cut within two years after death. Timber which is too badly checked to be profitably manufactured into sawed products makes excellent cordwood.

IMPORTANCE OF TRANSPLANTING

Gardening has now reached a period when transplanting the seedlings which have been grown in hotbeds, cold frames and boxes in the house, is the main task. The first of these to go out are the head lettuce seedlings which can stand considerable in the way of cool weather and like it.

In transplanting the lettuce, snip off the ends of the leaves for half their length. This will equalize for the disturbance of the roots in transplanting and the plants will take hold much quicker. Set the lettuce plants eight inches apart in their beds and let the rows be at least a foot apart. A small bed which can be reached across by hand can be set eight inches each way to economize space. The wider rows permit hoeing.

Following the lettuce, the seedling onions to give the pig onions next fall are due to go in and they, too, should be set out off this rule applying to all seedlings in the vegetable garden. Measure the proper distance between the plants as detailed on seed packets and stick to it even if the little plants look lonesome for the time being in their beds. They will fill their space in due time.

Dig a hole sufficient to let the root occupy its full length and to spread out the side roots. Dont drop it in a wad See deeper in the garden than the plants set in the seed box, almost to the seed leaves. This will be particularly necessary with seedlings that have grown long and leggy. Firm the earth about them carefully after the soil is filled in and soak. Choose a cloudy day if possible and if it is sunshiny and warm it is advisable to shade the transplanted plants with paper, strawberry boxes or flower pots for a day or so. A board set on flower pots is a convenient method for shading a whole row at once.

For the sprouting growing plants requiring a rich soil, a little manure may be mixed with the soil at transplanting time as the roots will have food at once. Do not be too generous with fertilizer, however.

PREPARING ACID FOR ALFALFA SOIL

These directions are given on how to fit acid soil for alfalfa:

I. Have the soil tested to find out how much lime is required and lime it. There is an absolute correlation between the reaction of the soil and success with alfalfa. Furthermore, there is a definite mathematical relationship between the amount of acid in the soil and the amount of lime required to neutralize it. Application of an insufficient amount of lime is useless. As well try to save the life of a freezing man by warming him up from 30 degrees below to 10 degrees below. He would freeze just as hard, to all intents and purposes, at 10 degrees below as at 30 degrees below. So will alfalfa die just as dead at pH 5.5 (on the chemist's scale of true acidity) as at pH 4. Find out how much lime is needed and put it on.

II. Apply also 300 to 500 pounds per acre of acid phosphate or a mixed fertilizer containing an equivalent amount of phosphoric acid. This phosphoric acid is applied not primarily as a fertilizer, but as a chemical to help the lime to precipitate and render harmless one of the chief toxic constituents of acid soils. It is always required in connection with lime to fit acid soils for the most successful growth of alfalfa or clover — not perhaps on any soil but almost absolutely.

III. Bear in mind that about all the lime and acid phosphate do is to remove the handicap of toxic acidity so that good farming methods can succeed where before they would have failed but that the good farming methods still remain to be applied. The man who uses lime and then sits back and waits for results is due to be disappointed. So is the man who "sprays his head off" on an acid soil. But the combination of lime and good farming methods makes a great team.

IV. Good farming methods for mid-summer seeding of alfalfa.

1. Use plenty of manure or fertilizer or both to give the alfalfa seedlings a good start. No legume, least of all alfalfa, can "get its" plant food from the air until it gets well established any more than a day old calf can live on hay.

2. Clean the land of weed seed by persistent shallow cultivations. The acme or the smoothing harrow is the right tool.

3. Prepare the kind of a seed bed needed by such small seeds—about the sort of a seed bed which you would prepare by hand in a little box for tomato seeds, for example only a lot firmer since the alfalfa seedings, in the absence of favorable showers, may have to live on ground water for days or even weeks and ground water will not rise through a seed bed that is too loose and soft.

4. Inoculate the seed or the soil or both.

5. Unless the soil is proven alfalfa land with well-established inoculation it is safer to include some timothy. Twenty pounds of alfalfa and seven of timothy per acre is the best mixture which we have tried so far.

6. Seed in July so the young plants will get big enough to survive the winter without getting half killed for worse. Without a doubt the man who originally advocated August seeding lived at least a 100 miles south of us or in a natural alfalfa soil.

7. Once you get a stand, remember the fable about the goose and the golden egg and take only two cuttings a year and those at a materially later stage of growth than has been recommended heretofore. Cut only when the crop approaches full bloom. The reason is that it is only at the blooming period that the alfalfa plant stores reserve nutrients in the root to give it a new start in life. And never cut a midsummer seeding the first fall.

GOLD TOOTH CRAZE AFFECTS JAPANESE CURRENCY PLANS

KOBE, May 12 (AP)—Whenever a Japanese gets any money ahead he buys himself a gold tooth and cultivates a perpetual smile.

This illuminating and fascinating fashion is looked upon somewhat askance by the Kobe Chronicle, which declares that prefectural investigation revealed that local dentists last year had used gold valued at 221,226 yen for decorating the teeth of customers.

A movement is under way to start a fashion in plain white teeth.

Every time a man borrows trouble he pays the interest in worry.

WESTERLY

ALL CASES TO GO OVER TO WEDNESDAY, MAY 26th

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 13.—Verdict for the plaintiff to recover balance due on a plumbing account, amounting to $823.13 with costs, was returned by the jury, about 5:45 o'clock Thursday afternoon after they had been out for about an hour, in the last case to be tried in Washington county superior court until Wednesday, May 26th. The case was that brought by Paul Uzzi against Vincent Gentile for labor. The plaintiff was represented by Attorney Roche and defendant by Attorney Gallagher. The defence filed a plea in counter suit in which it was claimed that Mr. Uzzi was indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Gentile, that is if it were found that the plaintiff was doing the plumbing on a contrast for a figure between $250 and $300, when board at the rate of $35 a week was due for board in the Gentile family for himself, wife and child. If the jury found that the board period was for nine weeks, then there would be due Gentile $148.61; and if for only four weeks then $32.61 would be due or five weeks' less board at $25 a week.

When court convened Thursday morning Justice Copotosto said that he would have to interrupt the court session for a short time as he was to receive a telephone call from Presiding Justice Willard B. Tanner in Providence. Returning from the telephone, the announcement was made that the remainder of the docket would be passed until Wednesday, week after next, and that all assignments would go over to that time, when they would be in order. He announced that by order of the presiding justice he was directed to return to Providence county court to sit in the Rand criminal case. Members of the bar and press present were directed by the judge to see that publicity was given to the passing of all cases to May 26th.

Direction was given to Superior Court Clerk W. Herbert Caswell to have ten additional men summoned for jury duty on the future date. Three from the number of jurymen who had done duty since the first court sitting at Kingston at their request were excused from further attendance and paid off.

Before the noon recess, when both attorneys in the Uzzi-Gentile case had made their pleas, and before the judge's charge was given the jury, a new jury was empaneled to try the case of Jerry E. Fitzgerald et al. vs. Westerly general contractors. The jury was drawn as follows: Frederick M. Lewis and Robert D. Lewis of South Kingstown; Arthur B. Lewis and Napoleon Lafrantiere of North Kingstown; Allen C. Whitford and Artemio Narducci of Westerly, Thomas W. Nye and Warren A. Tucker of Hopkinton, Albert G. C. Brewer of Exeter, Robert E. Mills of Charlestown, Edward Donnelly and John H. Carpenter of Narragansett. When court convened at 1:45 the Uzzi-Gentile jury was charged by Judge Copotosto and retired to the jury room.

The jury in Fitzgerald-Uzzi case then took the jury box just vacated, but just previously when court was in session Attorney Roche requested the case be discontinued and it was granted by the judge. The juryman were then excused to report Wednesday, week after next.

A TREE'S A LOT O' COMPANY

A tree's a lot o' company. When Polly was around
She used to bring her spinnin' things out here upon th' ground,
Th' old tree bendin' over, th' limbs a-sweepin' low
As if to keep her company, be she there to spin or sew.
An' now I set here day by day, when all th' chores is done,
Rememberin' how she used to like to see th' settin' sun,
An' hear th' birds a-chirpin', an' th' old tree overhead
Seems whisperin' an' whisperin'—it's a year since she was dead,
An' things is just that silent, with no one movin' round,
An' not a voice a-speakin' or any sort o' sound,
I slip out here an' listen, fer, as sure as sure can be,
Th' old tree knows I'm lonesome, an' keeps whisperin' to me
On this side, on that side, an' when th' winds come high
He tries his hand at singin'—I hear th' tunes go by,
An' feel sometimes like jinin' in—that blessed, bent old tree
Blows up its horns an' music-strings fer nobody but me!
He shakes his red an' yeller leaves down on me settin' here,
To chase each other round an' round, an' onderneath me cheer,
An' rattle like a lot o' kids a-laughin' full o' glee—
I wonder what I'd ever do widout me old bent tree!

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Curiosity Is Too Much for Johnny Chuck

Curiosity's a trap
That often leads to a mishap.
—Johnny Chuck.

Johnny Chuck had lived near to Farmer Brown's Boy so long that he thought he knew all about Farmer Brown's Boy. He had no real fear of him. He was no longer suspicious of him. Farmer Brown's Boy had discovered this.

"I have an idea it isn't going to be any trick at all to trap Johnny Chuck," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "I have an idea that Johnny is so unsuspicious that he will be as easy to trap as Jimmy Skunk is, and goodness knows! Jimmy will walk into almost any kind of a trap. Of course I wouldn't think of setting a steel trap; steel traps are awful things. How any boy can find any pleasure in setting steel traps and making animals suffer is beyond my understanding. I guess boys that set steel traps just don't think. Now, I have an idea that Johnny Chuck will be just curious enough to go into a box trap."

So Farmer Brown's Boy took a big box trap, in which he shortly had caught Jimmy Skunk, and carried it out near the tree where Johnny Chuck lived.

Was it harmless? He wished he knew.

He had been in mischief. He baited that trap with an apple. He knew that Johnny Chuck had a liking for apples, and that apples were out of season so far as Johnny was concerned. So he went down cellar and got an apple, and with this he baited the trap.

No Johnny Chuck from his doorstep had watched Farmer Brown's Boy set that trap. Hardly was Farmer Brown's Boy's back been turned when Johnny started out to see what this thing was. He looked all around it. He found a piece of apple lying just outside, and this he ate. "My, but that tastes good!" said Johnny Chuck. "It's a long time since I've tasted an apple. I would like some more. I would so."

Just then Johnny discovered the apple inside that box. His mouth watered. His eyes shone. He started to go right in. Then he thought better of it and backed out. He sat down and looked at that box for a long time. What was it? He didn't know. It looked harmless. Was it harmless? He wished he knew. The more he looked at it the more curious he became. Why was that apple there? If there was an apple in there why weren't there more apples around outside? What did Farmer Brown's Boy bring that thing over there for, anyway? Why not go in and get that apple and take it out and eat it outside? There couldn't be any harm in going in and coming right out again. Already he had been part way in and nothing had happened.

The longer he hesitated, the more curious he became. Finally he made up his mind that that thing must be harmless and that his curiosity never would be satisfied until he had been in there to get that apple. So once more he poked his head in the trap. He waited. Nothing happened. He took a step and waited again. He took another step and waited. Nothing happened. He was now wholly inside. The smell of that apple tickled his nose until he couldn't stand it any longer. He set his teeth in the apple. Bang! He was in darkness. Something had happened. He was a prisoner. He was a prisoner in that box. Johnny's heart almost stopped beating for a moment or two.

NEW LONDON INVITED PRESIDENT TO MOORE ESTATE, BUT TOO LATE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 13—There was a possibility that President Calvin Coolidge might reside in New London during the summer for it became known today that Alton F. Miner, a member of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, who is in Washington attending the annual convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce, tendered the nation's chief executive an invitation to reside in New London during the heat of the summer. The mansion offered President Coolidge and his family is the former Robert Moore property, located on Parkway, Pequot. The mansion, which was recently sold by Mr. Moore to a realty syndicate, comprises an immense house of about 30 rooms and is located on an estate comprising 11 acres. Mr. Miner was accompanied to the white house by Senator Hiram Bingham. As given out Thursday, however, President Coolidge is to establish the summer white house in the Adirondacks, not far from Paul Smith's.

NEW FIRE WHISTLE PROVES TOO FAINT FOR SERVICE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 13—The city's new fire whistle has been set up on the Connecticut Power company's building, Water street, formerly the C. D. Bosa factory, but the blasts from it are not nearly as loud as those to emanate from the former whistle which was abandoned through necessity due to a transfer from the power house to the present location. The whistle, which was formerly used at the plant of the Groton Iron Works, was tested this noon and it is doubtful if the blasts will ever be heard beyond the central part of the city.

RIDING FROM NORWICH PENDERS FATALLY INJURED

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 13—William McKee, colored, familiarly known as "Goldie," and residing at 294 Main street, is under arrest on a technical charge of manslaughter, the automobile he was driving early this morning overturning on the Hartford turnpike and causing the death of Ernest Penders, 38, colored and attached to the United States Coast Guard destroyer Mojave, state pier. Penders suffered a fractured skull and died at Lawrence hospital about 5 o'clock. McKee and Penders, together with two friends went for a ride last evening, going to Norwich, where they remained until about midnight. They started to return to New London by way of Colchester. When the machine was nearing New London, it suddenly swerved to the edge of the highway and hitting some obstruction, overturned, throwing the occupants out. Penders' head struck the concrete highway, producing a skull fracture. The other occupants of the machine suffered only minor bruises, but Penders was observed to be seriously injured as he suffered hemorrhages. A passing automobile was stopped and Penders was placed in it by McKee, who accompanied the injured man to the hospital. Penders was unconscious when he reached the hospital about 2 o'clock and expired three hours later. When Penders was brought to the hospital the New London police were notified of the accident, but as the crash occurred outside the city limits the state police were informed of the possible fatality. Officer George Hisson and Frank Schwerkert from Groton barracks went to the hospital, where McKee was interviewed and later taken into custody. McKee declared that he could not account for the accident. He stated that at the time of the crash the car was not travelling at a speed greater than 20 miles an hour. He said that when but four or five miles from New London the machine became unmanageable and evidently the steering gear became disabled for the car plunged to the side of the highway before he could apply the brakes and after hitting the obstruction, overturned.

Emil Seifert and family, consisting of his wife and two sons, have returned to their residence on Starr street, having spent about a year in Florida.

The condition of Hugh McPartland, veteran master plumber, who has been ill many weeks, does not improve and he is now confined continually to his home on Ocean avenue. Mr. Partland within the past year has undergone three surgical operations.

Mr. Moon is survived by his wife, several children and a brother, Willard Moon. He was for many years proprietor of a horse shoeing establishment on Golden street and later was proprietor of Moon's pharmacy, which business he disposed of several years ago. He was a member of Brainerd lodge of Masons, Palestine commandery and Konomoc Rose company.

Mrs. Hannah A. Daly, widow of John Daly, died this morning at her home, 33 Lincoln avenue. Mrs. Daly had been ill for a long time. Recently she was dismissed from Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital where she had undergone treatment in the anticipation of her condition becoming improved. She was the daughter of the late Patrick and Margaret Sherry and was born in Waterford. Mrs. Daly resided in Waterford and New London her entire life. She is survived by two sons, John J., and James P. Daly and a daughter, Miss Margaret H. Daly, all of this city; three sisters, Mrs. Paul Cavanaugh, Mrs. John Peters, this city, and Mrs. John Noonan, Hollis, L. I., and a brother, Thomas Sherry, of Boston, formerly of New London.

Albert J. Brewster, died late yester- day at his residence, 95 Blinman street. He had not been in sound health for many months. Until illness compelled him to take to his bed, Mr. Brewster was employed by the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing company. He is survived by his wife and two children. Mr. Brewster was a musician, a clarinet player and for many years he was identified with numerous musical organizations, principally theatre orchestras and the former Third Regiment band.

George Burke and Thomas Murphy, youths, will come before the police court tomorrow to answer for a breach of the peace altered to have been committed against Chief Louis Johnson of coast guard steamer 238, at this port. The men engaged in a row at Main and Hallam street last night. Johnson complained and the men who are alleged to have attacked him were arrested. Each gave a bond of $50 to appear in court this morning to answer, but Murphy did not show up and Johnson was not there to accuse Burke. The bond of Murphy was called and forfeited. Then a complaint was issued for Johnson and he was taken into custody. He too will appear in court Friday.

Paul Hourihan, a steel worker on construction in this city, was charged with intoxication. He was found waving a red lantern in the center of Main street where work is being done and there is an excavation. It was the liquor Hourihan had taken that induced him to believe he was a railroad hand or that he was warning popels and teams approaching that there was danger. Paul could not explain except to say that he had taken too much liquor. His presence on work on which he was engaged was essential so he was released on suspended judgement and warned not to do anything so senseless again.

John Garney, a soldier sat on to the stage of the Capitol theatre by the "subway" and there became very offensive. He was ordered out by the stage manager, but would not go, insisting that he knew one of the actors and demanding that he be allowed to talk with him. Policeman Manice, on duty in the theatre, was called and ejected Carney, but not until a battle had occurred. The officer used his stick on the soldier's head and subdued him. Carney has a court record for intoxication and for robbery, so he was fined $25 for creating the disturbance and $5 for intoxication. He will receive his mail at the county jail for a while.

Patsy Grillo, a cripple, was ordered out of town, unless he desired to be prosecuted as a vagrant. He has been similarly treated before, but he seems to think that he can stay here and be without employment and be as abusive as circumstances will permit. He said that after he was before ordered away from the city, obeyed, but came back to get laundry work he had left with Chinamen. He was again told to get away from New London, so promised that he would leave and stay away.

Elmer Arey, a sailor on coast guard steamer Cassin, was drunk at Ocean Beach last night and was taken into custody. He said he was intoxicated but he also declared that he was sick. He was turned over to the ship on which he is a sailor as he had overstaid his leave of absence and was in for a penalty for that.

Elmer J. Jarvis was fined $5 for in- toxication and went to jail. He is a stranger in New London.

Phillip Wilson, represented to be a respectable fellow, sought to give a colored woman he saw on the street last night an automobile ride. She would not pay any attention to Wilson, so he parked his car and then went to her and insisted that she be his companion for a ride. Wilson was not intoxicated. The woman complained to the police with the result that they decided that there was too much Wilson in this matter. He was presented in court, but the woman could not identify him, so he was allowed his freedom, but Judge Prince told him he should be ashamed of his conduct and cautioned him against offending in like manner again.

John Oddon, carpenter, residing at 195 Main street, was arrested late this afternoon by Motorcycle Officer George McCaskey, charged with breach of the peace and upon complaint of his wife. He was later released when Oliver Woodworth, his employer, qualified on Oddon's bond of $50 for the appearance of the accused in the police court Friday morning. Mrs. Oddon appeared at the police station shortly after 5 o'clock carrying an infant in her arms. She declared that her husband had beaten her and that he had struck her at other times. Oddon admitted the accusation, but declared he did so when he became angered because his wife had visited the home of a friend that was objectionable to him.

George Chapman, United States coast guard, state pier, a member of the crew of the destroyer Mojave, was arrested this morning by Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith charged with being a suspicious character. He is being held a prisoner at the police station until a check-up of his movements recently has been made. He is known to have committed a burglary in Mt. Holly, N. J., in 1921, and the authorities there have been advised of Chapman's arrest and inquiry made as to whether they desire possession of the prisoner.

Chapman was arrested following his suspicious actions of late and after it had become known that Chapman was contemplating a burglary in this city.

Monsignor Neale's pastorate as head of St. Rose's parish, which began in 1914, has been marked by many improvements and advancements, material and spiritual, his record receiving recognition and praise throughout the diocese.

He was elevated to his present rank by action of Pope Pius in September, 1924, at which time he was made a domestic prelate to his holiness.

Dr. Neale was stationed in Westerly, as pastor of St. Michael's church, just prior to his transfer to Meriden.

SOCIAL WORK DELEGATES VALUED NORWICH MEETING

Delegates to the Connecticut conference of Social Work are enthusiastic over the 1926 session which was recently held in Norwich according to the report made in this week's bulletin of the state department of health. The program included several authorities from other states, notably, Dr. Alice Hamilton, professor of industrial medicine at the Harvard university school of public health, Dr. Elton Mayo, formerly of Australia, now of university of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Leo. W. Kirchwey of the New York school of social work.

Dr. Hamilton dwelt particularly upon the extraordinary adjustments demanded of the agricultural immigrant, transplanted from the relative quiet of a European farm village to the noisy congestion of our large cities, and pointed out with special clearness the entire mental and physical revolution which inevitably takes place when he becomes a part of our factory system. In place of a healthy play of all the body muscles out of doors, the factory substitutes a cramped position, close air, and a monotonous, often very minute operation, which exercises one small set of muscles to exhaustion, and lays infinite strain upon the attention. To Dr. Hamilton the modern factory offers one very adequate explanation for the peculiarity of the moving pictures and the dance-hall, in that one represents vicarious excitement, and the other exercise which involves the whole body.

Dr. Mayo gave two illuminating talks from the point of view of a psychiatrist at work in the field of industry. In one he demonstrated the value of the frequent rest period to counteract monotony and so enhance the efficiency of the industrial worker. In his second talk he cited actual studies revealing the coincidence of paranoid and depressive obsessions with industrial fatigue. Elimination of fatigue was found to result in the disappearance of the obsessions. Frequent testing brought out also certain fairly uniform and highly significant blood pressure changes, which, Dr. Mayo believes, indicate a definite correlation between the fatigue process and obsessive trains of thought.

Dr. Kirchwey's discussion advanced the theory that our "crime waves," so-called are a hysterical attitude on the part of the public. They have come in cycles since the Civil war and are invariably the work of alarmists. Robbery with a gun, largely the work of young amateurs, is the type of law-breaking which has most markedly increased between 1913 and 1926. The responsibility for halting this belongs to the individual citizen. So long as the more enlightened members of the community continue to defy the least of our laws they are setting an example which the weaker citizen can scarcely be blamed for following.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

One of the greatest assemblages of comedians ever to play in a single picture appears in the cast of "Monte Carlo," Christy Cabanne's Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy coming to the Breed theatre Sunday.

The picture is a farcical satire on the deportment of American tourists, written around the adventures of three girls who win a trip to "Monte Carlo" in a newspaper popularity contest.

Since his desertion of villainous roles, Lew Cody has gained wide recognition as a whimsical comedian and in this company he is supported by such laugh experts as Trixie Friganza, favorite of screen and stage, whose "Bag of Trix" was a vaudeville headliner; Karl Dane, the comedy star of "The Big Parade"; Comare Gravina, Harry Myers of "Connecticut Yankee" fame; Arthur Hoyt, the "height of insignificance," and Zasu Pitts the feminine Buster Keaton.

Today's show consists of "Lazy Bones", with Buck Jones, Casey of the Coast Guard, a two reel comedy and Pathe News.

Broadway Theatre

A very novel and entertaining program of hits from the Keith Albee Lumous vaudeville circuit opened at the Broadway theatre yesterday and continues through Saturday.

Little four footed actors presented with vim and vigor, with wordless directions, a decided canine revue presented by Morellee. It is far above the conventional.

Braley and Putnam in "A Breeze From the West" kick up a lot of fun, song and dance. The breeze increases in velocity until it becomes a cyclone of entertainment.

Clifford and Holmes in "At the Phone" offered another comedy turn in third spot. Music and song makes perfect blending with the fun.

Hunter and Bally, in "Let 'Em Roll" in which much of the comedy has to do with that popular African game. They are a clever pair of colored comedians.

Betts and Partner closed with a sensational novelty which puts them in a class with the best of equilibrists.

The photoplay "Her Big Adventure", featuring Herbert Rawlinson, Grace Darmond and a fine cast put over many laughs and thrills, making it delightful entertainment.

Palace Theatre

Strict orders were given by Harold Lloyd to the publicity and advertising departments of Paramount, that if any stories were sent out on "For Heaven's Sake!" his first Paramount release, produced by the Harold Lloyd corporation, superlative adjectives were to be thrown into the discard and made taboo.

But he didn't say a word so far as comparisons are concerned. And it's only fair to let the public have some idea of how good the picture really is. Those few fortunates who have already seen it, swear that "For Heaven's Sake!" which, by the way, comes to the Palace theatre Sunday, is on the same high level with such former Lloyd successes as "Grandma's Boy" and "The Freshman."

It's not necessary to say another word. Any film which can come up to those two—must be good. Most likely, Lloyd will give the devil to the chap who passed the word along; but—it's not a crime to tell the truth. That's what the Constitution says—and we abide by it!

Palace Theatre

If it is entertainment you are looking for for the last half of this week you will surely find it at the Palace. The vaudeville is of the finest grade headed by an entirely new type of act presented by Meyer Golden entitled, Movie Masque, the most novel and pretentious song and dance act ever presented on any vaudeville stage.

Bound Right is a comedy playlet which pleases most highly something different in the line of vaudeville that has ever played the Palace. Mazie Lunette opens the bill with a very pretty and novel trapeze act. Gordon and Taylor follow with a comedy musical act. Tim and Betty Turnish bokem a La Carte.

If racing is "The Sport of Kings," "King of the Turf", now showing at the Palace theatre is an entertainment dish fit for the Gods on high Olympus. The tenants of Parnassus themselves could hardly ask for better amusement fare; and they would undoubtedly roll in boisterous Olympian laughter at the delicious comedy and burlesque which heavily interlards the spectacular racing scenes and powerful melodrama of this F. B. O. classic of the track. James Hogan directed the production, and he has acquitted himself in such a manner as to put him in a class with the best directors in the business. Louis Joseph Vance and John Brownell wrote the original story, which J. Grubb Alexander adapted to the screen. The scenes with the three crooks who are invited to stay at the old Fairfax Mansion are a continuous scream, and the regeneration of these noble yeggmen through the influence of the kindly old colonel make delightful picture material.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE
New York

Stocks: Irregular; Nash Motors rises as bear raid is routed.

Bonds: Firm; utilities aided by quick sale of $50,000,000 new issue.

Foreign exchanges: Mixed; Italian lira plunges 28 points to new low.

Cotton: Easy; favorable southwest forecast.

Sugar: Barely steady; increased spot offerings.

Coffee: Firmer; trade buying.

Chicago

Wheat: Lower; May liquidation.

Corn: Steady; light receipts.

Cattle: Steady.

Hogs: Firmer.

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED

NEW YORK, May 13—(AP)—Speculative interest in today's stock market centered largely on the sensational, but unsuccessful attempt of bear traders to crash Nash Motors common stock below $82 a share. Transactions in that issue totalled 191,800 shares, or approximately one-fifth of the day's total business, with over 50,000 shares offered and promptly taken at $2. The stock later rallied to $3 1-2, closing at $4 for a net gain of 1 1-2 points on the day.

Other motors yielded more readily to selling pressure, General Motors common sagged 2 3-8 to 128 1-2 despite wide spread predictions of a substantial cash extra which were fulfilled after the market closed when the directors declared an extra cash dividend of $4 a share and offered to purchase the assets of Fisher Body by offering two-thirds of one share of General Motors for each share of Fisher Body stock. New low records for the year were again established by Jordan at 27 7-8, Chandler-Cleveland at 13 1-4, Fisher Body at 81 1-8 and Paige-Detroit at 14.

The general stock list drifted lower with public interest at low ebb, some encouragement was derived by constructive forces, however, from the prompt oversubscription of $50,000,000 in new public utility offerings, which was accepted by them as an indication of a strong underlying investment demand. About the only business news of importance were reports of a better demand for structural steel and non-ferrous metals and the announcement of Carl Gray, president of the Union Pacific, that freight traffic on his road was running 10 to 12 per cent above that of a year ago.

Oils were in better demand, presumably on reports of large current earnings and record-breaking gasoline production. There seems to be a disposition in some quarters, however, to restrict commitments in those issues, pending further developments in the Panhandle and other oil fields where extensive drilling operations are in progress. Union Oil of California was the leader in that group, closing 1 3-4 higher at 44 5-8 after having crossed 45. Logo Oil, admitted to trading for the first time, was active around 19 1-2.

Some confusion resulted from the fact that Pacific Oil, formerly quoted around 54 3-4, appeared on the tape between 1 and 1 3-4 a share, but this was explained by the fact that the stock was quoted minus one share of Standard Oil Co. of California, which recently absorbed the Pacific Co through an exchange of stock and whose stock sells around 53 3-4 a share.

Backing and filling movements characterized the general industrial list with marked heaviness shown by Allied Chemical, Baldwin, Dupont, International Cement and Radio Corporation. Local tractions were strong, and substantial gains also were recorded by Gotham Silk Hosiery, Kelsey Wheel and Tobacco Products, up 1 to 3 1-2 points.

Reactionary price movements also predominated in the commodity markets. Better weather also was held responsible for a reaction of 14 to 20 points net in cotton prices. Raw sugar was unchanged, but futures yielded slightly. Coffee closed unchanged to 8 points higher.

Call money renewed at 3 3-4 per cent and held steady at that figure all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were irregularly lower. Demand sterling held firm around $4.85 7-8, but French and Belgian francs were slightly lower around 3.18 1-2 cents each. Italian lire broke nearly 30 points to a new low record of 3.70 cents. Polish zloty also dropped a full cent to a new low at 9.00 cents.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, May 13—(AP)—A strong investment demand for bonds, reflected in the prompt subscription of $50,000,000 in new public utility issues, carried the general average of prices to the year's highest level today. High grade railroad and public utility liens led the forward movement, which was aided by the continuance of easy credit conditions.

Disquieting foreign developments, including the Polish revolution and the withdrawal of government support for the Italian lira, opened the way for renewed selling of European obligations, many of which developed marked weakness in contrast to the strength of domestic issues. Liquidation of Polish bonds continued in heavy volume as a result of the Warsaw uprising, both the government's 6s and 8s dropping to new low records at 62 and 51, respectively. Following the plunge of the Italian currency to a new low around 3.71 cents, this government's bonds also eased off.

Emphasizing the trend toward lower interest rates for high-grade public utility obligations, the $40,000,000 New England Telephone 4 1-2 per cent issue offered today on a 4.80 per cent. yield basis directed attention to utility liens still selling at attractive yields. The offering was quickly oversubscribed with the bonds subsequently commanding a premium of a quarter o a point over the sale price of 99 1-2.

Oil liens were inclined to follow the upturn in these stocks but Sinclair 6s were an outstanding exception. Following an announcement that $2,500,000 of this issue would be called for redemption on July 31 at 103 and interest, the price dropped from 107 to 105 on a large volume of sales. Skelly Oil 6 1-2s, however, jumped 2 1-2 points and Pan-American 6 1-2s were firm.

Advances in the railroad group were moderate, but a good demand existed for such issues as Atchison General 4s, New York Central debenture 4s, Terre Haute refunding 5s, Erie general and convertible 4s,

WARDEN ANDERSON'S GOOD WORK IN DANIELSON

Fibre and Fabric in its issue of May 8 had the following to say concerning the administration of Warden Anderson in Danielson:

It is not surprising to us that Danielson, under the efficient administration of Warden Walter Anderson, should have shown such splendid economies in municipal government. This publication has long contended that men in all branches of the textile industry should enter public life more so than they have.

Men in the textile industry are developed only after long years of intensive and practical training and become by that token natural executives who know how, when, where and why corners should be cut to produce the greatest economy in anything they handle. And Warden Anderson is such a product. Since he has made good enough in his office to have attracted state-wide interest he is well worthy of being considered by the citizens as a possible candidate for the next legislature. It is unfortunate for Danielson, that for business reasons, Warden Anderson was unable to serve another term.

SOUTH MANCHESTER BAND COMING TO OPEN SALVATION ARMY DRIVE

On Sunday afternoon, at 4.30 p. m. the Salvation Army band from South Manchester under the direction of David Addy will give a sacred concert in Union square, for which the authorities kindly consented to put up the city owned band-stand, in case of rain, the concert will be held in the town hall. The Salvation Army band has a membership of 30 members and has become a vital arm of the Salvation Army activities throughout the New England states. Salvation Army bands have become a feature in almost every city in the United States and many a poor sinner who was at the end of his moral career was attracted by a Salvation Army band and rescued from a life of misery, of degradation and crime. Some of these men today are prominent members of American society and useful citizens of the United States. A number of the members of the Salvation Army band have become nationally famous as expert musicians and the citizens of Norwich who can find the time to attend the concert will enjoy a distinct musical treat. An outstanding factor with the personnel of the Salvation Army band is that not a single member receives remuneration for his services. All their efforts are contributed voluntary for the good of the cause.

The band comes here from their headquarters located in South Manchester, in connection with a maintenance campaign, in which the Salvation Army is preparing to raise the funds needed for the conduct of its charitable activities in Norwich during this year. Earl Taggart has again consented to head the campaign as chairman. Mr. Taggart has already tasted powder in the battle for civic betterment and righteousness. He made a very brave fight last year to raise a fund for the Salvation Army's needs and he found that the people of Norwich approve of their young members entering in the spirit of such work and are ever ready to give them their support. With the experience of last year's campaign Mr. Taggart has friends who volunteered to help him in this campaign and he is confident of raising the $4500 which is the minimum quota needed by the Salvation Army to conduct its charitable work in Norwich.

At 7.30 p. m. on Sunday at the Central Baptist church a united mass meeting will be held and all the people of Norwich are invited to attend. His Honor Milo R. Waters and other prominent citizens have accepted the invitation to be present at the service and say a word in behalf of the Salvation Army. Major Thos. C. Seaver of Hartford, will speak on "The Past and Present of the Salvation Army." Music by the South Manchester Salvation Army band and male chorus with Mrs. Adjutant Mehling of Hartford, soprano soloist. The mayor and several prominent citizens of Norwich will also be guests of the Salvation Army on the band stand on Sunday afternoon with the mayor making some remarks about the good work which the Salvation Army is doing in the city.

FISHING STOPPED IN STATE LEASED STREAMS

Fishing in the state leased and stocked streams has been stopped by an order issued by the state fish and game commission, effective after eight o'clock tonight (Friday) due to lack of heavy rain that would greatly diminish the fire hazard in the timberland of the state and the absence of prospects of it in the near future. The order will be effective until the hazard is eliminated.

Little hope for rain within the next few days is held out. State Forester Austin F. Hawes has received a telegram from Leonard Tarr, meteorologist in charge of the United States weather bureau in New Haven which said that atmospheric conditions were "very dangerous for forest fires. Caution should be taken until the weather changes."

Superintendent Titcomb stated that, although the state board of fisheries and game has the power to close the streams for fishing under authority given it to make regulations, it has always been reluctant to exercise the power after the season is opened April 15. Approximately 110 miles of trout streams in the state are leased and stocked by the board, most of them in the northern part of the state.

Fishing privileges have been acquired for the use of the public on the following streams: West branch of the Farmington river from the state line to Riverton; north branch of Salmon Brook from the state line to Tariffville, west branch of Salmon Brook from West Granby to Tariffville; Blackberry river from Canaan to Norfolk. Whiting river from the state line to East Canaan. Snake Meadow brook from Danielson to Moosup. Fenton river from Gurleyville to Willimantic and Mt. Hope river from two to three miles from its junction with the Fenton river.

These streams and water in state parks and forests will be affected by the order prohibiting fishing.

SPEAKS ON DUTY AND PRIVILEGE OF VOTING

The weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel with President William A. Anderson in the chair. Rev. E. C. Dunbar was the song leader and the programme included the usual group and club song numbers and a pleasing solo by Tyler Stanton. Max Hanover was the five minute speaker of the day and his topic was The Privilege of Voting. Mr. Hanover said:

With your kind indulgence, I will take up five minutes with a subject to which justice cannot be done in five minutes. However I will confine myself in conformity with the rule of our club. I want to talk to you about the greatest of all privileges enjoyed by the citizens of the United States, that is, the privilege of the vote, the privilege of expressing a voice in the affairs and the conduct of the nation. And yet, strange to say, of late a great number of American citizens have become indifferent and careless of this great privilege by refraining from voting. So much so that some of the most prominent American statesmen of today are worried about the lack of interest manifested by some of our citizens in the political conduct of the nation.

I may be permitted to quote no less an authority than President Coolidge, who in an address to the Daughters of American Revolution, urged the necessity of awakening our citizens to their duty as voters. The president pointed out that fewer than 50 per cent. of the qualified voters in the United States had cast their vote in the last two presidential elections and that in the senatorial elections of 1922, not a single candidate received anything like a majority of the total vote. The candidates received about eight to ten per cent., of the total qualified votes. Compare this with the average vote for the presidential elections between the years 1880 and 1896 in which, over 80 per cent. of the qualified vote had been cast and the low figures of the late elections become more striking. President Coolidge also pointed out that in the election of 1924 in Germany, over 83 per cent. of the qualified voters availed themselves of the privilege of suffrage.

I am calling attention to this matter because we Lions are interested in the welfare of our country. We Lions are interested in Americanism. The underlying principle of our club is the striving for the betterment of our country. It is an ever present incentive in our meetings. It is an entity which can be better defined by perception because it is rather difficult to define Americanism in words as it stands for an accumulation of principles of ethical conduct such as human tolerance, fair play in all our activities, good will and justice to our neighbors, honesty in dealing with our fellowmen, a sincere belief in liberty and equality for all citizens and a constant striving for real fraternity among all Americans.

By what I know of the Lions, I am convinced that the Lions understand Americanism in the terms I enumerated and I trust that you will always be interested in propagating our American institutions by expressing your voice in every election through the great privilege of suffrage and that you will urge your friends and neighbors to do likewise. We must ever bear in mind how dearly our forefathers paid for the privilege of universal suffrage.

President Anderson introduced Major General Morris B. Payne of the 192nd Artillery, C. N. G., of New London, wh ospoke on the subject Military Development. The meeting closed in the usual manner with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner followed by the salute to the flag.

F. P. BENT GETS HIS FIRST TARPON

Francis P. Bent, formerly of this city, now secretary of the chamber of commerce at Punta Gorda, Fla., has been catching some big fish.

The Tampa Tribune tells the story as follows: Although the first tarpon of the year has been reported caught at least a score of times in these parts, it remained for Col. Francis P. Bent, secretary of the chamber of commerce to land one of the "silver kings" with only a trout line and bait.

"Tuesday afternoon, (May 4.) Col. Bent and Earnest Pearce, owner of the yacht Myakka, and general manager of the Punta Gorda Finance company, made an excursion to the Myakka river for a few trout and other of the smaller finny tribe. On one of the casts, Col. Bent was astonished to feel a tremendous pulling on the line. Suddenly a tarpon leaped several feet into the air, with the minnow securely fastened to his mouth.

"After a fight of more than an hour, during which the tarpon made several desperate and futile dashes to break away, he was manoeuvered to shallow water and landed. It was a magnificent specimen, weighing nearly 50 pounds.

"It was Col. Bent's first experience with big fishing game."

PLAYGROUNDS ON INCREASE IN CONNECTICUT CITIES

Connecticut cities maintained 379 directed playgrounds and recreation centers last year, nearly twice as many as ten years before, according to the Year Book of the Playground and Recreation association of America, just issued. They invested a total of $208,084.63 in public recreation during 1925, an amount exceeded by no other New England state except Massachusetts.

An average of 21,266 people daily participated in activities at play centers in 15 Connecticut cities last year, attendance figures show. Recreation for adults as well as children was provided, the facilities used by grown-ups including seven community centers, 85 tennis courts and 60 quoit courts. Bridgeport, Hartford and Stamford have municipal golf courses.

Three hundred and seventy eight play leaders were employed in the state last year, 35 of them the year round.

Hartford and New Haven were pioneers in the national recreation movement, early records show. They were among the 41 American cities which had begun playground work before the Playground and Recreation association of America was organized by Theodore Roosevelt and others 20 years ago. Since 1906 the following Connecticut cities have secured playground and recreation centers under leadership: Ansonia, Branford, Bridgeport, Bristol, Derby, Enfield, Fairfield, Glastonbury, Meriden, Middletown, Mystic, Naugatuck, New Britain, New London, Norwich, Norwalk, Shelton, Stamford, South Manchester, Torrington, Wallingford, Waterbury, Watertown, Willimantic.

POLISH INSURRECTION IS REPORTED AS WEAKENING

Position of Marshal Pilsudski is Reported to Be Critical—Leader of Revolt is Contending With Government Troops in Warsaw and Those Coming From Outside—Pilsudski Has Offered to Negotiate on Condition That the Witos Cabinet Resign—It is Estimated That 200 Were Killed and About 1,000 Wounded in Fighting in Warsaw Thursday Night—Fighting Continued in the Capital Throughout Friday.

PARIS, May 14.—(AP)—The position of Marshal Pilsudski is reported to be critical in a Havas dispatch received by way of Berlin, quoting the Warsaw newspaper Maerkische Ostrauer Morgenzitunk. This dispatch says that Pilsudski has been obliged to contend with government troops in the interior of the city, and those coming from outside.

The fighting was particularly fierce last night and this afternoon, and it is estimated that 200 were killed and about 1,000 wounded.

Pilsudski offered to negotiate this morning on condition that the Witos cabinet resign, but the ministry, with the aproval of the president, refused.

WARSAW IS RESERVED BY FOUR ARMY CORPS

DANZIG, May 14.—(AP)—Reports reaching here say that Warsaw is besieged by four army corps under General Roswadzkiwn and that a number of pitched battles have taken place at Lublin, about 90 miles southeast of the capital.

These reports indicate that the laboring classes in Galicia are going over to Pilsudski in increasing numbers, the railroad workers preventing shipments of freight, with the exception of food supplies for Warsaw. Factories in Lodz have closed down.

PROGRESS OF THE REVOLT AS INDICATED BY DISPATCHES

PARIS, May 14.—(AP)—The spectacle of the president of the Polish republic and his legally constituted cabinet leaving Warsaw by airplane for Posen to continue the fight against Marshal Pilsudski while fighting is going on at the gates of Warsaw between the forces of Pilsudski and those of the government General Haller, is offered tonight by sketchy and conflicting dispatches from Prague, Vienna, Berlin and Polish frontier points.

Private advices reaching Berlin are that Pilsudski has issued a proclamation setting forth that the insurrection is not directed against President Wojciechowski, but simply against the government of Premier Witos, and that he does not propose to change the Polish constitution.

Vilna and Lodz are reported to have been taken by the Pilsudski forces, and apparently he is receiving strong support from certain workmen's organizations. Strikes are reported to have been proclaimed at numerous points in order to hinder the passage of government troop trains.

The government, according to last reports, is counting on the loyalty of the Posen, Lemberg, Cracow, and Przemysl garrisons, but in view of the attitude taken by labor, it may be impossible to get them to Warsaw in time to stem the movement and recapture the Belvedere palace and Toerh government buildings which are believed to be in the control of Pilsudski.

Trains arriving at provincial points from Warsaw are jammed with those fleeing from the city, where a shortage of foodstuffs already is threatened. A state of siege is said to have been proclaimed at Posen and Polish upper Silesia.

Although the news filtering in from Poland would seem to indicate that Pilsudski is in control in Warsaw, there are many political observers in France who believe that the last word has not yet been spoken, and that before a definite prediction can be made they must await the junction of the forces of Generals Sikorski and Haller, converging on Warsaw to engage the Pilsudski troops.

General Haller organized the Polish legion in the United States in the World war. Recently he has been in the political background.

The Polish embassy in Paris is being closely guarded by the police. It is besieged with nervous visitors anxiously seeking news, and the staff is kept busy answering telephone calls. The officials convey what meagre news they have in a calm manner, speaking in behalf of the government, but nothing has been said openly in condemnation of Pilsudski.

The possibility of civil warfare in the territory of France's eastern ally is the subject of concern to all serious-thinking sections of French public opinion. The Journal De Debats, in an outspoken editorial, says:

"Pilsudski has chosen a detestable method. If blood is shed by his fault, he will assume crushing responsibility.

"Poles living abroad should communite urgently to Warsaw the lamentable impressions produced by recent events among all Poland's friends, and beg their compatriots to end without delay a conflict which constitutes treason to the fatherland."

The Temps urges Pois to reflect upon Berlin's and Moscow's reactions to events in Warsaw. It emphasizes that whether Pilsudski is victorious or vanquished the situation is full of danger for Poland.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 14—(AP)—Fighting continued in Warsaw throughout the day until 5 o'clock tonight, say a dispatch from the Polish capital to the Tagblatt.

Pilsudski, according to this dispatch, has obtained the support of the social Democratic peoples and radical parties, the latter of which is demanding the resignation of President Wojciechowski, as well as the withdrawal of the members of the Witos cabinet.

FAVORABLE REPORT FOR RIGID "DRY" ENFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP)—The administration bill providing more rigid federal prohibition enforcement was reported favorably today by the senate judiciary committee with amendments.

The committee voted unanimously to report the bill after spending the day in discussion of proposed changes. Chairman Means of the special senate prohibition committee plans to call it up soon in the senate where he does not expect to get much opposition.

After long and heated wrangling the committee softened the provis'n dealing with search warrants for private homes. As the measure was originally drawn it provided for the issuance of search warrants for dwellings to be evidence that a still was in operation for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor for sale or other unlawful disposition." The committee struck out the unlawful purpose and substituted "barter or exchange."

It also cut out the entire section authorizing a legalized distiller to restore the proof of distilled spirits by the addition of ethyl alcohol where it had been lessened from natural causes. The committee took the position that this had no relation to law enforcement and should be included in a seperate bill.

THE FENTON AND MT. HOPE RIVERS OPEN TO FISHING

HARTFORD, May 14—(AP)—Four of the state leased and stocked trout streams and one pond were reopened for fishing late today following rains in the sections which considerably reduce the hazards of forest fires. These waters from which the ban is lifted, as announced by Superintendent of Fisheries and Game John W. Titcomb are the Fenton and Mt. Hope rivers in Mansfield and Windham, the Blackberry and Whiting rivers in Canaan, Norfolk and East Canaan, and Putnam Park pond in Fairfield.

The ban will continue against fishing in all other state controlled fresh waters, Mr. Titcomb said as the rains in other sections were not sufficient to provide safety from fires.

DECISION ON TROLLEYMEN'S WAGES TO BE MADE TODAY

NEW HAVEN, May 14—(AP)—The decision of the Connecticut company on the no wage increase asked by the state organization of trolleymen will be made known tomorrow morning when a report is made to the state conference board of trolleyman meeting here. It was understood tonight. The decision will be contained in an official announcement, it was said by representatives of both sides who would not give any other information on the disposition of the men's request for higher wages and shorter hours.

TROUBLE OVER DEMOTION OF POLICE SERGEANTS

NEW HAVEN, May 14.—(AP)—The mandamus proceedings of the four demoted police sergeants, Michael Quinn, Thomas Reynolds, J. J. Tiernan and William Doherty, against the city of New Haven and its board of police commissioners, were only the subject of an informal discussion today between lawyers representing both sides. Though the action, designed to prevent the police commissioners from carrying into effect their vote of demotion, had been in court for a short time it did not go on official record until today, which was named in the writ as the return day in superior court.

The corporation counsel recently filed the city's reply to the allegations of the four sergeants, and their side is expected to file its answer soon. It was said today that as the demotions were made upon recommendation of Chief Philip T. Smith, the latter probably will be called as a witness. The chief is abroad with the Foot Guard, and the actual trial of the case may not be asked for until he returns.

SENTENCED FOR ATTEMPTING TO BRIBE STATE POLICEMAN

BRIDGEPORT, May 14—(AP)—Convicted of attempting to bribe a state policeman to betray his trust and make it safe and convenient for him to run alcohol through Connecticut, Stanley Kokernake, 33, of Webster, Mass., was sentenced to the state prison for from one to three years by Judge John H. Booth in criminal superior court this afternoon.

Kokernake gave Policeman George Webber, attached to the Hiddefield barracks, $25 on last February 22. He was immediately arrested. Charged with bribery, he asserted he had been so grateful for the courtesy, the manliness and the "niceness" of state policemen when he was arrested last December, that the $25 was a gift, bestowed only to express his appreciation, and he shrank from the idea it could be interpreted as a crude bribe.

NEW YORK, May 14—(AP)—Because he believed society is not corrupted by exhibitions to which it has become quite accustomed by the frequency of similar entertainments, Magistrate Gordon today dismissed charges in connection with the Eden dance of a "Broadway Eve."

The charges were brought against Beryl Halley, a dancer, and Ramsay Wallace, and Harry Selwyn producer and manager of the show in which she danced, by two patrolmen. The magistrate pointed out that what the plaintiffs called indecency the defendants classified as art.

WOULD PROVIDE PERSONNEL FOR FLEET OF 1,800 AIRPLANES

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP)—Expansion of the personnel of the army air service to man a fleet of 1,800 airplanes would be authorized under an amended house bill reported today by the senate military committee.

As approved by the house, the bill directed enlargement of the personnel within five years from next July, but acting upon suggestions by President Coolidge, the senate committee inserted an amendment merely authorizing the increase as the necessary funds are alloted yearly by the budget bureau and appropriated by congress.

The enlargement of the personnel by more than 6,000 men and 403 officers from grades of second lieutenant to colonel would place a fixed charge of $40,000,000 a year on the treasury and the president was represented as feeling that the imposition of this maximum should be deferred for some time.

In line with the suggestion the committee made another amendment under which authority for the increases would begin July 1, 1927, instead of next July 1, as the house had proposed.

PROPOSAL FOR SETTLEMENT OF BRITISH COAL DISPUTE

LONDON, May 14.—(AP)—Proposals which he believes will provide a basis for settling the dispute in the coal mining industry have been drawn up by Premier Baldwin. The premier announced these proposals in the house of commons today, while a letter outlining them was on its way to Evan Williams, representing the mine owners, and Herbert Smith, president of the miners' federation.

In the letter Premier Baldwin says he does not expect a reply before Monday at the earliest.

These proposals call for a national wage board, along the lines of the present railway labour board, and provide for a subsidy, termed "further financial assistance to the industry to the amount of approximately 3,000,000 pound." The miners, however, it is stipulated, must accept an unnamed reduction in minimum wages other than subsistance rates, the amount to be agreed upon at a joint conference.

BOSTON ITALIAN MOTHERS' GIFT TO MRS. COOLIDGE

BOSTON, May 14.—(AP)—A dress of copps hill homespun is on its way to Washington as a gift to the first lady of the land from Italian mothers here. The material for the dress was woven by hand by members of the Mothers' clubs of the North Bennett Street industrial school.

A score of women, many of them making their first journey from Boston, left late today for the capital, to present to Mrs. Coolidge a specimen of their handiwork. For two years they had been saving nickels and dimes to make the trip possible. Tomorrow they will visit New York and Philadelphia, reaching Washington in the evening. The presentation to Mrs Coolidge will be Monday afternoon.

The dress is of white wool, soft and fine in texture, woven with stripes of black as a border for the skirt and narrower stripes for collar and cuffs. It is designed for sports wear. The materia is given its name from the proximity of the school to the historic Copps Hill burying ground.

PRESIDENTIAL PARTY IS BOUND FOR WILLIAMSBURG

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—President Coolidge, aboard the Mayflower, was cruising tonight on the lower Potomac bound for Williamsburg, Va., where he will speak tomorrow at sesqui-centennial exercises commemorating the Virginia resolutions of independence.

It was on May 15, 1776, that Virginia house of burgesses adopted resolutions instructing their delegates to continental congress to work for the independence of the American colonies from Great Britai, the first action along this line taken by any of the colonies.

Accompanying the president are Mrs. Coolidge and a number of guests including Senator and Mrs. Swanson Senator Glass, and Representative and Mrs. Montague, of Virginia. Secretary Sanders, C. Bascom Slemp of Virginia, former secretary, and Colonel Henry W. Anderson of Richmond agent for the American-Mexican mixed claims commission.

Industries Resume Operations in Britain

Outside the Miners, the Only Industry Unsettled is That of the Printers.

LONDON, May 14.—(AP)—The heavy clouds which lowered over Great Britain's industrial world last night cleared today, and the present prospect is that next Monday will see most of its industries, paralyzed by the general strike, working again, with the possible exception of the mines.

Likewise, there is a greater hopefulness than ever before that a satisfactory solution of the mining difficulty will be reached before long.

The outstanding event of the day was the announcement of the government's decision that, as a mutual agreement between the miners and mine owners was impossible if they were permitted to come together of their own accord, it must act on its own responsibility if any solution was to be found. Premier Baldwin, therefore, reduced the recommendations of the royal coal commission to succinct form and submitted them to the parties with an undertaking to help the industry to the extent of 3,000,000 pounds and to pass, if possible, in the present session of parliament the necessary legislation to put the recommendations into effect.

The general situation also improved rapidly. An agreement was reached between the railway managers and the railroadmen's unions for reinstatement of the men, although the unions had to make certain broad concessions. Arrangements also were made for the resumption of work on the tramways, the underground tubes and the omnibuses. Here doubtless, there will be considerable difficult details to settle about the disposition of volunteer workers who aided the government, and who have Premier Baldwin's pledge that they will not suffer for their loyalty.

The only important industry still in an unsettled state is that of the printers. Prolonged conferences were held today between the printers' representatives and the newspaper owners. These meetings were adjourned until tomorrow, no agreement having been reached. Hence the newspapers are still appearing in skeleton form.

The federation of British industries, embracing employers generally, has issued a statement denying reports that the employers were imposing conditions and insisting on wage reductions before reinstating the men.

MELLON AND DAVIS ARE CAMPAIGNING FOR PEPPER

PITTSBURGH, May 14—(AP)—Pennsylvania's two representatives in the president's cabinet, Secretaries Andrew W. Mellon and James J. Davis, addressing a mass meeting here tonight, urged support at the state primary Tuesday of Senator George W. Pepper and other republican candidates endorsed by the treasury head. Senator David A. Reed also spoke in the interest of his colleague.

Senator Pepper, seeking re-election, is opposed for the republican nomination by Governor Gifford Pinchot and Congressman William S. Vare.

The election, Secretary Mellon said, will determine whether the state shall continue to be represented strongly in the Senate of the United States."

He spoke of the leadership of President Coolidge, under whose administration he said economy in government had been established, taxes lowered and prosperity placed on a sound basis. "But many perplexing problems remain to be solved," he added, "and we in this republican stronghold of Pennsylvania, can do no less than give to President Coolidge our endorsement and backing in his efforts to complete the work which he has begun."

Secretary Mellon commended Senator Pepper as a staunch supporter of the administration, enjoying "the confidence and esteem of the president and the party leaders at Washington" and as an influential senate committee member, and a faithful public official "who has clearly earned renomination."

Chiropractor Shot Dead in Danbury

Killed in His Private Office by a Chauffeur Said to Be Mentally Unbalanced.

DANBURY, May 14—(AP)—Dr. Louis H. Miller, young chiropractor, was shot and killed this afternoon in his private office in the Pershing building. Less than two hours later Joseph Thomas, a chauffeur said by police to be mentally deficient, was arrested in Bridgeport for local police. The doctor's appointment card showed that Thomas had an appointment at the time of the shooting.

Miller was shot four times, twice in the chest and two times in the head. He staggered out of the inner office into the hallway and started down the one flight of stairs. Half way down to the first floor he stumbled and fell the remaining distance. He was carried back to his office where he died within a few seconds.

A woman who had just entered the waiting room shortly before 4:30 told police she heard angry voices in the inner office and then four shots. She ran out the main entrance of the doctor's suite to the hall. There Dr. Miller passed her toward the stairs. She did not see anyone else leave the rooms, but police believed the man who did the shooting preceded the doctor out the private entrance and escaped.

Thomas was seen in a car, driven by his brother and headed towards Bridgeport, shortly after Miller was shot.

Miller who came here several years ago from Long Island, was married and had two small children. He was about 35 years old.

As far as could be ascertained by the police in their early investigation of the shooting he had not had any trouble with Thomas or anyone else here.

WHEREABOUTS OF THE NORGE REMAINS LOST TO THE WORLD

Every Possible Radio Channel of Communication Has Failed to Bring a Reply From the Dirigible—Last Radio Reported to Have Been Picked Up From the Norge Was That She Had Passed Point Barrow, Alaska, at 9 A. M. Thursday—The Message Could Not Be Verified.

BREMERTON, WASH., May 14—(AP)—The dirigible Norge, which Tuesday passed over the north pole and yesterday reached the northern tip of North America after sailing across the sky from rim to rim of the Arctic ocean, today remained lost to the world.

Every possible radio channel of communication, the navy radio station of the Puget Sound Navy yard here announced, was covered. This station was in constant communication with a navy radio station at Cordova, Alaska, and Cordova with seven navy and army radio stations in a favorable position to communicate with the Norge, which has wireless.

Besides listening to these seven Cordova hears everything that passes through the air over the north Pacific ocean, northeastern Siberia, the Alaska-Siberian part of the Arctic ocean and Alaska. It is unlikely that the Norge had sent signals and Cordova had not obtained them and transmitted them to Bremerton.

The last word that the dirigible was in the air was a mysterious message picked up by the naval radio compass station at Hinchinbrook island, near Cordova, Alaska, saying that the Norge had passed Point Barrow, northern tip of Alaska, at 9 a. m. Thursday, Pacific coast time. This message could not be verified, however.

Another report has been that the dirigible was lighted at Point Barrow at 1:30 a. m., eastern standard time, Thursday.

Messages from the Norge were heard Wednesday night and early Thursday, the navy radio station at St. Paul's island, Alaska, reported, but since that time the dirigible's radio has been silent.

The Norge is long overdue at Nome. Among opinions heard as to the whereabouts of the Norge were:

Roald Amundsen, her commander, flew her to Wainwright, on the north western Alaska coast of the Arctic ocean.

Amundsen re-fueled his airship at Wainwright, where he had a cache of gasoline left from an attempt to fly over the pole in an airplane in 1923, and hurried back north to seek land or the ocean north of Alaska. Those venturing this opinion remarked that Amundsen was fond of fooling the world when he gets away from land or into a wilderness.

The Norge was deflated at Wainwright, that village having more than enough folk to draw her to the ground, and will be shipped out to the states when navigation of the Arctic ocean opens in July.

Few were heard to opine that the Norge had met with disaster. Optimists pointed to reports from Washington and Seattle of good weather in all of the regions where it was considered likely the Norge might be.

The optimists cited a rapid, trouble-less passage from Spitzbergen to Point Barrow, northern tip of Alaska.

They recalled Amundsen's mysterious reappearance to the world after he first navigated the northwest passage in the ship GJOA. Then they spoke of May 21, 1925, when Amundsen, Ellsworth and four other men hopped off from King's Bay in two planes, went to within 150 miles of the north pole, wrecked one of the machines and June 13, 1925, arrived at King's Bay in the other with stories of hardship and heroism.

Since the Norge was reported over Point Barrow, a storm has been raging over the Behring Sea and part of northern Alaska, which may have blocked the airship from Nome and forced her descent either along the coast or in the interior.

The theory that the Norge was riding in a circle with the storm and would probably pass near Wrangle Island, over the coast of Siberia into the Behring Sea, and thus travel up to Nome from the south was advanced tonight by Captain Anton Heinen, who sailed the Los Angeles from Germany to the United States.

He believed the airship had more than half the gasoline with which she started from Spitzbergen when she arrived at northern Alaska, using a single engine. He said the dirigible would be able to continue in motion for 144 hours longer.

"I would not begin to worry about her until Monday," he said.

If the Norge were forced to land in the sea, skid-filled boats of canvas and rubber would be launched, each capable of holding three or four men. These rafts would not be useful for rough navigation and would be exceedingly hazardous in Arctic waters where floating ice cakes might easily cause punctures.

If they made a safe landing on land the members of the expedition would have to march on foot, dragging hand sleds to the nearest Eskimo village. Under such conditions it might be weeks or months before they were heard from.

BAY STATE FOREST FIRES DAMAGE $200,000 IN MASS.

BOSTON, May 14—(AP)—Hundreds of forest fires in Massachusetts this year, entailing losses of more than $200,000, have stirred state officials to action. It is estimated that more than 42,000 acres of land have been burned over in more than 2,000 fires. A warning yesterday by Gov. F. W. that state forests would be closed unless carelessness was checked was followed today by the filing of a bill to curb the carelessness that results in fires.

A compulsory jail sentence up to six months, for causing a fire by throwing away lighted matches, cigars, cigarettes or contents of a pipe, was proposed in a bill filed with the legislature today by William A. L. Baseley, state, commissioner of conservation. The bill would also provide for revocation of licenses of automobiles guilty of starting fires.

Harold C. Hutchins, chief fire warden agreed with Commissioner Baseley that the increase in smoking by women and girls has had considerable to do with the striking advance in the number of fires.

The latest and most widespread of the fires that have swept the state this spring were brought under control in Falmouth on Cape Cod today after they had swept over 20,000 acres of woodland, destroyed two camps and cut wood possibly representing thousands of cords. A thousand men from four towns fought the fire while it was at its worst. Heavy rain today was expected to result in the complete extinguishing of the flames.

FEATURES OF THE PROGRAM FOR COAL LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, May 14—(AP)—Steady fact finding activity and provision for government aid in any emergency were outlined today as features of the administration's program for coal legislation.

Secretary Hoover and George Otis Smith, head of the geological survey and a member of the president's coal commission, told the house commerce that truthful publicity must be the basis of any effective solution of the coal problem. A measure enlarging the fact finding power of the bureau of mines is being drafted by Chairman Parker of the committee. It is similar in principle to the Copeland measure recently approved by a senate committee.

Secretary Hoover urged that fact finding activity include statistics upon production, distribution, stocks consumption, wages and average prices. The chief ills of the bituminous industry, he said, are too many mines and the seasonal character of the industry. "But regardless of the solution, prevention of periodic suspension of production must come first."

WOULD HAVE PARLORS FOR COURTSHIP IN CHURCH

HARTFORD, May 14.—(AP)—"I believe there should be a great central young peoples' parlor in every church," declared Rev. Dr. Landrith said he believed this could be provided young people for their courting, with a partition between each couple but with chaperone in the center of the room who would give proper supervision.

LIGHT RAIN CHECKED FOREST FIRES IN STATE

NEW HAVEN, May 14 (AP)—A moderate rain checked woods fires in Connecticut materially today and may have put most of them out. The worst fires were in the eastern part of the state in the towns of Eastford, Ashford and Hampton, where one was 16 miles long, and the other in Haddam in the lower Connecticut river valley. State Forester Austin F. Hawes said late today that hope was held that the rain had penetrated the brush and swamp lands sufficiently to have ended fires but should the weather turn warm and dry tomorrow a recrudescence of some of the fires was almost certain.

The state forestry department has made no attempt to estimate the fire damage to woods and fields during the past ten days. Fire wardens in many towns have been kept busy with the open protection duty as in fighting fire. Prior to the rain which fell today there had only been one slight trace of moisture in nearly a fortnight in all parts of the state.

The state fish and game department issued a ban on fishing and hunting effective tonight as a precautionary measure and this went into force in spite of the wet weather on the theory that the rainfall was not sufficient to remove all danger of re-appearance of fires in dried-out bog and swamp lands. The ban will not be revoked until the forestry department is sure that danger conditions have gone.

THREE BOYS KILLED BY BOSTON AND MAINE TRAIN

HOLYOKE, Mass., May 14—(AP)—Three boys, two of them just entering their teens and the other still younger, were killed late this afternoon when they were struck by a south bound Boston and Main passenger train at "Dead Man's curve", north of the city.

Edward Ryan, 11, and Thomas McElliott, 13, were killed instantly and Francis Wilette, 9, lived to reach the Providence hospital, where he died of a crushed skull.

The boys were walking south on the northbound track and stepped into the southbound track while a freight passed, and with the engineer's view obstructed by the freight train, the southbound passenger train, struck the lads. Ryan's body was hurled into a pond more than 25 feet from the tracks, and McElliott's was found on an embankment.

The Wilette boy was rushed to the hospital in a truck which was working on a dump nearby, where he died soon after admission, and it was several hours before he was identified.

Arthur Hunter of Springfield, the engineer, declared that he did not see the boys because of the curve until he saw their bodis tossed into the air by his locomotive.

POLISH INSURRECTION IS REPORTED AS WEAKENING

Position of Marshal Pilsudski is Reported to Be Critical—Leader of Revolt is Contending With Government Troops in Warsaw and Those Coming From Outside—Pilsudski Has Offered to Negotiate on Condition That the Witos Cabinet Resign—It is Estimated That 200 Were Killed and About 1,000 Wounded in Fighting in Warsaw Thursday Night—Fighting Continued in the Capital Throughout Friday.

PARIS, May 14.—(AP)—The position of Marshal Pilsudski is reported to be critical, in a Havas dispatch received from Berlin, quoting the Warsaw correspondent of the Berliche Ostrauer Morgenblatt. This dispatch says that Pilsudski has been obliged to contend with government troops in the interior of the city, and those coming from the suburbs.

The fighting was particularly fierce during the night and this afternoon, and it is estimated that 200 were killed and about 1,000 wounded.

Pilsudski offered to negotiate this morning on condition that the Witos cabinet resign. But the ministry, with the approval of the president, refused.

WARSAW IS RESERVED BY FOUR ARMY CORPS

DANZIG, May 14.—(AP)—Reports coming here say that Warsaw is besieged by four army corps under General Rozwadoskiwn and that a number of protracted battles have taken place in Radzimin, about 20 miles southeast of the capital.

These reports indicate that the fighting classes in Galicia are going over to Pilsudski in increasing numbers, the railroad workers preventing shipments of freight, with the exception of food supplies for Warsaw. Factories in Lodz have closed down.

PROGRESS OF THE REVOLT AS INDICATED BY DISPATCHES

PARIS, May 14.—(AP)—The spectacle of the president of the Polish republic and his legally constituted cabinet leaving Warsaw by airplane for Posen to continue the fight against Marshal Pilsudski while fighting is going on at the gates of Warsaw between the forces of Pilsudski and those of the government General Haller, is offered tonight by sketchy and conflicting dispatches from Prague, Vienna, Berlin and Polish frontier points.

Private advices reaching Berlin are said by Pilsudski proclamations setting forth that the insurrection is not directed against President Wojciechowski, but simply against the government of Premier Witos, and that he does not propose to change the Polish constitution.

Lwow and Lodz are reported to have been taken by the Pilsudski forces. Apparently he is receiving strong support from certain workmen's organizations. Strikes are reported to have been proclaimed at numerous points in order to hinder the passage of government troop trains.

The government, according to last reports, is counting on the loyalty of the Posen, Lemberg, Cracow, and Przemysl garrisons, but in view of the attitude taken by labor, it may be impossible to get them to Warsaw in time to stem the movement and recapture the Belvedere palace and Toerh government buildings which are believed to be in the control of Pilsudski.

Trains arriving at provincial points from Warsaw are jammed with those fleeing from the city, where a shortage of foodstuffs already is threatened. A state of siege is said to have been proclaimed at Posen and Polish upper Silesia.

Although the news filtering in from Poland would seem to indicate that Pilsudski is in control in Warsaw, there are many political observers in France who believe that the last word has not yet been spoken, and that before a definite prediction can be made they must await the junction of the forces of Generals Sikorski and Haller, converging on Warsaw to engage the Pilsudski troops.

General Haller organized the Polish legion in the United States in the World war. Recently he has been in the political background.

The Polish embassy in Paris is being closely guarded by the police. It is besieged with nervous visitors anxiously seeking news, and the staff is kept busy answering telephone calls. The officials convey what meagre news they have in a calm manner, speaking in behalf of the government, but nothing has been said openly in condemnation of Pilsudski.

The possibility of civil warfare in the territory of France's eastern ally is the subject of concern to all serious-thinking sections of French public opinion. The Journal De Debats, in an outspoken editorial, says:

"Pilsudski has chosen a detestable method. If blood is shed by his fault, he will assume crushing responsibility. . . . Poles living abroad should communite urgently to Warsaw the lamentable impressions produced by recent events among all Poland's friends, and beg their compatriots to end without delay a conflict which constitutes treason to the fatherland."

The Temps urges Pois to reflect upon Berlin's and Moscow's reactions to events in Warsaw. It emphasizes that whether Pilsudski is victorious or vanquished the situation is full of danger for Poland.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 14 (AP)—Fighting continued in Warsaw throughout the day until 8 o'clock tonight, say a dispatch from the Polish capital to the Tagblatt.

Pilsudski, according to this dispatch, has obtained the support of the social democratic, peoples and radical parties, the latter of which is demanding the resignation of President Wojciechowski, as well as the withdrawal of the members of the Witos cabinet.

FAVORABLE REPORT FOR RIGID "DRY" ENFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP)—The administration bill providing more rigid federal prohibition enforcement was reported favorably today by the senate judiciary committee with amendments.

The committee voted unanimously to report the bill after spending the day in discussion of proposed changes. Chairman Means of the special senate prohibition committee plans to call it up soon in the senate where he does not expect to get much opposition.

After long and heated wrangling the committee softened the provisions dealing with search warrants for private homes. As the measure was originally drawn it provided for the issuance of search warrants for dwellings on evidence that a still was in operation for the manufacture of intoxicating liquors for sale, or other unlawful disposition." The committee struck out the unlawful purpose and substituted "barter or exchange."

It also cut out the entire section authorizing a legalized distiller to restore the proof of distilled spirits by the addition of ethyl alcohol where it had been lessened from natural causes. The committee took the position that this had no relation to law enforcement and should be included in a separate bill.

These waters from which the ban is lifted, as announced by Superintendent of Fisheries and Game John W Titcomb are the Fenton and Mt. Hope rivers in Mansfield and Windham, the Blackberry and Whiting rivers in Canaan, Norfolk and East Canaan, and Putnam Park pond in Fairfield.

The ban will continue against fishing in all lother state controlled fresh waters. Mr. Titcomb said as the rains in other sections were not sufficient to provide safety from fires.

TROUBLE OVER DEMOTION OF POLICE SERGEANTS

NEW HAVEN, May 14.—(AP)—The mandamus proceedings of the four demoted police sergeants, Michael Quinn, Thomas Reynolds, J. J. Tiernan and William Doherty, against the city of New Haven and its board of police commissioners, were only the subject of an informal discussion today between lawyers representing both sides. Though the action, designed to prevent the police commissioners from carrying into effect their vote of demotion, had been in court for a short time it did not go on official record until today, which was named in the writ as the return day in superior court.

The corporation counsel recently filed the city's reply to the allegations of the four sergeants, and their side is expected to file its answer soon. It was said today that as the demotions were made upon recommendation of Chief Philip T. Smith, the latter probably will be called as a witness. The chief is abroad with the Foot Guard, and the actual trial of the case may not be asked for until he returns.

SENTENCED FOR ATTEMPTING TO BRIBE STATE POLICEMAN

BRIDGEPORT, May 14—(AP)—Convicted of attempting to bribe a state policeman to betray his trust and make it safe and convenient for him to run alcohol through Connecticut, Stanley Kokernake, 23, of Webster, Mass., was sentenced to the state prison for from one to three years by Judge John R. Booth in criminal superior court this afternoon.

Kokernake gave Policeman George Webber, attached to the Hide-a-field barracks, $25 on last February 22. He was immediately arrested. Charged with bribery, he asserted he had been so grateful for the courtesy, the manliness and the "niceness" of state policemen when he was arrested last December, that the $25 was a gift, bestowed only to express his appreciation, and he shrank from the idea it could be interpreted as a crude bribe.

NEW YORK, May 14—(AP)—Because he believed society is not corrupted by exhibitions to which it has become quite accustomed by the frequency of similar entertainments, Magistrate Gordon today dismissed charges in connection with the Eden dance of a "Broadway Eve."

The charges were brought against Beryl Halley, a dancer, and Ramsay Wallace, and Harry Selwyn producer and manager of the show in which she danced, by two patrolmen. The magistrate pointed out that what the plaintiffs called indecency the defendants classified as art

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP)—Expansion of the personnel of the army air service to man a fleet of 1,800 airplanes would be authorized under an amended house bill reported today by the senate military committee.

As approved by the house, the bill directed enlargement of the personnel within five years from next July, but acting upon suggestions by President Coolidge, the senate committee inserted an amendment merely authorizing the increase as the necessary funds are alloted yearly by the budget bureau and appropriated by congress.

This enlargement of the personnel by more than 5,000 men and 403 officers from grades of second lieutenant to colonel would place a fixed charge of $40,800,000 a year on the treasury and the president was represented as feeling that the imposition of this maximum should be deferred for some time.

In line with this suggestion the committee made another amendment under which authority for the increase would begin July 1, 1927, instead of next July 1, as the house had proposed.

PROPOSAL FOR SETTLEMENT OF BRITISH COAL DISPUTE

LONDON, May 14.—(AP)—Proposals which he believes will provide a basis for settling the dispute in the coal mining industry have been drawn up by Premier Baldwin. The premier announced these proposals in the house of commons today, while a letter outlining them was on its way to Evan Williams, representing the mine owners, and Herbert Smith, president of the miners' federation.

In the letter Premier Baldwin says he does not expect a reply before Monday at the earliest.

These proposals call for a national wage board, along the lines of the present railway labour board, and provide for a subsidy, termed "further financial assistance to the industry to the amount of approximately 3,000,000 pound." The miners, however, it is stipulated, must accept an unnamed reduction in minimum wages other than subsistance rates, the amount to be agreed upon at a joint conference.

BOSTON ITALIAN MOTHERS' GIFT TO MRS. COOLIDGE

BOSTON, May 14.—(AP)—A dress of copps hill homespun is on its way to Washington as a gift to the first lady of the land from Italian mothers here. The material for the dress was woven by hand by members of the mothers' clubs of the North Bennett Street Industrial school.

A score of women, many of them making their first journey from Boston, left late today for the capital, to present to Mrs. Coolidge a specimen of their handiwork. For two years they had been saving nickels and dimes to make the trip possible. Tomorrow they will visit New York and Philadelphia, reaching Washington in the evening. The presentation to Mrs. Coolidge will be Monday afternoon.

The dress is of white wool, soft and light in texture, woven with stripes of red as a border for the skirt a narrower stripe for collar and cuffs. It is designed for sports wear. The material is given its name from the proximity of the school to the historic Copps Hill burying ground.

PRESIDENTIAL PARTY IS BOUND FOR WILLIAMSBURG

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—President Coolidge, aboard the Mayflower, was cruising tonight on the lower Potomac bound for Williamsburg, Va., where he will speak tomorrow at sesqui-centennial exercises commemorating the Virginia resolutions of independence.

It was on May 15, 1776, that Virginia house of burresses adopted resolutions instructing their delegates to continental congress to work for the independence of the American colonies from Great Britai, the first action along this line taken by any of the colonies.

Accompanying the president are Mrs. Coolidge and a number of guests including Senator and Mrs. Swanson Senator Glass, and Representative and Mrs Montague, of Virginia. Secretary Sanders, C. Bascom Slemp of Virginia, former secretary, and Colonel Henry W. Anderson of Richmond agent for the American-Mexican mixed claims commission.

Industries Resume Operations in Britain

Outside the Miners, the Only Industry Unsettled is That of the Printers.

LONDON, May 14.—(AP)—The heavy clouds which lowered over Great Britain's industrial world last night cleared today, and the present prospect is that next Monday will see most of its industries, paralyzed by the general strike, working again, with the possible exception of the mines.

Likewise, there is a greater hopefulness than ever before that a satisfactory solution of the mining difficulty will be reached before long.

The outstanding event of the day was the announcement of the government's decision that, as a mutual agreement between the miners and mine owners was impossible if they were permitted to come together of their own accord, it must act on its own responsibility if any solution was to be found. Premier Baldwin, therefore, reduced the recommendations of the royal coal commission to succinct form and submitted them to the parties with an undertaking to help the industry to the extent of 3,000,000 pounds and to pass, if possible, in the present session of parliament the necessary legislation to put the recommendations into effect.

The general situation also improved rapidly. An agreement was reached between the railway managers and the railroadmen's unions for reinstatement of the men, although the unions had to make certain broad concessions. Arrangements also were made for the resumption of work on the tramways, the underground tubes and the omnibuses. Here doubtless, there will be considerable difficult details to settle about the disposition of volunteer workers who aided the government, and who have Premier Baldwin's pledge that they will not suffer for their loyalty.

The only important industry still in unsettled state is that of the printers. Prolonged conferences were held today between the printers' representatives and the newspaper owners. These meetings were adjourned until tomorrow no agreement having been reached. Hence the newspapers are still appearing in skeleton form.

The federation of British industries, embracing employers generally, has issued a statement denying reports that the employers were imposing conditions and insisting on wage reductions before reinstating the men

MELLON AND DAVIS ARE CAMPAIGNING FOR PEPPER

PITTSBURGH, May 14—(AP)—Pennsylvania's two representatives in the president's cabinet, Secretaries Andrew W. Mellon and James J. Davis, addressing a mass meeting here tonight, urged support at the state primary Tuesday of Senator George W. Pepper and other republican candidates endorsed by the treasury head. Senator David A. Reed also spoke in the interest of his colleague.

Senator Pepper, seeking re-election, is opposed for the republican nomination by Governor Gifford Pinchot and Congressman William S. Vare.

The election, Secretary Mellon said, "will determine whether the state shall continue to be represented strongly in the Senate of the United States."

He spoke of the leadership of President Coolidge, under whose administration he said economy in government had been established, taxes lowered and prosperity placed on a sound basis. "But many perplexing problems remain to be solved," he added, "and we in this republican stronghold of Pennsylvania, can do no less than give to President Coolidge our endorsement and backing in his efforts to complete the work which he has begun."

Secretary Mellon commended Senator Pepper as a staunch supporter of the administration, enjoying "the confidence and esteem of the president and the party leaders at Washington" and as an influential senate committee member, and a faithful public official "who has clearly earned renomination."

Chiropractor Shot Dead in Danbury

Killed in His Private Office by a Chauffeur Said to Be Mentally Unbalanced.

DANBURY, May 14—(AP)—Dr. Louis H. Miller, young chiropractor, was shot and killed this afternoon in his private office in the Pershing building. Less than two hours later Joseph Thomas, a chauffeur said by police to be mentally deficient, was arrested in Bridgeport for local police. The doctor's appointment card showed that Thomas had an appointment at the time of the shooting.

Miller was shot four times, twice in the chest and two times in the head. He staggered out of the inner office into the hallway and started down the one flight of stairs. Half way down to the first floor he stumbled and fell the remaining distance. He was carried back to his office where he died within a few seconds.

A woman who had just entered the waiting room shortly before 4:30 told police she heard angry voices in the inner office and then four shots. She ran out the main entrance of the doctor's suite to the hall. There Dr. Miller passed her toward the stairs. She did not see anyone else leave the rooms, but police believed the man who did the shooting preceded the doctor out the private entrance and escaped.

Thomas was seen in a car, driven by his brother and headed towards Bridgeport, shortly after Miller was shot.

Miller who came here several years ago from Long Island, was married and had two small children. He was about 35 years old.

As far as could be ascertained by the police in their early investigation of the shooting he had not had any trouble with Thomas or anyone else here.

This financial status was brought about as a result of funds contributed since October by dioceses throughout the country to wipe out a deficit of $1,000,000, Mr. Franklin said. Outside of money borrowed from reserve deposit accounts in the sum of $708,000, "we don't owe a penny to anybody," he said.

WHEREABOUTS OF THE NORGE REMAINS LOST TO THE WORLD

Every Possible Radio Channel of Communication Has Failed to Bring a Reply From the Dirigible—Last Radio Reported to Have Been Picked Up From the Norge Was That She Had Passed Point Barrow, Alaska, at 9 A. M. Thursday—The Message Could Not Be Verified.

BREMERTON, WASH., May 14—(AP)—The dirigible Norge, which Tuesday passed over the north pole and yesterday reached the northern tip of North America after sailing across the sky from rim to rim of the Arctic ocean, today remained lost to the world.

Every posible radio channel of communication, the navy radio station of the Puget Sound Navy yard here announced, was covered. This station was in constant communication with a navy radio station at Cordova, Alaska, and Cordova with seven navy and army radio stations in a favorable position to communicate with the Norge, which has wireless.

Besides listening to these seven Cordova hears everything that passes through the air over the north Pacific ocean, northeastern Siberia, the Alaska-Siberian part of the Arctic ocean and Alaska. It is unlikely that the Norge had sent signals and Cordova had not obtained them and transmitted them to Bremerton.

The last word that the dirigible was in the air was a mysterious message picked up by the naval radio compass station at Hinchinbrook Island, near Cordova, Alaska, saying that the Norge had passed Point Barrow, northern tip of Alaska, at 9 a. m. Thursday, Pacific coast time. This message could not be verified, however.

Another report has been that the dirigible was lighted at Point Barrow at 1:49 a. m., eastern standard time, Thursday.

Messages from the Norge were heard Wednesday night and early Thursday, the navy radio station at St. Paul's island, Alaska, reported, but since that time the dirigible's radio has been silent.

The Norge is long overdue at Nome. Among opinions heard as to the whereabouts of the Norge were:

Roald Amundsen, her commander, flew her to Wainwright, on the northwestern Alaska coast of the Arctic ocean.

Amundsen re-fueled his airship at Wainwright, where he had a cache of gasoline left from an attempt to fly over the pole in an airplane in 1923, and hurried back north to seek land in the ocean north of Alaska. Those venturing this opinion remarked that Amundsen was fond of feeling the world when he gets away from land or into a wilderness.

The Norge was defiated at Wainwright, that village having more than enough folk to draw her to the ground, and will be shipped out to the states when navigation of the Arctic ocean opens in July.

Few were heard to opine that the Norge had met with disaster. Optimists pointed to reports from Washington and Seattle of good weather in all of the regions where it was considered likely the Norge might be.

The optimists cited a rapid, troublelesa passage from Spitzbergen to Point Barrow, northern tip of Alaska.

They recalled Amundsen's mysterious reappearance to the world after he first navigated the northwest passage in the ship GJOA. Then they spoke of May 21, 1925, when Amundsen, Ellsworth and four other men hoged off from King's Bay in two planes, went to within 150 miles of the north pole, wrecked one of the machines and June 18, 1925, arrived at King's Bay in the other with stories of hardship and heroism.

Since the Norge was reported over Point Barrow, a storm has been raging over the Behring Sea and part of northern Alaska, which may have blocked the airship from Nome and forced her descent either along the coast or in the interior.

The theory that the Norge was riding in a circle with the storm and would probably pass near Wrangle Island, over the coast of Siberia into the Behring Sea, and thus travel up to Nome from the south was advanced tonight by Captain Anton Heinen, who sailed the Lee Angler from Germany to the United States.

He believed the airship had more than half the gasoline with which she started from Spitzbergen when she arrived at northern Alaska, using a single engine. He said the dirigible would be able to continue in motion for 144 hours longer.

"I would not begin to worry about her until Monday," he said.

If the Norge were forced to land in the sea, aid-filled boats of canvas and rubber would be launched, each capable of holding three or four men. These rafts would not be useful for rough navigation and would be exceedingly hazardous in Arctic waters where floating ice cakes might easily cause punctures.

If they made a safe landing on land the members of the expedition would have to march on foot, dragging hand sleds to the nearest Eskimo village. Under such conditions it might be weeks or months before they were heard from.

BAY STATE FOREST FIRES DAMAGE $200000 IN MASS.

BOSTON, May 14—(AP)—Hundreds of forest fires in Massachusetts this year, entailing losses of more than $200,000, have stirred state officials to action. It is estimated that more than 42,000 acres of land have been burned over in more than 2,000 fires. A warning yesterday by Gov. Fuller that state forests would be closed unless carelessness was checked was followed today by the filing of a bill to curb the carelessness that results in fires.

A compulsory jail sentence up to six months, for causing a fire by throwing away lighted matches, cigars, cigarettes or contents of a pipe, was proposed in a bill filed with the legislature today by William A. L. Baseley, state commissioner of conservation. The bill would also provide for revocation of licenses of automobiles guilty of starting fires.

Harold C. Hutchins, chief fire warden agreed with Commissioner Baseley that the increase in smoking by women and girls has had considerable to do with the striking advance in the number of fires.

The latest and most widespread of the fires that have swept the state this spring were brought under control in Falmouth on Cape Cod, today after they had swept over 20,000 acres of woodland destroyed two camps and cut wood possibly aggregating thousands of cords. A thousand men from four towns fought the fire while it was at its worst. Heavy rain today was expected to result in the complete extinguishing of the falmes.

FEATURES OF THE PROGRAM FOR COAL LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, May 14—(AP)—Steady fact finding activity and provision for government aid in any emergency were outlined today as features of the administration's program for coal legislation.

Secretary Hoover and George Otis Smith, head of the geological survey and a member of the president's coal commission, told the house commerce that truthful publicity must be the basis of any effective solution or the coal problem. A measure enlarging the fact finding power of the bureau of mines is being drafted by Chairman Parker of the committee. It is similar in principle to the Coueland measure recently approved by a senate committee.

Secretary Hoover urged that fact finding activity include statistics upon production, distribution, stocks consumption, wages and average prices. The chief ills of the bituminous industry, he said, are too many mines and the seasonal character of the industry, "but regardless of the solution, prevention of periodic suspension of production must come first."

WOULD HAVE PARLORS FOR COURTSHIP IN CHURCH

HARTFORD, May 14.—(AP)—"I believe there should be a great central young peoples' parlor in every church," declared Rev. Dr. Ira Landrith, extension secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, speaking last night at the fellowship dinner of the 31st annual session of the Connecticut Christian Endeavor convention at the Central Baptist church attended by 300 young people.

Dr. Landrith said he believed this would be provided young people for their courtships, with a partition between each couple but with chaperone in the center of the room who would give proper supervision.

LIGHT RAIN CHECKED FOREST FIRES IN STATE

NEW HAVEN, May 14 (AP)—A moderate rain checked woods fires in Connecticut materially today and may have put most of them out. The worst fires were in the eastern part of the state in the towns of Eastford, Ashford and Hampton, where one was 14 miles long, and the other in Haddam in the lower Connecticut river valley. State Forester Austin F. Hawes said late today that hope was held that the rain had penetrated the brush and swamp lands sufficiently to have ended fires but should the weather turn warm and dry tomorrow a recrudescence of some of the fires was almost certain.

The state forestry department has made no attempt to estimate the fire damage to woods and fields during the past ten days. Fire wardens in many towns have been kept busy either on protection duty or in fighting fire. Prior to the rain which fell today there had only been one slight trace of moisture in nearly a fortnight in all parts of the state.

The state fish and game department issued a ban on fishing and hunting effective tonight as a precautionary measure and this went into force in spite of the wet weather on the theory that the rainfall was not sufficient to remove all danger of re-appearance of fires in dried-out bog and swamp lands. The ban will not be revoked until the forestry department is sure that danger conditions have gone.

THREE BOYS KILLED BY BOSTON AND MAINE TRAIN

HOLYOKE, Mass., May 14—(AP)—Three boys, two of them just entering their teens and the other still younger, were killed late this afternoon when they were struck by a south bound Boston and Main passenger train at "Dead Man's curve", north of the city.

Edward Ryan, 11, and Thomas McElliott, 13, were killed instantly and Francis Willette, 9, lived to reach the Providence hospital, where he died of a crushed skull.

The boys were walking south on the northbound track and stepped into the southbound track while a freight passed, and with the engineer's view obstructed by the freight train, the southbound passenger, train, struck the lads. Ryan's body was hurled into a pond more than 25 feet from the tracks, and McElliott's was found on an embankment.

The Willette boy was rushed to the hospital in a truck which was working on a dump nearby, where he died soon after admission, and it was several hours before he was identified.

Arthur Hunter of Springfield, the engineer, declared that he did not see the boys because of the curve until he saw their bodis tossed into the air by his locomotive.

MANSFIELD SCHOOL BOARD DECISION FAVORS TEACHER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, May 14—Objections to the reappointment of Miss Julia Sawyer as the teacher of the Charleyville school were presented to the Mansfield Town School committee at its monthly meeting held in the poultry building of C. A. C. at Storrs Thursday night. Joseph Douda, on behalf of 14 petitioners, presented the objection, alleging that the teacher was incapable, showed favoritism and made mistakes in correcting examination papers. The board looked upon the protest as one of those oft-occurring parent versus teacher disputes. In the opinion of members of the committee talked with, Miss Sawyer is fully qualified for the position and the board voted no action taken on the protest. Miss Sawyer came from North Carolina three years ago, teaching in New London one year and in Gurleyville the past two years. M. Fearle Light, director of rural education and member of the state board of education was at the meeting in response to an invitation and he outlined the methods of procedure for a school survey of the town. The survey which was started Friday is to be made to obtain statistics so that the committee may plan for the future in its school program which will get under way soon. A check-up is to be made of the roads, the school buildings and the number of the pupils. Secretary William F. Kirkpatrick of the committee was notified Friday that a special map would be made of the town. Interior Light, will continue the survey next week. The graduation exercises of the grammar schools of Mansfield are to be held Friday night, June 11 at the Mansfield Center church, according to Secretary Kirkpatrick, who stated that due to a clash of dates for the commencement exercises at the agricultural college and the grammar schools, the latter could not be held at Storrs as in the past. Mrs. Robert E. Hanna, chairman of the board, presided over the session.

In police court Friday morning fines were imposed on Charles S. Garvin of Windham and Eugene J. Bourque of North Franklin when they were found guilty of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Garvin was arrested by Officer Albert Murphy shortly before midnight, whose attention to the car was drawn when he noticed defective lights. Garvin said that he had but one drink of liquor and two glasses of home brew and that he was fully able to operate the machine. When pressed to make known where he said that if a man was arrested under the influence of liquor after having had one drink he could have to plead guilty in that case. A fine of $100 and costs, amounting in all to $111 was imposed.

In the second case tried Patrolman Allan Hunter said that the machine proceeded in a zig-zag fashion as it was driven into Church street. Patrolman Murphy also figured in the arrest. The accused explained that the left front wheel of the machine was out of line causing the machine travel in a zig-zag movement. He asked the officers to go out and try the machine to prove his statement. Admitting having had a few drinks he denied being drunk. The customary fine of $100 and costs was imposed with a five day suspended sentence.

Charles Gyure of Tolland was arrested before the Mansfield town court Thursday evening on three charges; reckless driving of an automobile, having defective brakes on his car and contempt of court. Gyure met with an accident on the road between Storrs and Gurleyville on May 4, when his car struck a tree and turned over. He was ordered to appear in court but did not appear thereby causing the additional count of contempt. A warrant was made out for his arrest on the latter charge. It was served by state Policeman Henry Wood. When asked why he had ignored the order to appear in court Gyure said that he had been too busy working. Justice of the Peace George Williams imposed a fine of $5 for reckless driving, $5 for having defective brakes and $25 and costs for reckless driving. The total assessment of $51.30 was paid.

Funeral services for John W. Hood, were held at two o'clock Friday afternoon at 62 North street with Rev. [illegible] Williams, pastor of St. John's Episcopal church, officiating. POLISH RESIDENTS TO HONOR SAINT AND PATRIOT SUNDAY

JEWETT CITY, May 14—Elaborate plans have been perfected so that Sunday, the St. Casimin society of Jewett City will celebrate with a procession and ceremony, its 20th anniversary, which is coincident with the arrival in America of T. Kosciusko, famous Polish patriot, a century and a half ago. The St. Casimin society, has to show in its 20 years of existence a long line of commendable accomplishments for the benefit of the Polish people. Its membership is well over twice that of any other fraternal order of the town. It is often an impressive sight to note the long ranks of men that turn out at the funeral services of a departed brother. Late Friday evening the exact line of march had not been determined, but it is settled that the right will rest in front of the Corporation block, corner of Railroad avenue and Main street at 2 o'clock, advanced time, with the disbanding at David Hale Fanning park. There will be four bands, and the line of march will be over the principal streets of the borough. The combined societies will be addressed at the park by Rev. John J. McCabe and by Rev. S. A. Icick of Norwich. The Polish organizations from Norwich, Moosup, Danielson, Willimantic and New London, have perfected plans to participate in the celebration. At the St. Cazimir quarters in the Corporation block, speeches, music and refreshments will conclude the ceremonies of the day.

JEWETT CITY, May 13—Automobile drivers report that never before have they seen as many snakes in the road, as have been noted this spring. Over a month ago an Ashland street cat caught a half dozen. The other day, a driver either going to or returning from Hopeville, says he came upon a snake in the road, that reached clean across and into the bushes on both sides. He, having no time to stop ran over it, around the next curve, imagine his surprise not to say consternation, to see, as he said, another snake in the road, twisting and rearing up in an astonishing manner. He stepped on it, and (?) over that went also, then went back to investigate. "Great Scott"! he remarked in relating the story, "it was another loop of the same snake."

NEW OFFICERS OF FIRE DEPT. TAKE HOLD FOR COMING YEAR

PLAINFIELD, May 14.—The monthly meeting of Plainfield fire company one was held last evening at Grange hall, this being the first meeting of the fiscal year, with the newly elected officers in charge. The new officers are: Chief, William Hall; assistant chief, Elmer Greene; secretary, Arthur Mathieu; treasurer, John C. Kingsley. In the absence of Arthur Mathieu, Raymond Lathrop was secretary. The annual reports from the secretary and treasurer were read. The company received 19 calls for fires of various natures and rendered aid in 20. April 8th, 1925, there were two fires raging when the fire whistle was sounded, and part of the company attended each fire. The fires were classified into three groups: Eight buildings, six chimneys and six brush fires. The company has a membership of 29 active and 29 associate members. The origination of the company is traced to one of the efforts to better the community, by the Lincoln club. On the evening of March 16th, 1925, 19 men met in the vestry of the Congregational church and voted that a committee of three be appointed to solicit active members for a volunteer fire company and to submit rules for organizing, etc., and report within two weeks. March 30th, 1925, a meeting was held at Grange hall, at which the committee submitted 25 names of men willing to serve as active members. Fred Ledgard was elected chief and Wilfred Gardner assistant chief. A committee on by-laws was appointed, also a committee on finances. At a meeting held April 3rd, 1925, after some discussion, the by-laws as presented by the committee were amended and adopted. The first regular meeting was held May 14th, the second Thursday of the month, and since that time until April 30th, 1926, there have been held six regular and five special meetings. The secretary's financial report shows $518.38 received during the year, and turned over to the treasurer, from the following sources: Donations $238.75, associate membership dues $58, the remainder from dances, field days, and fines. What Mrs. F. Brooks, 26 Peck St., says:

"The clothes are ever so clean and white now, thanks to those good Rinso suds. And Rinso leaves me ever so little rubbing to do and so my clothes last longer. No boiling, no rubbing clothes threadbare with bar soap on the washboard. What a relief! And the clothes are out to dry much sooner—colors bright and fresh, white things sparkling. Rinso is my laundry soap for good now."
MRS. F. BROOKS,
26 Peck St.,
Norwich, Conn.
Millions use Rinso. Thousands write as women like this.

Millions of women get a whiter wash

—this safe "no-work" way

THE news is too good to keep. One neighbor tells another.

"No more hard rubbing for me! See how white and clean my wash is this week—and all I did was soak and rinse!"

Millions are saying it. Thousands have written to tell us. Read above what one of many right around here says.

Goodbye washboard!

Already these millions have given up washboards for good. Now they do the family wash the quick way, the easy way—the wonderful soak-and-rinse way!

They just put the whole wash to soak in Rinso suds. The ground-in dirt and stains loosen and float off in the water.

Then they rinse—and the wash comes out whiter, brighter than hours of hard rubbing could get it!

The most grimy hems and edges need only a gentle rub between the fingers to make them snowy.

What is Rinso?

Rinso is an amazing new kind of laundry soap—granulated.

DANIELSON

NORWICH MAN PREVENTS FRAUD FROM CASHING CHECK

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 14—The state police are investigating the circumstances under which a stranger obtained a check for $60 from Mrs. Mary Creighton, manager of the Danielson inn, and disappeared before he had a chance to cash it, because suspicion against him was aroused in time to stop payment.

The suave operator claimed to represent a chain of hotels and was anxious to add the Danielson inn to the list, setting forth the advantages to be gained by such affiliation. Mrs. Creighton gave the check to the stranger while Gilbert P. Coates of Norwich, who has a certain interest in the hotel, was present. Mr. Coates, having heard something of the conversation between the stranger and Mrs. Creighton advised the latter, upon the exit of the man, to telephone the bank and stop payment, which she did. The state police were notified, but the man evidently had made a quick getaway from the town.

GIFTS TO FIREMEN AT SOCIAL GATHERING

(Special to the Bulletin)

A big fire fighting force summoned from all the region menaced by the fire fought it without great success until late Thursday night. Several hundred acres were reported burned over.

DO YOU KNOW AS MUCH AS YOUR CAT?

She's a knowing cat.
She asks for little—just her meals, a saucer of milk and a place in the sun. She gets plenty of sleep and exercise. She never worries, never frets. What is the result? Such vitality and resistance that we say, "Cats have nine lives."

What does your cat do when she is not well? She eats catnip, if she can find it. She eats grass and certain green plants to which her instinct leads her.

Your cat takes herbs for a tonic.

Did you ever stop to think that Old Mother Nature, who supplies the herbs necessary to your cat's health, has also provided the herbs necessary to your own well-being?

You don't have to hunt for them as the cat does. The herbs you need are skillfully blended and compounded in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, an old-fashioned tonic that will help to restore your normal energy.

Feels Better Now

Mrs. Gust Carlson, 403 Lincoln Park Boulevard, Rockford, Illinois, writes: "I was weak and run-down but the Vegetable Compound has helped me and I feel better now. I recommend it to all women who need more strength."

For more than fifty years this medicine has been taken by women with very satisfactory results.

DEATH OF HENRY C. BOWEN IN WOODSTOCK WEDNESDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 14—Edward A. Bowen, son of the late Henry C. Bowen, died suddenly at his home in Woodstock at 11 o'clock Wednesday night. Although Mr. Bowen has been in poor health for some time, the end was unexpected, though it came peacefully, and was due to a heart attack.

He was educated at the Brooklyn Polytechnical Institute and Eastman's Business college, Poughkeepsie. He has traveled extensively abroad. He wrote and published a genealogy of the Bowen family called "The Bowens of Woodstock." He was interested in a number of philanthropies and was generous to appeals for worthy causes. He was a good friend of the Day Kimball hospital and took a personal interest in that institution.

Her husband died about 13 years ago and since that time she has spent much of her time in this city. She had no children and is survived by W. Albert Waterman of this city, George H. A GROSS INJUSTICE

The protest which has been made to the superintendent of state police by the Norwich chamber of commerce against the removal of the state policeman who has been giving examinations here weekly for auto drivers is one that should have the united support of Norwich and vicinity. It is simply another instance of the failure to give any consideration to the accommodation of the auto owners of the state who happen to live outside of the cities where there are branch offices of the motor vehicle department.

In the matter of registration the auto owners of Norwich and points north within the county are forced to drive from 30 to 50 miles in order to get their registrations at the New London branch office. There they may wait anywhere from a few minutes to several hours in order to be accommodated. Possibly they will have the doors shut in their face after a long, cold, tedious wait and be forced to spend another day and make another trip in order to obtain a new registration card.

If it was desired to take advantage of an inspection of headlights by the state police it was necessary to drive just the same distance during midwinter and take a chance of being accommodated within the time limit or utilizing another night for just such a purpose, when one or two state policemen might have accommodated all Norwich and vicinity by being sent here for a sufficient number of evenings to do the work.

Heretofore an examining officer has appeared here weekly. It has been a decided and an appreciated advantage for the new drivers in Norwich and vicinity, but now it is proposed to take away even that accommodation and force the applicants for examinations to go 30 to 50 miles out of their way and spend much more time.

It is an absolutely unjust and unfair arrangement. Norwich and the rest of the cities of the state should have a branch office for auto registrations.

It likewise entitled to just as much accommodation as other cities when it comes to the matter of giving examinations for headlights.

And for the same reason it ought to have the benefit of a visiting examining officer at least once a week, if not oftener, for the testing of new drivers.

Just why there should be a discrimination against a large part of the auto owners in various sections of the state, by forcing them to go to greater expense or to spend a larger amount of time than others has never been understood. The situation, as far as Norwich and vicinity is concerned, appears to be growing worse instead of better.

DRIVEN TO IT

Just how the legislature will react to it remains to be seen but when the state commissioner of conservation in Massachusetts presents a bill for the action of the lawmakers of that state which would call for a compulsory jail sentence for causing a fire by throwing away lighted matches, cigarettes, cigars or contents of a pipe, it becomes apparent that he has been driven to it in an effort to put a stop to the forest fires which have been causing so much damage in that state.

It is his opinion that the forest fires are to a large extent caused by automobilists who flip away a lighted cigarette without regard for where it may land. They like to see it loop the loop. It may land in a bed of leaves and if that is the case no further explanation need be sought for the cause of a fire there.

Because of the many instances where serious fires have been caused and the repeated calls for the firefighters it has impressed the conservation commissioner that there is a degree of carelessness which ought to be dealt with in a more severe manner than provided for under the present law. Many will agree with him in his belief that more effective steps should be taken in enforcing respect for the property of others through preventing fires.

If it is gross carelessness, bordering on criminal carelessness, there is certainly reason for the imposition of penalties that will cause the firebrand throwers to hesitate and consider what they are doing before they carelessly start fires.

It is the practice of many auto riders to toss their discarded cigarette butt or other smoking material out of the car, let it fall where it may. It may fall in the hard surfaced highway where it will do no harm, though it may be blown gutterward. It may drop in the roadside where there is tinderlike material awaiting the torch to furnish the start for a rousing forest fire. It is the failure to see that such fires ends are neither extinguished nor deposited in safe places that starts the fires and prompts the demands for a law with teeth in it.

If it were possible to make an example of a few of the fire starters it is reasonable to believe that more of their followers would give heed to their responsibility and less woodland fires, and in all probability less other fires, would result from such a cause.

APPRECIATED SERVICE

According to the rules of The Bulletin anonymous communications are not printed. They in fact seldom get a reading, but one received this week deals with the subject of appreciation and the giving of bouquets during the lifetime of those for whom they are intended.

Because it is prompted by the desire to recognize well rendered service such as might more often be noticed by those who enjoy the benefits, it is prebented here in full:

"In these lovely spring days when the country is at its best with the trees looking so beautiful and the numerous birds about us filling the air with their wonderful music, we are very apt to forget the very severe winter we passed through, with its many storms, and so it is my desire, if it is at all possible for you to spare the valuable space in your paper, to publicly announce my appreciation to our very obliging and efficient mail carrier who plowed through the terrible roads and gave us the pleasure of reading our paper every day but one during the past winter.

"Thanking you for publishing this, yours for a few roses while one is living."

A Resident of R. D. No. 2

Probably there are many others on rural, or city routes, who feel much the same way in regard to the postal service they have received during bad as well as during good weather. Perhaps there are those who have spoken of it among themselves, but in how many instances has there been public acknowledgment of such appreciation? How many in fact have taken advantage of the opportunity to make it known to the carrier that his work was so satisfactory?

It may be considered that such things ought to be taken for granted, and perhaps they had, but it is well known that words of commendation are often much more appreciated and bring greater results than anything else.

Likewise it is no secret that there is merit in the idea of distributing an occasional bouquet of that kind so that the person for whom it is intended and who has inspired it should know of it.

There are many times when such service as we are accustomed to receive is accepted without much consideration for what is involved in rendering it. Apparently the carrier on Route 2 is deserving for his faithfulness and efficiency. He will be but human if he is glad to know that his service meets approval.

THE GOVERNOR'S COMMISSION

The inheritance tax plan of congress has failed to impress many of the states. Connecticut is one of them and Governor Trumbull has taken time by the forelock in naming a commission to look into and report on the extent to which the federal government is encroaching through legislative acts upon the rights of the state. The naming of a committee consisting of Fred Walcott of Norfolk, Harrison Hewitt of New Haven, George T. Kimball of Waterbury and Elijah Rogers of Southington insures men of standing and judgment to deal with this matter and obtain facts which will be available for use by the next general assembly in case action concerning it is desired at that time. Governor Trumbull does well to anticipate that possibility.

Connecticut has registered its opposition on previous occasions to the tendency to give greater federal control over matters which belong to the state. It has refused to make the necessary appropriation for participating in such legislation, so that it is naturally out of sympathy with the inheritance tax projsion.

In March the Rhode Island league brought this matter to the attention of the Rhode Island legislature and showed that higher taxes were being demanded of the state against the state's wishes. The federal inheritance tax law was held to be "an invitation to the state legislature to put into effect higher inheritance tax rates," which was regarded as being "tantamount to coercion of the state governments."

Federal inheritance tax legislation is far from being what it should be. The effort to have it leave such taxation to the states should have prevailed. For it to undertake to dictate to the states what they should do, even to the extent of requiring it to raise its rates could have been expected to raise opposition. It is such as to increase the demand for the federal inheritance tax law and the steps which have been taken in this and other states should have a wholesome effect. It is time for more opposition to the growing demand for paternalistic federal legislation.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Now for the straw hat and may the season be as delightful as ever.

Did anyone hear Amundsen say "Turn, boys, turn, we're going back?"

The man on the corner says: Knee deep in May isn't what it has been some years.

Are you going to be able to brush up last year's straw hat so as to join the procession today?

Amundsen confirms both Byrd and Peary in declaring that there is plenty of room at the top of the world.

Now that the republican caucus is over it remains for the party members and supporters of good government to see that the ticket is elected in June.

"Sharp break in potatoes," reports Chicago. Perhaps the supply isn't being moved fast enough under prevailing prices to keep the pommes de terre from spoiling.

What we would like to know now is what any of the inhabitants of the polar regions who may have seen them thought of the performances of Byrd and Amundsen.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

There are three leading sources from which we derive knowledge: First, from books. Probably more comes to us from this avenue than from any other, because books record the wisdom of all the ages. Every age has had something to contribute to the sum total of human knowledge, and the ages have been long and some of them very fruitful. The whole school system relies largely upon books. Secondly, we learn from observation. Nature is an "open book" that appeals to all of our outward senses. The alert person who is keen to observe natures sees many things of value. Not only eyes but ears, hands and the other senses take in much that would not come from books so impressively. Thirdly, we learn much from contact with personality. The whole lecture system in our colleges is important not only from the subject taught but from the man who teaches it. Inspiration is a great aid to learning, and persona more than things are the source of inspiration.

Growth is a function of the spring-time. The natural world wakes up after its long period of dormancy. After the growing season of the autumn ceases, there is a scientific reason why it should be followed by the cold, harsh and sometimes exceedingly trying months of winter. In a certain sense it is the time when the producing earth takes her vacation, and she has a perfect right to do it in her own way. There is no hard and fast rule as to how vacations shall be taken; the main thing is to take them and in the right time and way. Most of our birds are migratory and it is coming more and more of a custom among our people to imitate the birds in winter, and the idea is not a bad one. If the birds love North Carolina in winter, there is no reason why people should not hibernate in Miami and Palm Beach—if they can stand the expense.

But New England with her "rocks and hills, her woods and tempbled hills" stays exactly where she was put countless ages ago, held fast by avalanches of snow and ice, for a very important scientific purpose. Prior to her going into winter quarters there had been a vast expenditure of physical forces. With incalculable energy she had covered the earth with verdure and this meant a tremendous tax upon her physical strength. Nature is like man in that where there is an output of vital power there must be a corresponding period of rest. If not there is sooner or later a breakdown. Nature had also furnished man with food and clothing and therefore was perfectly entitled to go to bed and sleep long enough to have her producing power revitalized. Let us not forget that in the period from November to April there is the conservation of energy without which all animal and vegetable life would soon perish.

At length, however, the rising bell rings, and this giant—whom we call Dame Nature—rubs her eyes, stretches her limbs, and then deliberately gets up. She always takes her own time utterly ignoring the unfavorable criticism made some seasons by her provoking slowness. The tears never come to her eyes over the dire prediction that is made about the coming food shortage, famines, suffering that will end in widespread starvation. She fully realizes her shortcomings and eccentricities and does not worry in the least about them, simply because she realizes that for the millions of years in which she has been at it she has never fallen down on her job; or, in more polite language, that since the earth began "seedtime and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, have never failed, and shall not cease as long as the earth remaineth." Dame Nature with all her feminine vagaries is a good old woman at heart.

The greatest permanent injury that comes from strikes is the loss of morale on the part of the strikers. No intelligent person who has studied the subject will be likely to overrate the economic loss. In at length they win their cause, how long is it going to take before they make up the loss of wages during their period of idleness? But the money side of it, bad as it is, is by no means the worst feature. Whichever side wins bad feeling has been created between the workmen and the company and this always tends to limit production in both quantity and quality. The feeling on either side is also implacable foe to efficiency. Unless his heart is right on the part of the workman it will always tell in the work that he does. If the management is effected this way the result will be the same. Team horses must pull together if a load is to be moved. If one balks while other pulls no progress will be made. Enmity in the heart kills enthusiasm for doing one's best.

On May 6, 1661 the city of New London was founded by John Winthrop who at that time was governor of the colony. It would be hard to name any family of Puritanic stock which had figured more largely in the colonial life of America and subsequently than the Winthrops. Their only rivals in the Adams family. There are four outstanding members of this illustrious name. The first John Winthrop came over in the Mayflower and was one of its greatest men. Subsequently he became governor of the colony of Massachusetts and held the office many years. The second John Winthrop was his son, born in England, came to this country, was made a magistrate of Massachusetts, but returned to England. He returned to America in 1633. In that year he built a fort at the mouth of the Connecticut river and founded New London in 1661. Under the charter given by Charles the Second he became the first governor.

Is there not some connection between sunlight and cheerfulness? It is a well known fact, or sociology that the natives of sunny lands have as a rule sunny dispositions; while the reverse is true of those who come from harsh, dismal climates. Physicians often remarks that a long spell of dark gloomy days acts unfavorably on sick people. In a more pronounced way does it react on all kinds of mental disorders. In reply to this one may say that a person ought to be strong enough not to let dark days make us miserable, still the bright sunny weather makes it just a bit easier to be cheerful. If all this is true then from now on for several months we ought to store up sunlight, just as we do potatoes and onions for winter use.

In the Gospel of Mark we learn that "the earth bringeth forth of herself, first a blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear." This is not only a fact of the physical world, but it applies just as truly to the realm of mind and morals. Nobody is born either good or bad, but simply neutral. We simply come into this world with an inherent capacity to be good or bad. We do not become either at a jump. We grow into the one or the other just as our environment and training are good or bad. As young people do not become educated over night, neither do they become saints in a single day. Do we not expect too much of them? Instead of scolding and nagging them for not being better, we would gain more if we trained them with tenderness and yet with firmness. If a boy is not as good as his grandfather, remember that he has not had 60 or 70 years to develop from the "blade to the full corn in the ear."

PSYCHE AND I AT THE SEASIDE

Dr. Stephen J. Maher of New Haven, chairman of the state tuberculosis commission contributes the following leading article in the Journal of Outdoor Life, which is of particular interest both from the fact that it concerns The Seaside at Niantic and the manner in which the subject is treated.

A few weeks ago, just after one of the great storms of February, Psyche and I visited The Seaside at Crescent Beach, Noantic, Connecticut. This, as you probably know, is an institution where only non-pulmonary forms of tuberculosis are treated. Connecticut was the first state to officially utilize the new knowledge of the wonderfully curative effect of sunbaths on bone and glandular tuberculosis. Connecticut was also the first state to provide a special inland sanatorium for children sick with pulmonary tuberculosis.

The providing of this last mentioned sanatorium—Undercliff at Meriden,—was an easy matter, when compared with the difficult birth and troublous infancy of The Seaside. However, The Seaside has not only survived, but every year it has waxed stronger, and every year it has attracted to itself more and more of the love and pride of its parents, the people and the legislature of the state, and of the observing public health officials of other states.

Psyche made no pretense of knowing much about tuberculosis, but, because she had often heard me speak enthusiastically of the strange and splendid work done at The Seaside, she had become very urgent lately in her request that I take her to visit the institution, and that I give her an opportunity not only to see the patients but also to examine and study the whole medical philosophy on which the work of The Seaside is based. As you will discover later, Psyche, although beautiful and amiable, refuses to take things for granted. He questions and suggestions are sometimes difficult even for the self-satisfied fellow as I.

The 40 mile drive from New Haven to Niantic on the north shore of Long Island sound, is, even in winter, one of the loveliest in this picturesque little state. I had promised myself the pleasure of pointing out to Psyche, the many famous and beautiful spots along the route. But to my surprise and disappointment, she insisted that I talk shop. The glimpses we caught of the laughing, ice fringed inlets of the sound, or of stately passing ships, or of the distant beaches of Long Island, interested her not at all. She invariably interrupted my rhapsodies on the scenery with severely practical questions about the sunbath practiment of tuberculosis.

From Apollo to Roller

"Where did this thing originate—this heliotherapy, as you call it?"

In one form or another, she asked this question several times before I made serious attempt to answer it. She was so pleased with my answer that I found myself enjoying my own talk. This is what I told her:

"One of the first things that man learned, was that sunlight was his greatest benefactor, and his most available assistant. In many places he made the worship of the sun his religion. Then the priests of this religion began to practice heliotherapy, that is—they began to treat sickness with sunbaths, and they made the sunbathing part of a religious rite. The use of sunbaths as a remedy was well known to the physicians of Greece and Rome. Near Nice are remnants of the temples of Apollo, the god of life and light, to which the doctors of Rome were accustomed to send their wealthy patients. On their arrival, the patients were assigned by the priests of Apollo to the cure galleries of the temples which were very similar to the verandahs of a modern sanatorium. Centuries later, mankind began to recognize the symptoms of a mysterious wasting disease called consumption. It was still centuries later, before mankind discovered that consumption and scrofula were caused by the same organism, the tubercle bacillus. Scrofula is the name loosely given for ages to wasting of the body accompanied by a rotting of bones, or enlargements of glands, or chronic inflammations of the abdomen.

"Among the countless remedies that men used in these preceding ages to cure consumption was sunlight, but the results were not encouraging. The physicians of most modern nations decided that consumptives did badly when treated with sunbaths. In the last quarter of the nineteenth century, however, many French authorities espoused the heretical doctrine that consumptives could be cured by exposing their undad bodies to the winds, wet and dry, of the seashore. They insisted that tuberculous patients sent from Paris to the large sanatoria erected on the great beaches near Boulogne-Sur-Mer on the north coast of France, recovered. The medical authorities of other lands refused to believe the French claim. Investigation revealed the fact that practically all the cures made at the so-called maritime sanatoria of France were cases of bone and glandular tuberculosis. This decision interested the whole world. Immediate studies were begun to ascertain what it was that cured bone tuberculosis at these French sanatoria. Various theories were enunciated. Some said the cures were due to the salt air; others, that they were due to the increased amount of ozone in the air; others, that they were due to the iodine in the coastal atmosphere. One of the investigators, Rollier, insisted that they were all due to the sunbaths that the patients enjoyed on the beaches. Firm in his belief he opened a small sunbath sanatorium at Leysin in the Alps, where there is an unusually large amount of sunlight all the year round. Soon Rollier began to report an extraordinary number of cures of bone and glandular tuberculosis, and even some cures of pulmonary tuberculosis. The fame of Rollier's cures flashed about the earth, and made this little mountain town of Leysin known from Oklahoma to Singapore."

Psyche and Scenery

We had now passed through Saybrook and we were fast approaching the great bridge over the lordly Connecticut river. Even Jerry, my chauffeur was fascinated by the gracious sight. He willingly obeyed the warning signs to cut down his speed. Psyche gazed a few moments at the wide ice-fretted waters now almost at the end of their journey to the sea. But before we reached the eastern terminus of the bridge, she turned to me and coyly whispered:

"Do continue, dear; you were becoming positively eloquent about this sunbathing. I love to hear an enthusiast talk about his hobby."

"Hobby! Hobby! Indeed, Psyche, that isn't the right word. As a matter of fact, I have merely tried to answer your question. But if I have seemed to orate, I'd better stop. Let us talk about something else. This is the town of Lyme. Famous you know, as the place where so many artists live, paint. See, there is the church that—"

"Artists! Artists and churches!" interrupted Psyche. "I'm not a bit interested in either this morning. Tell me more about this sun cure. Have you yourself seen sunlight cures of bone tuberculosis?"

"Indeed I have, Many," I answered, just a bit peeved.

"Oh, forgive me," coaxed Psyche. "I don't in the least doubt that you have. And by the way, judging from what you say about Rollier's successes in the Alps, it doesn't seem necessary that these sunbaths should be taken at the shore. Doesn't Rollier have just as good results as the doctors on the beaches of the north shore of France?"

"Yes, he does. But he carried out the treatment more thoroughly. Even in winter, Rollier's patients are exposed better than the summer patients at Berck-Sur-Mer. Rollier cannot chill on a wide beach or on the insulating Atlantic to help brown and cure his patients; but for nine or ten months of the year he can use the snow as a reflector of light. And this he does. Wherever the air is clearest and the direct and reflected sunlight plentiful, there the best results will be had with heliotherapy. But the light mustn't be too strong. I doubt if many cures from sunbathe will ever be reported from the tropics. At The Seaside, even in cold weather, the preventing or sunburns, causes us more anxiety than the preventing of colds. And remember that at The Seaside there has been no attempt to compromise with the commandment, 'Let the Sun cure.' The children expose their whole bodies to the light all day long and every day of the year. The children's clothes are sent home during the first weeks of their stay at the institution. And at The Seaside there has been no confusing of the people by offering gold or other sacrificial gifts to the stranze gods of stone and brazen lamps, whose prophets pronounce them equal to the Sun."

"Is that so?" cried Psyche in widespread surprise. "I've seen some perfectly lovely magazine pictures of patients under treatment by these lamps, and I've heard it said they cured patients just as well as sunlight. Are they all frauds, or, as you call them, 'strange gods?'"

"No, not at all," I replied. "The carbon arc light has definite value, especially for the treatment of lupus, in lands near the arctic circles. Some of the other lamps have certain local uses, and even in tuberculosis they may help during the long dark seasons of foggy England; but, in our fair land I believe there is no more reason for using imitation sunlight for tuberculosis than there is for breathing imitation air, or drinking imitation water or milk, or eating imitation bread or meat."

"I am so sorry!" lamented Psyche. "Because I supposed we could get all the benefits of a Florida winter by erecting one of these wonderful lamps in a bath room at home. Somebody told me, too, that there was no end to the creepy thrills one can get from some of these lamps. One suddenly finds oneself engulfed in an atmosphere that is weedy purple, or in an atmosphere that looks and smells like blood, or in an atmosphere of that awful shade of phosphorescent green that makes one think of Hamlet and the grave diggers."

I knew Psyche too well to rise to this bait, but I said seriously, "There is another matter that perhaps I ought to explain. Many authorities on bone and glandular tuberculosis are inclined to believe that much of the credit for the sunbath cures is due to the stimulating effect of the air, on the exposed bodies, and that therefore aerotherapy is almost as important as heliotherapy."

"I don't believe it," was Psyche's quick rejoinder. "Clothes shut out light, but do not shut out air. Therefore the important effected by the removal or the clothes is the bringing of light to the skin. Isn't that logical?"

Psyche's Tears

The car was now running through East Lyme. Psyche made no further comment until the road suddenly turned south, and from a little elevation, we could see in front of us, the ocean, Niantic Bay, and on an inner curve of the bay, Crescent Beach, and The Seaside. The principal building was, at one time, a summer hotel. It has been largely made over by the state for its present full-time function of providing a home for the crippled children, whom the sun so dramatically cures on the white sand of the nearby beach.

"Oh! Oh! Oh!" cried Psyche with childish joy, as the view unfolded itself.

Jerry stopped the car on The Seaside grounds. The snow was piled three feet high on the lawns.

"Here we are at last!" I said as Jerry came to open the door.

Half a dozen laughing little girls naked, except for shoes and stockings and bloomers, fluttered out into the snow from the first floor verandah, waved to us, and called out my name. With exclamations of amazement, Psyche opened the door on her side of the car, and ran to greet the children.

"Wait! Wait! Just a moment!" I called as I followed her. But before I could intervene she had caught the smallest of the brown tots, into her arms, and folding her into her fur coat, had begun to hug and kiss her.

The tears in Psyche's eyes smothered my intended protest. Dr. O'Brien, the superintendent appeared at the entrance door. Psyche carried her surging bundle with her as we entered the building.

"There's nothing the matter with this darling now, is there, Dr. O'Brien?" said Psyche, as soon as introductions were over. "Angels can't have tuberculosis." "This angel that you have in your arms, laughed Dr. O'Brien, had such severe tuberculosis of her hips two years ago, that she couldn't walk or stand, and her legs were bent into such a position that we were afraid she never would walk. She is now about well. She can run and can even skip rope. We have more striking cures even than that."

"May I see them?" eagerly asked Psyche.

"Yes, of course. I'll have Miss Rippin, the head nurse, take you through the institution."

An hour and a half later, when the superintendent had concluded his official conferences with me, he learned that Psyche and the head nurse had gone down to the beach. We decided to follow them there. As we left the office, we saw that the thermometer on the north side of the building registered 14 degrees above zero. When we reached the beach, the still air was actually balmy. Psyche and the head nurse were standing in the lee of the rosy cheeked teacher give a lesson in oral arithmetic. In the class were a dozen of as happily mischievous children as try the patience of teachers anywhere. True, some of them wore plaster casts on parts of their brown bodies, and one little hunch-backed lad leaned on a crutch, but the answer they quickly gave to the teachers problems surprised me, and frightened Psyche. Suddenly the teacher's bell signaled dismissal. With shouts of glee the class broke up, and its members ran for the sleds they had parked behind the sea wall. The head nurse called some of them to her, apparently to let Psyche talk to them. To my surprise, Psyche held up her hand and cried:

"Don't, Miss Rippin. Don't, please don't. No more! I can stand no more."

She was greatly agitated. She stepped back from us to the edge of the calm sea, and from this point, made a swift panoramic survey of her surroundings. Then she clutched my arm and said:

"Let us go. This is a holy place; I am not worthy to stand in it. I feel that I am suddenly thrust into the presence of Almighty God. Let us go! This soft wintry sea! This snowy landscape! This light from the sky curing crippled children! I am an intruder here. Let us go!"

As we entered our automobile for the return trip to New Haven, Dr. O'Brien handed Psyche a leaflet, entitled, The Seaside Drum. Because of her already distraught condition, I asked her to postpone reading the pamphlet until evening. Soon she said:

"I am calmer now. I have had a busy time with that head nurse. I learned many things, but I am loaded with questions that I want you to answer before we reach home."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Rt. Rev. William C. Pinkham, who has announced his intention to retire next August from his position as Anglican Bishop of Calgary, has had a notable career of 54 years as a missionary in western Canada. During his period of service he has seen the country grow from a prairie waste into one of the finest agricultural regions in the world and its little trading posts develop into thriving cities. The bishop is a native of St. John's Newfoundland, and was educated chiefly at St. Augustine's college, Canterbury, England. After his ordination as a deacon in 1868 he went out to the Red river country as a missionary. He became archdeacon of Manitoba in 1882, bishop of Saskatchewan in 1887, bishop of Calgary in 1888, and bishop of Edmonton in 1913. For 13 years, from 1871 to 1883, Bishop Pinkham served as superintendent of education for Protestant schools of Manitoba.

Stories That Recall Others

Nude and Vile

A teacher was giving a test not so long ago to see how well she had driven home the points on South Carolina's declaration that the tariff law of 1832 was "null and void."

"The people of South Carolina," wrote one of the boys in the test, "would not stand for the tariff; they declared it nude and vile."

Wanted—A Horse

Harry is seeking a well bred, willing and strong horse.

Yes, Harry has an automobile, so to speak, but recently he built a roller to smooth his newly laid lawn.

In this roller he used some confiscated pipe, a can and about 30 cents worth of cement. He surveyed his work when completed, gave it a slight push and decided it was not heavy enough. Then he is alleged to have added some more cement and—now it weighs about 500 pounds according to Harry's friends. And that is why Harry is seeking a horse.

From Small Beginnings

Rossini, the Great Musician

"It's a shame not to take care of that boy," said all the neighbors. "He'll be going away and neglecting him the time! They aren't fit to have a child."

The tongues of the gossips wagged in Bologna, Italy, but the father of little four-year-old Gioachino Rossini did not hear most of what was said, and did not pay attention to what little they did hear. They had their own work to do, the father to toot his horn in the orchestra of a theatre, the mother to appear on the stage and to sing. The little money that they gained they needed to support themselves and the only small sums to pay the care of the lonely, sensitive child they had left at home. They traveled about Italy, and worried very little about Gioachino.

Italy is the land of music and song, and all about him the boy Gioach heard the strumming of strings or the wailing of voices turned into melody. He fingered the keys of the piano and found that he, too, could produce music. His father and mother, in the rare times they were home, and a neighbor when they were away, taught him to play the piano. Then the boy played and sang to cheer his loneliness. He found an opportunity to sing in church, and slowly developed power. The father and mother, eager to turn his ability into money, took him from the church and put him on the stages of the theatre in which they worked. There was the golden opportunity that he accepted. He did his best, with such results that he found it possible to enter the Bologna University of Music, where he studied technique under the best teachers.

Rossini began his great success by winning a prize for a cantata. Then he wrote light operas, and at 24 produced the famous "Barber of Seville," a opera that was hissed on its first night, and hurraped into fame on its second. In eight years Rossini wrote 20 operas, and won great musical and financial success in Vienna, London and other cities. At the age of 37 he wrote his masterpiece, "William Tell." In the last years he withdrew from active work and enjoyed tranquil days. He had succeeded because he had developed to the full his one greatest ability.

Sunday Morning Talk

A GOOD CONSCIENCE

There are moments of serious inquiry in every thoughful life, moments of honest, earnest introspection, when the one supreme question is, "Am I really accomplishing God's purpose in life concerning me?" That does not necessarily, originate in a morbid condition of soul. It may be, and ought to be, entertained so as to promote a healthful, intellectual, and moral activity. It will result in this if we are sure of our relationship to Him as the adopted children of His spiritual household. In other words, if we have in our hearts the witness of His spirit to our adoption, we will be able to submit to rigid self-examination upon questions that affect our secret motives and manner of living.

Am I doing the will of God? He would have me do it? I ask for each one to ask this question himself. We can answer this with confidence if our hearts are right with Him. It is possible for us to live so that we can say, 'This is thy work, and I am doing it; I know that thou hast given me for this may be said with a feeling of unworthiness and insufficiency. It may be spoken with humble and inward strength. Whatever our attitude before Him, we may come into our hearts joyfully, and love for His service; however that work may be to the flesh. We may go forth day by day with an uplifted countenance; with a calm feeling that, while we are weighed in the balance, through the mercy of God we are not found wanting.

Was in despair over stubborn eczema

Seemed like a miracle when Resinol healed

Barrington, R. I., Dec. 2—"I wish the whole world to know what Resinol Ointment has done for me and my baby. I had given up hope of ever finding anything to cure the eczema on my ears. I was troubled with it for two whole years, using different kinds of ointments without showing any good results. Many of them—even prescribed remedies—only made the trouble worse. My mother-in-law, who had used Resinol Ointment for many years, told me she had used it on her children when they were babies and had never been without it. I then tried it on my ears and found that it worked like a miracle. After the third day my ears were better and within a week my skin was its natural color again. I use it on my baby whenever he needs it. Only one application will heal." (Signed) Mrs. Sebastian De Stefano, 85 County Road.

Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap stop itching instantly, and clear away pimples, blackheads, dandruff, and irritations, leaving the skin clear, the hair lustrous. Prescribed by doctors for 20 years. Sold by all druggists.

APPLYING STRICT ENFORCEMENT OF MOTOR VEHICLE LAWS

The state motor vehicle department has suspended the licenses of 1,803 operators in the first four months of this year for various infractions of the motor vehicle laws and rulings. In the corresponding period of last year, 1,723 operators were suspended.

To avoid injustice, many hearings are given by the department with respect to suspensions, and a separate division, with two hearing executives and several clerks is maintained for that purpose. During the first third of this year, 632 hearings were held, 296 of which were at the capitol in Hartford and 336 at different places throughout the state. In the same months of 1925 the department gave 492 hearings, of which 216 were held at Hartford and 277 elsewhere.

The department is promptly calling to account all operators who fail to report accidents within 24 hours, as required by law whenever personal injury, or property damage estimated at more than $10 results. In January, 141 licenses were taken up for that offense, in February 64, in March 60, and in April 70. Next in order comes the offense of reckless driving, for which the department freely suspends operators, as a part of the effort to enforce greater care in driving upon that element which appears to require it. In January, 136 were suspended for reckless driving. During February 61 were suspended, in March 43, and in April 138 on that account.

The March record indicates vigorous enforcement of the law prohibiting the operation of motor vehicles in Connecticut without an operator's license, before the granting of which the department requires satisfactory evidence of an applicant's qualification to drive on the public highways. One hundred were ruled off the road in March for driving without an operator's license.

REPUBLICANS NOMINATE ENGLER; BURTON DEFEATS HAGBERG, 155-135

GEORGE G. ENGLER

George G. Engler, representative to the state legislature and well known local druggist, was unanimously nominated at the republican city caucus Friday evening at the town hall, as the party's candidate for mayor in the coming city election next month. Charles W. Burton, by a vote of 155 to 135, defeated Charles A. Hagberg for the water board nomination. Mr. Hagberg has been the republican member of the water board for the past four years.

The caucus had an approximate attendance of 300 and was one of the largest republican caucuses in several years. It was called to order at 8 o'clock by Judge Arthur F. Libby, chairman of the republican town committee, and Henry H. Pettis was nominated for moderator by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, Mr. Pettis in taking the chair, said that it was a pleasure to see so many a representative republican gathering. He expressed the hope that whatever the outcome of the caucus all present would leave the hall prepared to elect the entire republican ticket.

William S. Murry nominated John R. Bowman for caucus clerk and Mr. Bowman was chosen for that position. The clerk then read the call for the caucus and Moderator Pettis announced that the caucus was open for nominations for mayor. Judge John H. Barnes in nominating George G. Engler said: The gentleman I have in mind was born in the city of Norwich and the city will honor itself by honoring its son. It was ordained and ordered that he be born on the West Side. Anyone who is born on the West Side has got to be all right. I know that, for a good part of my childhood days were spent there. He very wisely married a Greenville girl and lived in Greeneville for some time. He now lives in the Central district. He has played no favorites. He represented you wisely in the legislature. It is with the greatest of pleasure that I present as your candidate for mayor, George G. Engler. (Applause). I wish him success. Now, having done my part, I will say that if you republican men and women of the city will do your part, George G. Engler will be the next mayor of the Rose of New England.

The vote for Mr. Engler's nomination was unanimous, Arthur L. Peale seconding the nomination.

Nominations for aldermen and councilmen then proceeded as follows: For first alderman, E. LaRue Bliven, nominated by Judge Nelson J. Ayling; for second alderman, Josiah Greenstein, nominated by William S. Murry.

For councilmen—Willis B. Hill, nominated by Louis H. Geer; David J. Kenefick, nominated by Tyler D. Guy; Frederick P. Shea, nominated by Stephen H. Reeves; John W. Durnan, nominated by Howard Spalding.

For city treasurer, Stephen H. Reeves nominated by Adelard Morin.

For city sheriffs, Charles H. Raynes nominated by Charles W. Pearson; V. Roath Allen, nominated by John H. Barnes.

The only contest on the caucus took place over the nomination for water commissioner. Rev. Charles H. Ricketts placed in nomination the name of Charles W. Burton, as a man with considerable experience in this work.

Charles W. Cassidy quickly nominated Charles A. Hagberg for re-election. He stated that Mr. Hagberg was elected as the republican member in 1922 and again elected in 1924 as the republican member. Mr. Cassidy called attention to the fact that nomination at the caucus means election to this particular office. He went on to say that Mr. Hagberg knows what is going on in the water department, knows what has been done and will be done and is familar with the details connected with the building of the city's new reservoir.

The chair appointed two tellers, Ebenezer Learned and Tyler Rogers to assist the clerk in counting the vote and the vote was taken by passing from left to right in front of the moderator's desk. The result was announced by the chair as follows:

Total votes cast—290.
Necessary for choice—146.
For Mr. Burton—155.
For Mr. Hagberg—135.

Mr. Hagberg moved that the nomination be made unanimous and it was so ordered. After a motion had been adopted giving the town committee authority to fill any vacancies that might occur in the party ticket before election day, adjournment was taken at 8:45 o'clock, the caucus having been in session about 45 minutes.

NO OBJECTION SHOWN AT DRAWBRIDGE HEARING

A public hearing to consider the location and plans for a highway bridge across Poquetanuck cove, to replace the well known "drawbridge" was held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the chamber room of the court of common council in this city. Major R. G. Powell presided and Assistant Engineer E. W. Crowley was also present. Representing the state highway commission, Deputy Commissioner Welden, stated that the present bridge has been kept in order for some 20 years, but that a draw had not been considered for the new bridge because of the fact that the draw has never been used in that time.

It was stated by E. B. Spencer, engineer of the N. Y., N. H., & H. R. R. that their investigation showed that the draw had been opened in 1904 for the last time. The tentative plan for the new bridge is a steel frame encased in concrete with wooden piles and concrete piers. Fred Holdsworth, a property holder, expressed a desire to inspect the plans. After having the plans explained to him he offered no objection. As there was no one else to be heard in regard to the matter the hearing was declared closed.

WILL UNVEIL STATUE OF SAINT TERESA

At St. Mary's Memorial church next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday an attractive programme will be carried out in honor of St. Teresa, lovingly known as "The Little Flower." A year ago in the presence of over 200,000 from every part of the world, Pope Pius XI performed one of the most elaborate ceremonies of the Jubilee year at Rome when he inscribed the name of "The Little Flower" on the roll of saints of the Catholic church. The story of the spread of devotion to this little "Carmelite Nun of Lisieux" is one of the most inspiring chapters of modern religious history. Although dying at the youthful age of 24 in the obscure Carmelite convent of northern France in 1896 the "Little Flower" has become an object of love and devotion and her virtues have been an inspiration to millions of men and women of every class in every nation in the world. All the great newspapers, countless magazines and many charming volumes have told the story in every language.

Through the generosity of a member of St. Mary's parish Rev. William A. Keefe has secured a beautiful statue of St. Teresa, made by a European artist. This statute will be blessed and unveiled at St. Mary's Memorial church Tuesday evening, May 18, at 7.30. Rev. Father Lucien, one of the most eloquent preachers of the Passionist Order, will deliver the sermon and conduct the three days' retreat in honor of the Little Flower. Special music and other attractive features have been arranged to please and inspire the large numbers from all parts of Norwich and vicinity who plan to participate in the privileges of the exercises.

In order that the children of St Mary's parish may share in all the benefits of the retreat Father Keefe has arranged to hear all their confessions Monday. At the 8 o'clock mass Tuesday morning all will receive holy communion with the large specially instructed first communion class. The special schedule of hours for confessions, masses and communions of adults during the exercises will be announced by the Passionist Father Lucien, Tuesday evening at 7.30.

Anticipating the attendance of a large number of automobile parties from all parts of the city and surrounding towns Father Keefe has arranged to have all cars parked in the extensive school yard in the rear of St. Mary's Memorial church.

Do You Walk Enough?

This subject explains itself. Do you walk enough? Many, not only in the B. D. A., but in every textile, mercantile and business establishment, confine their walking to the daily trips between the back door and the garage, or the walk from the mill entrance to their job. This is not enough. It is not even enough to walk a mile each day, nor two or three miles. Every man and woman, and every youth over 15, should walk at least eight miles each day. Not a desultory ramble, but a real good brisk pace, and not necessarily the entire distance in one walk. Here is the easiest way to do the daily stunt. If you live five minutes' walk from your work, start 25 minutes before whistel time and walk away from the work for 10 minutes, and then turn back and walk to work, arriving there in time to begin work with a healthy glow on your face and a springy step in your walk. Step out briskly for two miles at noon, before eating. Walk a full mile after work and before eating. That will make five miles total. Then, before retiring, walk briskly three miles, take a shower bath or a sponge bath, and jump into bed. If this schedule were to be followed every day for one year by every employee of the B. D. A., there would be a degree of perfection in health in Bradford that would be far above the health of any other group of employees in Rhode Island. The fresh country air is a wonderful tonic, and walking is a wonderful waist reducer and form beautifier. Try it.—Bradford Topics.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

Was in despair over stubborn eczema

Seemed like a miracle when Resinol healed

Barrington, R. I., Dec. 2:—"I wish the whole world to know what Resinol Ointment has done for me and my baby. I had given up hope of ever finding anything to cure the eczema on my ears. I was troubled with it for two whole years, using different kinds of ointments without showing any good results. Many of them—even prescribed remedies—only made the trouble worse. My mother-in-law, who had used Resinol Ointment for many years, told me she had used it on her children when they were babies and had never been without it. I then tried it on my ears and found that it worked like a miracle. After the third day my ears were better and within a week my skin was its natural color again. I use it on my baby whenever he needs it. Only one application will heal." (Signed) Mrs. Sebastian De Stefano, 85 County Road.

Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap stop itching instantly, and clear away pimples, dandruff, and irritations of the scalp, in most cases of skin trouble. Prescribed by doctors for 20 years. Druggists sell Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. For free trial, write to Dept. 2-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

APPLYING STRICT ENFORCEMENT OF MOTOR VEHICLE LAWS

The state motor vehicle department has suspended the licenses of 1808 operators in the first four months of this year for various infractions of the motor vehicle laws and rulings. In the corresponding period of last year, 1,723 operators were suspended.

To avoid injustice, many hearings are given by the department with respect to suspensions, and a separate division, with two hearing executives and several clerks is maintained for that purpose. During the first third of this year, 632 hearings were held, 296 of which were at the capitol in Hartford and 335 at different places throughout the state. In the same months of 1925 the department gave 492 hearings, of which 345 were held at Hartford and 277 elsewhere.

The department is promptly calling to account all operators who fail to report accidents within 24 hours, as required by law whenever personal injury, or property damage estimated at more than $10 results. In January, 141 licenses were taken up for that offense, in February 64, in March 60, and in April 70. Next in order comes the offense of reckless driving, for which the department freely suspends operators, as a part of the effort to enforce greater care in driving upon that element which appears to require it. In January, 116 were suspended for reckless driving. During February 61 were suspended, in March 43, and in April 138 on that account.

The March record indicates vigorous enforcement of the law prohibiting the operation of motor vehicles in Connecticut without an operator's license, before the granting of which the department requires satisfactory evidence of an applicant's qualification to drive on the public highways. One hundred were ruled off the road in March for driving without an operator's licence.

GEORGE G. ENGLER

George G. Engler, representative to the state legislature and well known local druggist, was unanimously nominated at the republican city caucus Friday evening at the town hall, as the party's candidate for mayor in the coming city election next month. Charles W. Burton, by a vote of 155 to 135, defeated Charles A. Hagberg for the water board nomination. Mr. Hagberg has been the republican member of the water board for the past four years.

The caucus had an approximate attendance of 300 and was one of the largest republican caucuses in several years. It was called to order at 8 o'clock by Judge Arthur F. Libby, chairman of the republican town committee, and Henry H. Pettis was nominated for moderator by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts. Mr. Pettis in taking the chair, said that it was a pleasure to see so large a representative republican gathering. He expressed the hope that whatever the outcome of the caucus all present would leave the hall prepared to elect the entire republican ticket.

William S. Murray nominated John H. Bowman for caucus clerk and Mr. Bowman was chosen for that position The clerk then read the call for the caucus and Moderator Pettis announced that the caucus was open for nominations for mayor. Judge John H. Barnes in nominating George G. Engler said: The gentleman I have in mind was born in the city of Norwich and the city will honor itself by honoring its son. It was ordained and ordered that he be born on the West Side. Anyone who is born on the West Side has got to be all right. I know that, for a good part of my childhood days were spent there. He very wisely married a Greeneville girl and lived in Greeneville for some time. He now lives in the Central district. He has played no favorites. He represented you wisely in the legislature. It is with the greatest of pleasure that I present as your candidate for mayor, George G. Engler. (Applause). I wish him success. Now, having done my part, I will say that if you republican men and women of the city will do your part, George G. Engler will be the next mayor of the Rose of New England.

The vote for Mr. Engler's nomination was unanimous, Arthur L. Peale seconding the nomination.

Nominations for aldermen and councilmen then proceeded as follows: For first alderman, E. LaRue Bliven, nominated by Judge Nelson J. Ayling; for second alderman, Josiah Greenstein, nominated by William S. Murray.

For councilmen—Willis B. Hill, nominated by Louis H. Geer; David J. Kenefick, nominated by Tyler D. Gur; Frederick P. Shea, nominated by Stephen H. Reeves; John W. Durnan, nominated by Howard Spalding.

For city treasurer, Stephen H. Reeves nominated by Adelard Morin.

The only contest of the caucus took place over the nomination for water commissioner. Rev. Charles H. Ricketts placed in nomination the name of Charles W. Burton, as a man with considerable experience in this work.

Charles W. Cassidy quickly nominated Charles A. Hagberg for re-election. He stated that Mr. Hagberg was elected as the republican member in 1922 and again elected in 1924 as the republican member. Mr. Cassidy called attention to the fact that nomination at the caucus means election to this particular office. He went on to say that Mr. Hagberg knows what is going on in the water department, knows what has been done and will be done and is familiar with the details connected with the building of the city's new reservoir.

The chair appointed two tellers, Ebenezer Learned and Tyler Rogers to assist the clerk in counting the vote and the vote was taken by passing from left to right in front of the moderator's desk. The result was announced by the chair as follows:

Total votes cast—290.
Necessary for choice—146.
For Mr. Burton—155.
For Mr. Hagberg—135.

Mr. Hagberg moved that the nomination be made unanimous and it was so ordered. After a motion had been adopted giving the town committee authority to fill any vacancies that might occur in the party ticket before election day, adjournment was taken at 8:45 o'clock, the caucus having been in session about 45 minutes.

NO OBJECTION SHOWN AT DRAWBRIDGE HEARING

A public hearing to consider the location and plans for a highway bridge across Poquetanuck cove, to replace the well known "drawbridge" was held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the chamber room of the court of common council in this city. Major R. G. Powell presided and Assistant Engineer E. W. Crowley was also present. Representing the state highway commission, Deputy Commissioner Welden, stated that the present bridge has been kept in order for some 20 years, but that a draw had not been considered for the new bridge because of the fact that the draw has never been used in that time.

It was stated by E. B. Spencer, engineer of the N. Y., N. H., & H. R. R. that their investigation showed that the draw had been opened in 1904 for the last time. The tentative plan for the new bridge is a steel frame encased in concrete with wooden piles and concrete piers. Fred Holdsworth, a property holder, expressed a desire to inspect the plans. After having the plans explained to him he offered no objection. As there was no one else to be heard in regard to the matter the hearing was declared closed.

WILL UNVEIL STATUE OF SAINT TERESA

At St. Mary's Memorial church next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday an attractive programme will be carried out in honor of St. Teresa, lovingly known as "The Little Flower."

A year ago in the presence of over 200,000 from every part of the world, Pope Pius XI performed one of the most elaborate ceremonies of the Jubilee year at Rome when he inscribed the name of "The Little Flower" on the roll of saints of the Catholic church. The story of the spread of devotion to this little "Carmelite Nun of Lisieux" is one of the most inspiring chapters of modern religious history. Although dying at the youthful age of 24 in the obscure Carmelite convent of northern France in 1896 the "Little Flower" has become an object of love and devotion and her virtues have been an inspiration to millions of men and women of every class in every nation in the world. All the great newspapers, countless magazines and many charming volumes have told the story in every language.

Through the generosity of a member of St. Mary's parish Rev. William A. Keefe has secured a beautiful statue of St. Teresa, made by a European artist. This statute will be blessed and unveiled at St. Mary's Memorial church Tuesday evening, May 18, at 7.30. Rev. Father Lucien, one of the most eloquent preachers of the Passionist Order, will deliver the sermon and conduct the three days' retreat in honor of the Little Flower. Special music and other attractive features have been arranged to please and inspire the large numbers from all parts of Norwich and vicinity who plan to participate in the privileges of the exercises.

In order that the children of St. Mary's parish may share in all the benefits of the retreat Father Keefe has arranged to hear all their confessions Monday. At the 8 o'clock mass Tuesday morning all will receive holy communion with the large specially instructed first communion class. The special schedule of hours for confessions, masses and communions of adults during the exercises will be announced by the Passionist Father Lucien, Tuesday evening at 7.30.

Anticipating the attendance of a large number of automobile parties from all parts of the city and surrounding towns Father Keefe has arranged to have all cars parked in the extensive school yard in the rear of St. Mary's Memorial church.

It was shown that the 12 months under the presidency of Mrs. Henry H. Pettis had been full of a varied line of activity, one feature of the year having been the group plan which had proven unusually effective in enlisting a large proportion of the membership in the work of the league. Do You Walk Enough?

This subject explains itself. Do you walk enough? Many, not only in the B. P. A., but in every textile, mercantile and business establishment, confine their walking to the daily trips between the back door and the garage, or the walk from the mill entrance to their job. This is not enough. It is not even enough to walk a mile each day, nor two or three miles. Every man and woman, and every youth over 15, should walk at least eight miles each day. Not a desultory ramble, but a real good brisk pace, and not necessarily the entire distance in one walk. Here is the easiest way to do the daily stunt. If you live five minutes' walk from your work, start 25 minutes before whistle time and walk away from the work for 10 minutes, and then turn back and walk to work, arriving there in time to begin work with a healthy glow on your face and a springy step in your walk. Step out briskly for two miles at noon, before eating. Walk a full mile after work and before eating. That will make five miles total. Then, before retiring, walk briskly three miles, take a shower bath or a sponge bath, and jump into bed. If this schedule were to be followed every day for one year by every employee of the B. P. A., there would be a degree of perfection in health in Bradford that would be far above the health of any other group of employees in Rhode Island. The fresh country air is a wonderful tonic, and walking is a wonderful waist reducer and form beautifier. Try it.—Bradford Topics.

HAGEN-FARRELL MATCH HOLDS CENTER OF SPORT STAGE SUNDAY AFTERNOON

WALTER HAGEN

With showers promised by the weatherman for Sunday golf fans are hoping that he is wrong as usual for wet weather would have a somewhat dampening effect on the Hagen-Farrell eighteen hole exhibition match at the Norwich Golf club scheduled for Sunday afternoon. The Hagen-Farrell match is the first of a number of feature golfing events planned for the local club this season and officially opens the new eighteen hole course.

Chief interest of course centers on Walter Hagen and Johnny Farrell but there is considerable interest in the secondary match between Captain J. E. Watties, Jr., of the Yale golf team and C. E. Stimpson, captain of the Harvard golf team. Watties will play in the foursome with Farrell and the Harvard captain will be teamed up with Hagen.

This is the first time that golf stars of such magnitude as Hagen and Farrell have played over a Norwich course and it is indeed an honor that the Norwich club was fortunate enough to secure such a match event though it is purely an exhibition. Hagen after playing the Norwich course will not appear in Connecticut again before going to England with the American professional team. Farrell will not play in Connecticut again this year in all probability as he is entered in practically all of the open and professional tournaments in the United States this summer. The opportunity to see the best in the golfing world is something that real golf enthusiast will miss and a record breaking gallery is expected for the match tomorrow.

Hagen recognized as America's leading golf professional, is one of the greatest match players in the world and is no mean medal player. That Hagen is a good medal player is attested by the fact that he has twice won the United States open championship twice and the British open championship twice, both being medal competitions. Hagen's impressive record of losing only four set matches in the last five years topped by his second consecutive win of the United States Professional Golfers' championship, at match play, surely establishes him as America's greatest match-play performer.

Farrell, who is Quaker Ridge pro, is recognized as one of the best medal players among the professionals. He is confident and the specter of the card and pencil, Old Man Par, has no terrors for him. His play against par is fully as good if not better than in the match-play against a human opponent. Johnny Farrell is looked upon as a golfer who will before many years be standing atop of the golfing world.

These two players, one a match-play master and the other a medal master, gifted against each other should provide a match that will prove interesting to devotees of golfing. The Stimpson-Watties match with its collegiate atmosphere should prove interesting although the golfing technique may not be as finished as that of the professionals. Collegiate rivalry will of course lend zest to this match and the old wards of both universities will follow the match with keen interest.

The match is scheduled for 1 o'clock Johnny Farrell will be the guest of Dr and Mrs Franklin S. Wilcox over the week end Hagen will arrive Sunday morning he having an exhibition on at the Clinton club today. Dinner is to be served at the club house after the match.

It is expected that with clearing skies and a warm sunshine after the rain the greens and fairways will be in perfect condition for Sunday's match.

Every effort has been made by the Norwich golf club to make the new eighteen hole course one of the best in New England and many expect to see either Hagen or Farrell set a course record although they will have to trave to beat George Feiseners record of 69 made last year when the course was first played over.

It might be well to give just a brief history of the Norwich Golf club on the eve of one of the club's greatest sporting events.

The location of the first golf course at Norwich, Connecticut, was on the old home lot of Benedict Arnold. A rector of one of the Episcopal churches in Norwich and a young golf enthusiast who lived at the old Benedict Arnold place laid out a six-hole golf course beginning in the backyard of Arnold's home. These two enthusiasts slowly gained recruits—among them some women.

The first course had in use of its fairways a ledge. This ledge was used in Indian times as a place where Indians ground their corn and the mortar holes were visible in the ledge.

The first tournament of which we have authentic information was in November, 1896, proven by the existance of a small silver cup which for a number of years was contested for. On it is engraved the names of the winners, dates and their score.

This course and two succeeding courses which were in the same general locality were laid out in a rough rock country adjacent to the residential district lying between the city of Norwich and Norwich Town Green.

There is in the archives of the club a score card of the third course. This course was 2707 yards in length. The score card does not show that par was in use at that time. The bogey system was the criterion of excellence. The back of the card is filled with local rules and penalties for lifting. A note at the bottom announces that hole number one has on local rule.

The fourth course was laid out on land acquired by the Norwich Golf Land company for golf purposes at a point about three miles south of the center of the city. On this course there were many blind holes; six out of nine being blind—two from the tee and four from the proper position to play the approach shot. The condition of the terrain at this place was much superior to the terrain of the first three courses in view of the absence of rock and property lines designated by stone walls over which the club members on the old three courses had to play. This land was purchased and then the golf course was laid out on it. This was one of the reasons why so many blind holes were found on it. The reason for emphasizing these features of the earlier courses is to show that the experiences of playing on these earlier courses were availed of to produce in the present 18-hole course conditions which would be more pleasurable in playing the game.

The present 18 holes were laid out before the additional necessary land was acquired. While the method pursued raised the cost of the land actually acquired considerably above its agricultural value it reduced the cost of construction and eliminated blind holes. It also made possible a layout which was easy to walk over and contained no steep grades to climb in the process of the play.

This locality was at some time—any years ago—a level plain, later to be eroded by the drainage of Trading Cove brook and its tributaries. This erosion had left knolly ridges, ravines, gulleys and such like obstacles which make attractive and interesting hazards. The effect is to provide an 18-hole golf course in which there are no two holes alike and even where they run approximately parallel the variety of the terrain is sufficient to prevent monotonous continuance of one hole after another similar or alike. Indians. The name Trading Cove brook forms an amphitheatre in part of which the golf course is located. The locality was at on time a favorite camping place for the Mohegan Indians. The name Trading Cobe Brook was derived from the fact that in a salt water cove nearby a landing place was a trading point between the Indians and the whites.

To sum up the situation, here is an 18-hole golf course, modern in every respect, built in accordance with the ideas as to what constitutes an ideal golf course. Laid out and planned very largely by noted golf architects containing natural and artificial hazards properly placed so as not to penalize the good golfer, or interfere with the progress of the less skillful provided he shoots straight. The location is attractive and has some historic interest.

The personnel of the professional and green keeper's staff contributes considerably to the delight of playing this course.

CHAPMAN TECK—WESTERLY GAME IS POSTPONED

The baseball game scheduled for holiday afternoon between Westerly high school and Chapman Tech of New London was postponed on account of rain and wet grounds, at the Westerly athletic field off High street in preparation for this game on Thursday the small roller of the Westerly highway department was run over the field to have the surface in good playing condition. This would have been Westerly's second league game in the Rhode Island-Eastern Connecticut association. The game was originally set for Saturday May 45, but was set one day ahead on account of the track meet on that day at the Rhode Island State college at Kingston.

The last game played by the W. H. S. was that of last Wednesday when the Blue and White defeated the Warwick high school team at Apponaug, R. I., by the score of 4 to 3. It is probable that the W. H. S.-Chapman Tech game will be played off on next Tuesday, May 19th, provided the game scheduled at Westerly with the Bryant and Stratton team of Providence is cancelled.

SOCONY TEAM PLAYS AT JEWETT CITY SUNDAY

Sunday at Ashland Park, Jewett City, the best attraction offered for the week-end in Eastern Connecticut is always one game that is looked forward to with the keenest interest. That game is the Bulkeley encounter and it is anticipated with mingled hopes and fears depending upon what kind of a team represents the old school. This year the Bulkeley clansiea are not feared as it is certain that the Academy is represented by the best baseball and football teams in recent years.

Today the Academy invades the Bulkeley stronghold with all the confidence in the world for the Academy undergraduate body knows that it is well represented on diamond this year. Having emerged victors in ten contests on the diamond against teams reputed to be stronger than Bulkeley the Academy anticipates but little trouble in downing the Wheelers this afternoon at Morgan field. The Academy, although confident of victory, is not under-estimating the Bulkeley team in the least. Bulkeley always puts up a fight no matter in what sport and it is safe to say that in today's game Bulkeley will fight to the finish. The Academy realizes this and goes into today's game with a determination that the athletic reign of Bulkeley over the Academy, which has held away for the past four years, is to end. For four years Bulkeley had a "wonder team" and now it is the turn of the Academy to mount to the baseball pinnacle in Eastern Connecticut.

Coach Berle E. Brigham has put in a week of stiff practice with his charges and on Friday pronounced them as fit as the proverbial fiddle. Lloyd Jarvis, who turned back the Bulkeley wonders last year, is again to take the mound against the Orange and Black today. Mace Goldblatt who has showed that he is a dependable catcher and sure hitter will be Jarvis' battery mate. Jarvis however, will be faced by no such hitter as Sheffield, Rice and Booth. It is new material that will face the local pitching Ace. Unless Bulkeley shows marvelous hitting powers it is expected that Jarvis will be perfectly able to take care of Bulkeley.

Bulkeley is depending on Montali to turn back the Academy but Montali has pitched against the local team before and there was no difficulty in solving his delivery. Perfect support in back of Montali saved him last season but although his team has been undefeated this season he has not been up against such a heavy-hitting high school team as the Academy. Bulkeley is stimulate interest in the game has written to every Bulkeley graduate to be present at the game. They end their appeal with the phrase, 'Let's have 10,000 at the game."

The Academy students will do their part to make up the 10,000 for every student who can beg, borrow or steal a ride to New London today will be at the game. "We'll Beat Bulkeley" has been the slogan this year and after the game they expect it will read, "We Beat Bulkeley." The lineups:

Academy—Cimikoski, 2b; Sedinsky, lf; Tombari, ss; Jarvis, p or cf; Burke, 1b; Yerrington, 3b; Goldblatt, c; Greene, cf or p; Brewer, rf.

Bulkeley—Gestano, ss; Allen, 3b; Montali, 2b or p; Shurtz, lf; Briggs, rf; Collins, c; Decker, cf; Gorton, 1b; Petrosky, p; Locke, 2b.

RUTH'S 15TH HOMER WINS GAME FOR THE YANKEES

NEW YORK, May 14—(AP)—Babe Ruth's 11th home run of the season in the first inning with Gehrig on base gave the Yankees a 3 to 1 victory over Cleveland today for a clean sweep of the three game series. Levsen, right hander from Iowa, held the New Yorkers to two hits, Ruth's smash and a single by Collins in the second. It was the lowest number of hits the Yankees have made it any game this year.

Ruth's homer was the 220th of his 12 years' career in the majors and fell on the anniversary of his 11th homer of his 1921 record year when he made 59 circuit blows. However, on May 14, 1921, the Yankees had played but 23 games while this year they have completed 37. Score:

NATIONAL A. A. U. MARATHON TO BE RUN TODAY

BALTIMORE, May 14—(AP)—Marathon's National A. A. U. crown will descend on a new brow in the Laurel-Baltimore run tomorow. Chuck Mellor of Chicago, last May's A. A. U. champion over the 26 miles, 385 yards route, is not defending his title. With the exception of Mellor, however, and John C. Miles, the 18 year old Canadian who established a new world's record at Boston last month, marathon's stardom is here.

Clarence E. DeMar of Melrose Highlands Massachusetts, Albin Stenroos, who carried the colors of the Finnish-American A. C. of New York to second place at Boston and Albert (Whitey) Michelson of the Cygnet A. C., East Portchester, Connecticut, were favorites tonight to don the laurel wreath.

YOUNG STRIBLING WINS AN EASY DECISION OVER JOHNNY RISKO

NEW YORK, May 14—(AP)—W. L. (Young) Stribling administered a drubbing tonight to Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, in a slashing 10-round battle in Madison Square Garden.

Fifteen thousand fans saw the 21-year-old Georgian spot his opponent 14 and one half pounds in weight, then cut loose with an attack that smothered and harassed the Clevelander almost from start to finish. Stribling outfought and outgeneralled Risko, had him groggy under smashing rights to the chin in both the fifth and seventh rounds and, at the end, carried off the judges' verdict by a decisive margin.

Stribling carried off seven of the 10 rounds in the opinion of a majority of critics and successfully weathered a desperate rally uncorked by his opponent in the ninth and tenth rounds.

It was a gala night for the entire Stribling family, for Herbie (Babe) Stribling, 19 year old younger brother of W. L., was victorious in a six-round preliminary over Joe Werner of New York. Herbie, together with "Ma" Stribling and "W. L. '2'" bride, greeted Risko's conqueror with kisses as he clumbed out of the ring.

Stribling weighed 174 1-8 to Risko's 190.

In the semi-final match, scheduled for 10 rounds, Chick Suggs, New Bedford, Mass., negro, scored a technical knockout victory over Johnny Brown, English bantamweight titleholder. The referee stopped the bout in the fifth round with the Briton still on his feet but badly cut about the face by Suggs' slashing attack.

N. Y. COMMISSION YIELDS TO CONN. BOXING BODY

NEW YORK, May 14—(AP)—A threatened break between the state athletic commissions of New York and Connecticut was averted today when the New York board yielded to the latter in granting permission to Louis (Kid) Kaplan to defend his featherweight title against Bobby Garcia of Camp Holabird, Md., in Connecticut, June 27 or 28.

Both Hartford and New Haven have bid for the match but Dennis McMahon, the champion's manager, intimated the match will likely go to Hartford under the promotion of George Mulligan of Waterbury, who is erecting a stadium in the Connecticut capital.

The titleholder was released from a previous agreement to meet Garcia at the Queensboro A. C., in Long Island City, June 1 when both principals signed contracts under which the winner will meet Red Chapman of Boston days after the Connecticut match at the Queensboro Stadium within 20. Kaplan and Garcia each posted $2,500 forfeits to guarantee this arrangement.

This compromise was brought about after the Connecticut board aligned itself with Kaplan, who served notice on the New York board that he would accept suspention rather than meet Garcia in this state.

WESTERLY

ALL WESTERLY SCHOOLS HAVE ARBOR DAY PROGRAMS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 15—Arbor day, the second Friday in May, in Rhode Island, one of the 11 legal holidays when banking houses are closed, was fittingly celebrated in Westerly today. More properly speaking it is known as a school "observance day," when in the public schools of the state, fitting programs are carried out along lines generally suggested by members of the Rhode Island Department of Education. In many towns the exact program was furnished by the state. It is no longer marked by a cessation of school activity or even a half holiday as was the custom some years ago. If it is possible activity is made by schools in furtherance of the study of out door life, nature study classes may pass the day afield and credit be given students, although the inside of class rooms may not be visited on that day. Superintendent Willard H. Bacon of the Westerly public schools in a talk with the press on the subject of Arbor day said that an effort was being made in Rhode Island this year in furtherance of the study of bird life common to the state, habits and characteristics. Himself a member of the Rhode Island Audubon societ' recommendation is made by him that each and everyone interested along these lines should affiliate with such an organization. Especially did he recommend that the Kimball Bird Sanctuary, several acres of land located in Washington county, should be visited. On Saturday morning parties will be made up every two hours, and, under the leadership of competent guides will pass through this endowed reservation, to obtain a first hand information on bird life in Rhode Island.

In the formal observance of Arbor day in school programs there was tree planting and the planting of school windo wboxes, in Bradford and outlying schoolhouses in the town. At the High street grammar school playlets or dramatizations were given under the direction of Mrs. S. H. Davis. At the Westerly high school on Broad street, plans were made for the planting of ivy against the school walls. The out of door exercises of the various schools were generally carried out before the rain began to fall.

In the assembly hall auditorium of the Westerly high school, under the supervision of Miss Jennie B. Stanton, special teacher in reading and physical training, the following was presented:

I. Chorus, "Beauty in the Forest"; II. Scripture, Lord's Prayer; III. Chorus "God of the Year"; IV. The Legend of Spring, Marjorie Chapman; VI Original poem, "Springtime Joys," Arthur Edmonds; VI. The Training Arbutus, recitation, Virginia Collins; VII. The Flower Chorus, recitation, Ruth Thompson.

At this point in the programme, Gordon Fiddes, president of the Senior class, announced that this year the class would plant a Boston ivy on the south wall to act as a background with the ivy of the class of '24, for future shrub planting.

The programme closed with the singing of "The Ivy Green" by the school.

In anticipation of Arbor day bird study and the Saturday field day at the Kimball Bird Sanctuary in Charlestown, R. I., on Thursday afternoon Marion D. Weston of the Rhode Island College of Education, spoke in the high school auditorium on the subject of Nature Study in Schools, referring especially to field trips and the conducting of classes on field trips.

The president of the Rhode Island Audubon society spoke on the work being done by the society with reference to the libraries and traveling libraries or cabinets that can be sent about the various towns of the state.

A specimen cabinet made up by Director Bryant of Roger Williams park, Providence, was exhibited. In the cabinet was a mounted cat bird. Besides pictures of this bird and the places in which it liked to live, there was also in the cabinet, specimens of its food and also a nest including the eggs. Accompanying the cabinet were cards with descriptions of this bird, common to Rhode Island, and also of its songs.

The Friday session of the Third district court, Judge Oliver H. Williams on the bench, was a short one as Friday, Arbor Day, was a legal holiday in Rhode Island. Beside the docket but one case was heard in chambers. This case was a misdemeaner committed by Arthur Brown, 47, of Tomaquag Valley, in the town of Hopkinton. Complaints of the man's actions was made by Hopkinton Chief of Police Frank H. Brown. After a frank statement of affairs, Judge Williams placed him on probation, with suspended sentence.

The Westerly ticket office of the New Haven railroad will have direct telephone wire connection with the Grand Central and Pennsylvania stations, New York city, for during the past week an executive wire was tapped. As soon as call numbers are established it will be possible to call the Boston, Providence, New London, New Haven, Bridgeport and New York offices by the company's own private wire. A system will be established whereby at odd hours as 9, 11, 1 and 3 o'clock these offices may be called and reservations made for chairs and berths and the sale completed while the commuter waits. Heretofore it has been necessary to telephone the Westerly block tower, when the message was telegraphed and the reply received through the same channel, and in some instances it has been the case that when the reply came the train had gone.

On Friday morning Railroad avenue from the front of the state armory on Dixon street to the junction with Canal street was treated with a coat of oil and sanded down. Previous o this the road surface was scarified by workmen in the employ of the Westerly Highway department, but the old rails of the abandoned Norwich and Westerly electric road were not taken out.

On Thursday evening Selectmen John Fribance, Arthur F. Babcock and Joseph Vargas met in Stonington, when the matter of trouble in the laying o fthe surface water drain on Moss street was gone over. Invited to the conference were representatives of the contracting company of New London, their pipe layers and laborers. There has been some criticism by Pawcatuck residents that the labor should be done by workmen who reside in the town of Stonington.

Arraigned Friday morning on two counts, Charles Laskey of New London was brought before Judge William A. Wilcox in Stonington town court. The first count charged that on Wednesday night, May 12th, he recklessly drove an automobile on Greenman avenue in Mystic, and the second that he used a registration other than that for which it was issued.

As Laskey was but 20 years of age, Dr. James H. Weeks was appointed his guardian by the court. For the defendant he entered a plea of guilty to both charges.

State Policeman George Sisson of Groton Barracks testified regarding the case, which he had been called to investigate shortly after the automobile operated by Laskey struck another machine. The evidence showed that Laskey had been driving on the left side of the road for a distance of more than 200 feet.

Louis Danesi, driver of the car which was hit, gave his story of the affair. Danesi sustained a slight injury to one foot and the two young women in the machine were cut considerably. One of them also suffered a fracture of the right arm.

Laskey admitted that he had had only a short experience as a driver, and after the trial it was revealed that he had possessed no driver's license. Judge William A. Wilcox found the young man guilty and imposed a fine of $25 on each count. The costs in the case being $14.75, bringing the total bill to $64.75. Laskey settled and was discharged.

Connecticut, as well as Westerly automobile drivers will have to "watch their step" beginning today (Saturday) for the law is to be clamped on tight in relation to the Westerly town ordinances concerning parking. Eternal vigilence is respect to finding the yellow and black metal target "stop" signs will be the price of complete safety and immunity from police apprehension in the future.

When interviewed on the subject, Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown said that many of the townspeople can help a great deal by complying strictly with the rules provided for the down-town district. "We have been lenient during the winter months, but we are compelled to require strict observance of the regulations during the summer months," he said.

Chief Brown requests local merchants in particular to observe the parking ordinances. "Many of them have been lax at times in leaving their cars outside their business houses for periods longer than allowed by the parking signs," he declared. "Hereafter, however," he added, "we will have to compel them to take notice of the signs."

"Most of the merchants and other business men in town who have been offenders in this respect," Chief Brown continued, "could, with a little effort, drive their cars to the rear of the premises where they are employed." Chief Brown pointed out that his warning applied to "business men" with establishments on Main, Broad, High and Canal streets.

Offenders of the parking regulations will be warned and tickets given them if they do not comply with the ordinances, according to Chief Brown. First offenders will not be given court summons, it is understood, but "repeaters" will have to stand punishment.

A visitation by Great Chiefs of Rhode Island and Connecticut was made on Friday night to Misquamicut tribe, No. 19, Independent Order of Red Men of Westerly. The visitation partook of the nature of a joint one by the Red Men, William Dowr sachem, and the Daughters of Pocahontas, Annie Coombs, pocahontas.

Miss Hilda K. Young of Hartford, is the guest over the week end of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Selden M. Young, of Hillandale farm, Haversham.

Johnny Chuck's Shocking Discovery

'Tis apt one's thoughts to disarrange
To find one's self where all is strange.

—Johnny Chuck.

Johnny Chuck ought to know. You see, Johnny Chuck made a shocking discovery—one that quite upset him. To begin with, he was caught in a box trap. Hardly had the cover of that trap come down when Johnny was picked up, trap and all. You see, Farmer Brown's Boy had been watching from the barn door. He had run over to that trap just as soon as he saw Johnny spring it. Johnny heard his footsteps, and being helpless inside that trap, of course, Johnny was very much upset and frightened. Then he felt himself picked up, trap and all, and he wondered what was going to happen next.

Johnny never will forget that journey. It seemed to him a terribly long journey. It wasn't nearly as long as it seemed, but it was long enough. Of course, Johnny knew that he was being taken away from his home there in the Old Orchard. Where could he be going? What could be going to happen? Who had him? What did it all mean? Johnny asked himself all these questions and couldn't find an answer for one of them.

"Go it, you fat rascal!" cried Farmer Brown's Boy.

Finally, Johnny felt the trap put down on the ground. Then it opened quite suddenly. The sunlight made Johnny blink and for a moment he didn't move. Then he realized that here was a chance for freedom, and he scurried out of that trap in such a hurry that Farmer Brown's Boy laughed aloud.

"Go it, you fat rascal!" cried Farmer Brown's Boy. "Go it and see if you can keep out of mischief now. I don't know of any mischief you can get in here. This is why I have brought you over here."

Of course, Johnny didn't understand this. He only had room for just one thought at that moment, and that was that he was free. He didn't even stop to wonder where he was. It wasn't until he had run along a little path far enough to feel quite safe, that Johnny even looked around. It was then that he made a shocking discovery. It really was a shocking discovery. He discovered that he hadn't the slightest idea in the world where he was. He didn't even know in which direction home was. This discovery scared him almost as much as the trap had when it caught him. It is a funny feeling to be somewhere where you are a total stranger. Johnny sat up and looked this way and looked that way and looked the other way. In fact, he looked every way. All about him were bushes. Never had he seen so many bushes. There was the little path in which he was sitting, but where that led he hadn't any idea.

"The first thing to do," said Johnny, "is to find a safe place. Supposing Old Man Coyote should come along. I would have to fight for it, then. I must find a place where I can hide."

So he trotted along the little path—which really was a cow path. By and by he turned aside into a still smaller path, which hadn't been used very much. This led him to a pile of rocks. He found a sandy place and began to dig. He was digging a hole under one of these rocks. Upset as he was, he still had sense enough to choose a place that would be big enough for him to dig down, but could not be made bigger. How he made the sand fly! He was in a hurry. He didn't know who or what might come along in that strange place.

"I won't breathe easily until I am where I am beyond the reach of any enemy," muttered Johnny. "There will be time enough to look for something to eat after I get this done. I always did believe in safety first. I still do. Now I wish I knew where I am."

Have you guessed where Johnny Chuck was. He was up in the Old Pasture.

QUALITY AT LOW COST

Good Morning!

The Edward Chappell Co. Speaking

As you know, it has become something of a practice in Norwich to wait for the lowest prices in the coal market before filling bins for future needs. For nearly 90 years we have made an annual study of this subject, and figures show that for many years we have, with remarkable precision, notified our customers of the best and cheapest time to order coal.

We believe now is the time to fill your bins for next winter. The market appears to be as low as it will go with the added advantage to you that spring and summer coal shipments are cleaner and drier than any other time of the year.

As usual we recommend the Famous Reading Anthracite for which we are sole agents, also our selected Wilkesbarre Coal, and particularly we recommend Buckwheat size anthracite for home use. We have some interesting facts on this economical coal that are yours for the asking.

We sell many kinds of coal but GIVE one kind of service.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

POETRY

Then and Now

To me the earth once seemed to be
Most beautiful and fair;
All living creatures very dear to me,
In wood or air.
But kindred of a freer class
Whose life is thrilled with keenest joy
As I find the young quail in the grass.

The cobbler in the apple tree,
The brown thrush in the wood,
The meadow-lark all called to me
In unison
A sense of union with the whole,
Of love for beast and bird.
Deep chords from man's ancestral soul
Each wild note stirred.

All that is gone, and now I see
A blood-stained earth, where strife,
Unceasing war, and cruelty,
Make room for life;
Each living thing a helpless prey
To sharper tooth or claw,
Ten thousand murders every day
By nature's law.

But still old earth its glamour casts
O'er the clear eyes of youth,
And still the old illusion lasts
In spite of truth;
For now I find my boy can see
The earth I used to know;
He sees it as it seemed to me
So long ago.

Poor little chap! Sometimes I think
I'll tell him how he's fooled,
But when I see his eyes, I shrink,
My purpose cooled.
Why should I cloud his soul with doubt,
Or youth's illusions mar?
Too soon, alas, he will find out
That life is war.

—Charles Frederick Johnson.

Love-Letters

Who keeps not somewhere safely stored
Like jewels in a casket, hid from view,
A bundle of love-letters, old or new,
Fragrant with hope, or fresh as buds of May,
Whose charactered sheets in the shrine of the night
With stealthy fingers does not draw them forth,
Dear tender treasures, plot of common earth,
And live the old joys o'er that suffered blight.
Yea, here are roses, not faded quite with years,
Sometimes I lightly think of the old flame
That kindled them, but is it any shame
To whisper they are wet tonight with tears?
What strange, resistless power love has to hold
Its life, though all its ashes have grown cold!

—Arthur Wentworth Hamilton Eaton.

We are outclassed by Great Britain and Germany when it comes to physics, chemistry and physiology, but are on about even terms with respect to mathematics and medicine, he believes. THE SOCIAL CORNER

TO PITY DISTRESS IS BUT HUMAN; TO RELIEVE IT IS GODLIKE.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
From "A Mountain Whippoorwill"
(A Georgia Romance).

Dixon County has a mighty pretty fair,
All the smarty fiddlers from the South come there.
Elbows flyin' as they rosin up the bow
For the first prize contest in the Georgia fiddlers' show.

Old Dan Wheeling with his whiskers in his ears,
King-pin fiddler for nearly twenty years
Big Tom Sargent, with his slim waist-string,
An' Little Johnny Weaver that can make a fiddle cry.
Everybody waitin' for the first two-diddee,
When in comes a-stumblin'—hill-billy me!
Bowed right pretty to the judges an' the rest,
Took a silver dollar from a hole inside my vest,
Plunked it on the table an' said,
There's my callin'-card!
An' any one that licks me—well, he's got to fiddle hard!"

Big Tom Sargent was the first in line;
He could fiddle all the bug off a sweet-potato-vine.
He could fiddle down a possum from a mile - high tree,
He could fiddle up a whale from the bottom of the sea.
Yuh could hear hands spanking till they spanked each other raw
When he finished variations on "Turkey in the Straw."

Little Jimmy Weaver was the next to play;
He could fiddle all night, he could fiddle all day.
He could make a fiddle rustle like a lowland river,
He could make a fiddle croon like a lovin' woman,
And they clapped like thunder when he'd finished strummin'.

Then came the ruck of the bob-tailed fiddlers,
The let's-go-easies, the fair-to-middlers.
All the crowd was tired of their music 'count squealing,
When out in the center steps Old Dan Wheeling.

He fiddled high and he fiddled low,
(Listen, little whippoorwill, yuh got to spread yore wings!)
He fiddled with a cherry-wood bow
(Old Dan Wheeling's got bee-honey in his strings.)
He fiddled north an' he fiddled south,
He fiddled the heart right out of yore mouth.
He fiddled here and he fiddled there,
He fiddled salvation everywhere.
When he was finished the crowd cut loose,
(Whippoorwill, they's rain on yore breast.)
And I sat there wondrin', "What's the use?"
(Whippoorwill, fly home to yore nest!)

But I stood up pert, and I took my bow,
And my fiddle went to my shoulder, so;
And they wasn't no crowd to cut me raised,
But I was alone where I was raised.
They've fiddled the rose an' they've fiddled the thorn,
But they haven't fiddled the mountain corn,
They've fiddled sinful an' fiddled moral,
But they haven't fiddled the brush-wood-laurel.
They've fiddled the loud an' they've fiddled still,
But they haven't fiddled the whippoorwill.

Swing your partners—up and down the middle!
Sashay now—oh, listen to that fiddle!
Flapjacks flippin' on a red-hot griddle.
Go down Moses, set my people free,
Pop goes the weasel thru' the coon-skin tree!
Jonah sittin' on a hickory bough,
Up jumps a whale—an' where's yore prophet now?
Rabbit in the pea-patch, possum in the pot,
Try an' stop my fiddle now my fiddle's gettin' hot!

Whippoorwill singin' in the mountain bush,
Whippoorwill shoutin' from the burnin' bush,
Whippoorwill cryin' in the stable door
Sing tonight as you've never sung before!
Sing on the mountains, little whippoorwill.
Sing to the valley's, an' slap 'em with a hill,
For I'm strutting high as an eagle's quill.

They wasn't a sound when I stooped bowin', (Whippoorwill, yuh can sing no more.
But somewhere or other the dawn was growin'.
(Oh, mountain whippoorwill!)
An' I thought, "I've fiddled all night and lost, You're a good hill-billy, but you've been bossed."

So I went to congratulate old man Dan,
But he put his fiddle into my han'—
An' then the noise of the crowd began.

—Stephen Vincent Benet, in The Century Magazine.

Housekeeping

The sweetest woman in the world becomes a terror when
The season comes which tries the souls of all home loving men;
When soap and wet and slop and steam and dire confusion reign
And to the god of cleanliness she dedicates her brain—
'Tis then man feels that marriage may a direful failure be;
And in his secret soul, perhaps, he wishes he were free.

She tears the carpets up with vim, and wields the lusty brush;
The cat sulks up her fussy back and vacates with a rush;
The dog, with tail low coaxt, skulks out and hides himself away;
He knows the racket she is on will last for many a day;
The sage old spiders save their webs from being to the cracks,
And all the flies that whittered through fall prone upon their backs.

All your old coats and many shoes, and hats that fit your head,
The magazine you've just looked through, and circulars unread,
She sells for "junk," and when you ask, with mild and pensive air,
Where they have gone, she looks at you — and echo answers "Where?"

And though you should see red and fume, it wouldn't change her plan;
It won't have its annual round!

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS

May 15—Shore Line Club No. 6 meets in Veterans of Foreign Wars rooms, Walton building, West Broad street, Westerly, R. I.

Just like a shiftless man!"
And then she pins her gown up front;
Determined is her mien,
Which says that though the heavens sh fall she shall go on and clean!
Cold frozen cold dinners, chill beds,
cold sofas, ice cold chairs,
A smell of varnish everywhere, tacks on the slippery stairs!
Wet rugs waylay you at each turn,
cold winds run riot through
The empty halls—she's airing off her nose congested and blue!
She skins her knuckles, tears her nails, her head and body ache.
But she is happy for she knows her house would "take the cake!"
No nook or corner has escaped, stern order settles o'er
That domicile from attic down to clean swept cellar floor!
And though that woman's almost dead, her forehead is serene,
Because she knows, let come what may, that house of hers is clean!

Answer to the Gipsy's Warning

Lady, do not heed her warning,
Trust me—thou shalt find me true;
Constant as the light of morning
I will ever be to you.
Lady, I will not deceive thee
Fill thy guileless heart with woe
Trust me, lady and believe me
Sorrow thou shalt never know.

Lady, every joy would perish
Pleasure all would wither fast,
If no heart could love and cherish
In this world of storm and blast.
E'en the stars that gleam above thee
Shine the brightest in the night,
So would he who fondly loves thee
In the darkness be thy light
Down besides the flowing river
Where the dark green willow weeps,
Where the leafy branches quiver—
There a gentle maiden sleeps,
In the morn a lonely stranger
Comes and lingers many hours—
Lady, he's not heartless stranger
For he strews her grave with flowers.
Lady, heed not then her warning
Lay thy soft white hand in mine,
For I seek no fairer laurel
Than the constant love of thine
When the silver moonlight brightens
Thou shalt slumber on my breast,
Tender words thy soul shall lighten
Lull thy spirit into rest.

'Tis the sheep that keep close to the Shepherd
Who travel the smoothest path,
And receive the best protection,
And share all that He hath.

'Tis the sheep that keep close to the Shepherd
Who receive the tender grass
That He pulls for their enjoyment,
As along life's way they pass.

'Tis the sheep that keep close to the Shepherd
Who know and obey His voice,
Who would not follow another
Tho' they have the power of choice.

'Tis the sheep that keep close to the Shepherd
Who are sure to reach the fold;
Who drink of the purest water
Safe sheltered from the cold.

'Tis the sheep that keep close to the Shepherd
Who knew and love Him best,
Who are out of harm and danger
And the enemy can't molest.

'Tis the sheep that keep close to the Shepherd
Who enjoy the sweetest peace:
And will dwell with Him forever
Where love will never cease.

GREETINGS FROM SISTER READY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Good morning! How are you all this lovely morning? Rather chilly around the edges. We had a frost this morning. Jack Frost does not intend to take a back seat; from past kinds enough for him. I should like to know where early spring is. We heard so much talk about it. Perhaps it has gone to Florida. That one hot day we had, I had one fly. I had the screen door out on and it did seem so nice to have the door open, but I only have had one day of such enjoyment.

I had such a pleasant day May 5th at Club No. 2. There was a fine dinner, a fine entertainment after and smiles and smiles. I have a motto in my kitchen "Keep Smiling" and everyone coming in reads it and says it's a splendid thing to do.

I have not begun to clean house yet We have all kinds of dirt, dust and gravel down here blown in faster than I can shovel it out. But when we do get all fixed up we will have a lovely road.

Celia Louise: Missed you at the Corner. Just a few of us at the table in the evening. I always feel at home when I see a few Corner sisters present where ever I am.

Scottie: We were asking about you.

Calla Lily: I found my dish in the evening. Never gave it a thought until I arrived home.

Aunty No. 1: How are you this fine morning? Fine and dandy, I trust.

Sweet William: You have got started so you must go again. I am having a boiled dinner today. Come in and have some.

Trust the sick are all improving. I will close with best wishes to all Corner sisters.

SISTER READY.

THINKS CLUB A GREAT IDEA

Editor Social Corner: The Social Corner page grows more and more interesting. That was a bright idea to start a club. It will give us all something to look forwabrd to for nothing short of sickness or snow storms will prevent me from joining No. 6.

Dorothy Bradford: Thank you for stating in your letter that the 18th of May was the appointed time.

E. L. M.: You say I have the wrong number but I hardly think so. I could never forget those delicious clam chowders if I were to live to be 90 and I've not forgotten your ribbon cake either. Now look for me for I shall arrive in a cloud of dust with sails all set. Shall join unless I am under arrest.

Yours for the friendly greetings,
NANCY PEEK.

CLUB NO. 6 WILL MEET IN WESTERLY MAY 18

Dear Social Corner Friends: The Shore Line club No. 6 will meet Tuesday, May 18 in Veterans of Foreign Wars rooms, West Broad street, Westerly, R. I., where the big yellow bow will be on display at the entrance.

We hope all members of club No. 6 will be present and bring friends. Members of other clubs will be very welcome.

The Groton & Stonington trolley and Norwich and Westerly bus terminals are very near, so we hope those living along either line may be able to make the trip. As usual, each person should bring plate, cup, knife, fork, spoon and something good for the dinner.

Rose Lee: Get up your party and come on.

Nancy Peek: Come and make sure how many eaters you know.

American Girl: Come and show yourself.

For Get Me Not: Can't you come and meet with us?

I visited Club No. 1 for the first time on Wednesday May 5, and had a delightful time as everyone was so cordial.

Red Rose: Writing of old pans, my mother has a dish pan that has been in use 56 years. It must have been hand made as it is in parts, has seams in it. It couldn't be called exactly "as good as new" but is going strong yet.

As you say, some different from pans we buy now.

Best wishes to all.

RECIPES WITH CORN

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: What queer weather we are having, first it is warm—then it is cold. Things will be late growing this year. Some of the fruit trees are in bloom now and they do look so pretty. Decocation day will be here before long now, the saddest holiday there is, but although the saddest it is one of my favorite holidays.

Will some of the sisters please tell me if geraniums should be kept in the dark or the light.

I am sending a few recipes the sisters may like to try sometime,

Corn Souffle: To 1 can of corn chopped fine or put through a colander add 1 cup milk and simmer 10 minutes. Stir in 1 teaspoon cornstarch blended with cold milk. Season and cook a few minutes. Then whip in the yolk of 1 egg and lastly the stiffly beaten white. Bake in well greased baking dish 20 minutes.

Corn Pie: Slightly cook 6 strips of bacon. Arrange on the bottom and sides of the baking dish. Then sprinkle with fine bread crumbs. Add a layer of canned tomatoes, from which the juice has been strained and a tablespoon of finely minced sweet green pepper. Sprinkle with salt and a teaspoon of sugar and dot with bits of butter. Over this place a layer of yellow bantam corn pulp from which all liquid has been drained. Sprinkle with salt and pieces of butter; then add another layer of tomatoes and seasoning. Cover with a layer of crumbs, and cook half an hour in a moderate oven. A little grated cheese is a nice addition to this dish. The layer of corn and tomato should be at least an inch thick.

Corn Shortcake: Make a very rich biscuit dough and roll the two rounds about 1-4 inch thick to fit a layer cake pan. Brush the first layer liberally with melted butter; place the second layer on top and butter that well, too. Bake for 10 minutes in a hot oven. Split the two layers and butter each layer very liberally and fill with corn mixture, made by adding 3-4 teaspoon salt and 1-2 teaspoon of sugar to 2 cups of corn pulp, drained of all liquid. Then add 1 cup of stewed tomatoes, 1 tablespoon of minced onion, a clove, 1-2 teaspoon of salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 teaspoon of butter, cooked together until the onions are tender. Fill the shortcake with this hot mixture. Brush the top layer again with melted butter and serve surrounded with small hot flat cakes of hamburg steak.

Best wishes to the Social Corner Editor and sisters.

CORNER IS RIGHTLY NAMED

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: "To love and to be loved" is the aim of every one of us, I am sure. The tribute paid to Mother, by Black Eyed Susie, was not only a most fitting tribute, but a most lovely thought.

We do not appreciate the little kindnesses shown by those dear and near to us, until they are gone, from us. 'Tis true sorrows enter every heart at some time in one's life. No matter how bright and happy one may appear to be, the human heart may be sorely tried. Illness comes to every one at some time in one's life; so one escapes it.

The radio affords many bright spots in one's life. I wonder how many of our club members have one, and listen in to the wonderful sermons, music and the many fine programs prepared for those 2,000,000 listeners in. Think of a multitude of people who enjoy the same programs, indeed one finds this a very small, but glorious world, so many things put here for us all, who will, to enjoy.

With the birth of spring one finds sunshine the April days with its showers coming and going, and the beauties of May upon us. And we see the different colored flowers bloom and as the changes come and go with the seasons, so it is with life.

One does not have to travel abroad to behold all the beauties of life, they lie right beneath our feet and above our heads. If we but see all these that are given us to enjoy.

The Social Corner is rightly named. Social Corner reminds one of those cheerful gatherings of all those who go to enjoy a few short hours of companionship together, where every member is there to enjoy the friendliness of each other's society, and where one gets the benefit of many fine recipes, many of them being favorite dishes skillfully prepared for us to enjoy.

The meeting with old friends as well as the pleasure of meeting new friends, made my trip to North Stonington one of the "best ever." May the club entertain more of the other out of town club members, thereby making it a whole "New England Corner," as well, for life is to be fortified by many friendships. To love and to be loved is the greatest happiness of existence.

ABOUT COAL

Dear Social Corner Editor: As so much has been said about coal recently perhaps you might be interested in knowing that a charter granted by Henry III in 1234 for mining near Newcastle is usually regarded as the beginning of the coal age but there is a reason to think that Scotland had really the honor of discovering the utility of coal. Some years before the time of Henry III a group of Haddingtonshire monks found out that their monastery fires could be made to glow much more genially than was usual by the addition of strange black lumps of "stone" unearthed in the neighborhood. It is curious to find that the discovery produced trouble at first. Parliament was invoked to prohibit the use of the new fuel. A law was actually passed against coal fires and severe penalties were imposed upon those who employed them. Coal has been used for other purposes than heating. A piece of coal carried about the person has for centuries been regarded as a charm. Perhaps this belief may be traced back to the vanished superstition, derived from the worship of the sun, that anything connected with fire and emblematic of the solar rays acts as a preservative against evil spirits. In modern times the superstition is said to survive chiefly among the light-fingered gentry. Burglars frequently carry a small lump of coal in their pockets when they go about the thieving business and a place which has seen them through a number of jobs successfully is very highly prized.

As I have taken the pen name of another member of the Corner (Janet) will choose another.

I wish to thank Necia and True Blue of Club No. 2 for their kind letters and samples of edging. Hope to see you May 18th at our next meeting.

Best wishes to all.

ICE CREAM AND HOW TO MAKE IT

Dear Social Corner Members: I want to tell you what an enjoyable day we have had today meeting with Club No. 1. Although there was a gloom that overshadowed us from the vacant chair of one of our members yet it was a very impressive service which we will never forget.

Oh how we did relish the luncheon. I guess we would have been looking for the hall now if Practical Polly had not happened along to our rescue.

This is my recipe for plain ice cream.

Ice Cream: Three eggs, 3 cups sugar, 2 cup heavy cream, 1 1-4 quart milk, 2 teaspoons vanilla.

Beat your eggs and 1 cup sugar into one pint of hot milk stirring constantly until it makes a thin custard or is at a boiling point. Remove from fire add first your cream then your milk and remaining sugar.

This fills a two quart freezer.

Increase in same proportion for a larger freezer, if you have more cream use less eggs in larger quantities.

Here are a few points I have found out.

Add half of your sugar after it gets cold it will seem sweeter.

When making your boiled custard add your cream then your milk when it is hot it will be richer.

Put in about half of the usual quantity of vanilla when making the various flavors except lemon and orange and the desired flavor will be stronger.

Chill your ice in a box with an ice pick it will be finer.

Sprinkle one half your salt on the ice stir it up and then fill your tub alternately with salted ice and a layer of salt.

It will freeze quicker and harder and keep better.

Throw an old newspaper or cloth over the tub while turning it will save the ice.

If you are short for ice jam a newspaper in on top of freezer when you pack it down. I will help keep it.

Try lifting the floats out with a common button hook when you are going to pack it down.

Bore a small hole near bottom of tub to let water run off after it is frozen, being always sure you have a cork in it when ever you want to turn it next time or your cream will be a very long time freezing.

As I have been benefited many times from other sisters I hope these will be of use to some one and not greet the editor's waste basket.

Wishing to thank all who sent me birthday or greeting cards.

My sympathy goes out to the sick and sorrowing ones.

For the success of Social Corner,
AUNTIE BEE.

FINE TIME AT CLUB 5'S MEETING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: May 5th was a beautiful spring day for a social meeting at Buckingham hall; quite a number were there when I arrived. Going up stairs and looking to the right I saw Manager Elva and her efficient aids busily engaged preparing the good food that the sisters would sample in a short time. Systematically they worked to the usual hour, when all was ready for a pleasant surprise. It was called the surprise and birthday social combined. Any sister in the hall whose birthday occurred between January 1st and June 1st was asked to stand in line and soon a number of the sisters were moving along to a table called the birthday table. At this point the usual custom was observed with a song of thanks to God for our many blessings. A bountiful dinner, placed there by the generous hands of our sisters is what makes our meetings a success to the centre of the table was a prettily decorated cake with candles placed thereon and soon they were burning steadily until the cutting of the cake. At the close of the dinner the birthday cake was cut into many pieces; for the family was large. As I received my portion I found the cake deliciously fine—I can almost taste it now. As we withdrew from the table a ringing vote of thanks was sent along the line to Manager Elva. I hear the birthday part of the programme is to be repeated at our next meeting.

A short time after dinner surprise number two was at hand. The sound of stately steps and the stamp of many feet were heard and there appeared before us teacher in a very dignified manner, and the jolly rollicking pupils. A screaming farce was given, not one idle moment from start to finish.

The talent we have, I hope will not be hidden under a bushel but will shine forth from time to time as brightly as it did May 5, when the spelling bee was held. Success to the Corner.

GREETINGS FROM KOCHIE

Dear Social Corner Members: Spring greetings to you all, which seems to be somewhat backward.

Sassy: You must guess again. S is the first letter of my first name and I live in one of the hilltowns called Voluntown and never missed a Corner page since it was started. Now kindly give me an idea of yourself.

One sister a short time ago asked why I haven't attended any of the Social Corner meetings. I certainly would enjoy them very much and am in hopes some time of having the pleasure.

Balsam Fir: Will try and write to you soon. Trust you are well, along with this short letter. I am sending a beautiful pooch which I meant to have had on hand for Mother's day.

Best of wishes to all.

KOCHIE.

FINE TIME AT CLUB NO. 4

Dear Editor and Sisters: Wednesday, a lovely day, Odee, her mother, Frances and myself motored to Willimantic to visit with the sisters of Club No. 1. We had a very nice time and I must say the dinner was delicious and after our long drive we surely did enjoy it.

E. L. M.: Missed you.

Cosmos: Where were you?

Black Eyed Susie: Thought I'd see you there.

Euchre: We had a good chat together. Come if you can arrange it.

Rose Lee, Olga, Hope Cobweb and Phoebe Ann: Had a good time with you and hope to see you all at our club.

Sarah T.: Bring along some of your readings.

Catnip: Do you walk out? Hope you are feeling better.

Trusting to see you all Tuesday I am

LADY 100.

HAVE RETURNED FROM THE COUNTRY

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Tuesday I returned to the Whaling City after spending two weeks with my children and grandchildren in the country. I enjoyed my visit. I could hear the little birds around four in the morning giving their concert. It did me good to listen to them. Being out in the evening one could hear the peeping frogs and whippoorwills. One evening while we were out driving along a country road we saw a pair of pheasants. We stopped our car and watched them. They were not a bit frightened for they walked along over a stone wall down into the bushes. I think they must have had a nest nearby. The male is a very beautiful bird.

One morning we saw four deer strolling along, headed for the woods. Isn't the country a beautiful place to live in? I kept on the go most of the time. I had several auto and buggy rides, Prairie Chicken, and I enjoyed the Social Corner Shore Line club meeting very much. We saw so many we knew and others we hope to get acquainted with in the future. I was sorry I did take a book, but I got a few pennames. I was so surprised to see you, May Bud, but one can never tell who they may meet at our Social Corner meetings.

Rebecca: Did your son tell you what fun I had talking with him about the place and who I thought you were before it was decided to meet at the Grange hall? It was to bad you couldn't have been with us, but you were doing a Christian duty.

Interested Reader: Yes, I got out first and I was soon on my way to the country to see my little grandsons. I was rather anxious to see him for I hadn't since Christmas.

Hope we meet again, Wheeler.

Weus: Weren't you tired when you got to the hop of that hill? Some climb!

No. Prairie Chicken has not recovered her loss. Wasn't it too bad.

Don Pedro: I shall be in to see you some day before I go to Pleasant View. Have you any more of those caps to sell? I know a lady who wants one.

Jean: Was pleased to see you won a dollar. I made a big mistake. Thought another sister was you and called her Jean. How she laughed. You would to if you had been at that Social Corner meeting. You don't know how much you missed. I saw several from your city.

Skipper: Did you get tired pouring coffee? Hope to meet you again.

I hope to see a nice lot of letters from the new sisters in my home town. Ive renewed my subscription today.

Prairie Chicken: Don't work too hard. Hope you raise a lot of turkeys from those 60 eggs. With best wishes to all the Social Corner sisters.

STRANGER IN THE CITY (June 6.)

WAYS TO USE ASPARAGUS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: Every particle of a bunch of asparagus may be utilized. The coarse ends make a delicious cream soup or sauce, while portions of the vegetable left from a previous meal may be converted into endless tasty salads, souffles, etc.—company luncheon or as the main dish for the home supper or "high tea."

Asparagus Loaf: Put through the food chopper sufficient nut meats to fill a small cup; meanwhile, slightly moisten a portion of a stale loaf of bread and with a fork remove the crumbs, mixing the two ingredients together, then add in order mentioned, 1-2 teaspoon salt, a pinch of white pepper, 1 cup of shredded asparagus tips, 2 tablespoons of melted butter and sufficient cream to moisten. Form into a compact oval loaf and after laying in a buttered, baking dish, bake for 30 minutes in a moderate oven, occasionally basting with warm water. Serve hot, accompanied by a cream sauce; or cold, sliced and garnished with mayonnaise and sprigs of feathery parsley.

Asparagus Rarebit: Slightly toast and butter thin rounds of whole-wheat bread, covering each with a thin layer of cooked asparagus, cut in minute pieces; sprinkle with salt, paprika, a few drops of Worcester sauce and a liberal coating of American cheese, cook in a hot oven sufficiently long to melt the cheese, but not brown it. Serve immediately on "Welsh rarebit" plates with a poached egg arranged on the top of each portion.

Asparagus Soup: Place in a kettle the tough ends (chopped) from two bunches of asparagus, adding a sprig of parsley, bit of celery root and 2 small white onions. Barely cover the vegetable with water, simmer slowly until very tender, then rub through a sieve, mashing and rubbing through all but the fibre. Now return the pulp to the fire, seasoning highly with salt, white pepper and celery salt and gradually add a pint of cream together with a heaping tablespoon of butter and a scant tablespoon of flour dissolved in a little cold milk. Cook until well thickened (be sure it boils) and serve on a hot tureen, adding a few asparagus tips and a little minced parsley.

DENIM RUG

Dear Social Corner Members: I have taken The Bulletin a great many years and always received so much benefit from it, especially the Social Corner.

This time of the year being house cleaning time, so many want rugs who can't afford anything very expensive perhaps a few suggestions on making a cheap, yet very pretty rug, would be helpful.

I got nine yards of blue denim, divided it in three-yard lengths, sewed them together with an ordinary seam, then press the seams apart, baste a 2 1-2 inch hem all around the rug (don't turn the ragged edge of the hem in on the under side, as it will lay smoother,) get a pretty cretonne and cut it in six-inch strips turn the raw edge under 1-3 inch and baste on the top side inches from the edge of the rug and stitch on the machine; the one stitching on the outer edge of the cretonne will stitch both the cretonne on and hem it at the same time. These make lovely bedroom rugs, especially if your walls are tinted. Get your cretonne to match. You would also be surprised to know how lovely they go with a reed set in a reception hall, with the cretonne lining in the reed lamp shade to match the cretonne on the rug. I made mine four years ago; it only cost me $3.50. This spring I ripped the cretonne border off and took the two rugs and made a tent for the children to play in. I took an old automobile curtain, took the lamp glass out and put a window in it so it would have plenty of light, and oh! the fun the children do have in their tent.

The tent is plenty good enough to take out camping for emergency use.

HAD PLEASANT BIRTHDAY

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I suppose the most of you are done house cleaning and have the most of your summer sewing done so you can enjoy the good old summer time if it doesn't forget to come to us. It's very cool here and we had heavy frosts last week and coughs and colds hang on. But soon now the warm days will come and we shall all feel better. I am better but don't recover from my sickness in March as I wish I did.

I wish to thank each of you who remembered me [illegible]

Tested by Time
"SALADA" TEA
Has Stood the Test of Time

owing to friends like you, who helped to make it so.

The grass is looking lovely and green The trees are leafing out but as yet there are no bouquets. Someone spaded up my flower beds ready for my house plants. They are not many in number, but I can sit at my window and see and enjoy them.

This is the day for No. 1 to hold its monthly meeting and so I thought I would write and let you know I am thinking of you and of what a good time you are having. I suppose you will begin to have out door picnics soon. I wish you all a happy summer and trust you will nearly all be able to enjoy the picnics.

I hope the sick ones are better, broken bones healing, etc. I think of you all and I also stretch out my hand to the older ones I say "write."

Aunty 1. Theoda and many others. Where are you?

Best wishes,

DIANA.

USES FOR SALT

Dear Social Corner: I noticed Eclipse's letter but as I had begun writing on the uses of salt also thought I would send it along.

Salt water if used regularly several times a day, will wonderfully strengthen the muscles of the eyes. It acts as a tonic upon every part of the underlid and the cornea, and penetrates deep even into the recesses of the tear gland. Upon eyelids prone to granulation or to styes the action of warmed salted water is most marked and almost immediate.

I always like when advocating the merits of a thing to state reasons for actions. I have tried personally the salt cure on eye weakened by long use that could not bear the light, yet had an excellent sight so far as the power of vision went, if only the weakened muscles would allow the iris to have full play. The salt bath was tried first with a sponge, later with the eyes held open in a basin of salted water, and the result was restored tone to every feeble muscle.

Salt is a combination of chlorine of sodium. Chlorine is one of the most powerful gasses known. It can destroy anything brought near its influence. Mixed with lime it is the noted disinfectant named "chloride of lime," used wherever fevers and dangerous ferments are. Mingled with sodium it becomes chloride of sodium, our valuable, most useful and indispensable table salt. It will cure obstinate catarrh and of course catarrhs are a frequent cause for eye weakness. Salt by exerting a cooling influence takes away fever. The ferments in the congested vessels are attacked by the powerful chloride and destroyed.

Salt on a mosquito bite is a wonderful help to take out the poison.

The sufferer from an impure breath will find that by taking a teaspoon of common salt in a wine glass of pure water the first thing every morning the breath will be much improved, and the mouth can be well rinsed with this mixture. The teeth should be brushed night and morning with tooth powder and you will find rinsing the mouth with salt and water also is quite a curative.

I have seen hemorrhages of the lungs promptly stopped by using salt (small doses.) Two teaspoons of salt in a pint of water is a good emetic.

And for helps in cooking there isn't anything that takes its place. For poaching an egg, place 1 teaspoon of salt in 1 1-2 cups of water, let the water come to a boil add the salt, break the egg in a cup, slide it into the water and cover. You'll have a perfectly cooked egg; it is certainly pretty.

Add 1-2 of a teaspoon of salt to one egg white when beating; it will make it froth quicker.

With salt added to cream, a tiny pinch to a cup of cream, it is a marvel how quickly it will turn.

Before broiling steak—sprinkle salt evenly over the coals, just before broiling steak.

When you wish to boil (fresh) fish and want an excellent flavor—place fish in salted water about 1-4 cup of salt to 2 quarts of water, let stand four hours, then boil in the salted water.

Salt on grapefruit, also in rhubarb eliminates the acid; it doesn't take but a few grains to do it.

Soak honeycomb tripe in salted water.

For canning, 1 teaspoon to quart jars of vegetables and 1-2 teaspoon to pint jars.

To clean sponges that have become sour, rub a fresh lemon over it then stand about 2 hours, rinse well several times in salted lukewarm water and it will become as sweet as new.

If your broom becomes limp dip it in salted water and the broom corn is stiffened again like new.

Salt will make handsome roses also beads, but keep them where it is cool.

Salt brightens the carpets.

Soaking prints in salted water helps to retain their color; also in dyeing goods put salt in the last three rinse waters.

Coarse fine salt is good to keep your walks free from ice. I always use it every winter and in the summer use it for ice cream. About 1-2 cup salt to 2 quarts of ice (chopped.)

OLD SONGS APPRECIATED

Dear Editor and Sisters: I have been about laid up for the last week with a cold but have been doctoring it so as to be able to attend the next meeting of the Shore Line Social Corner club No. 6 which will be held May 18 in Veterans' hall over the Atlantic and Pacific store, West Broad street, Westerly, R. I. We hope to see a good delegation of sisters from all the clubs. I want to thank all of the sisters who sent in the old songs I requested, especially The Widow in the Cottage by the Sea. That was a favorite song of my brother. He used to sing it coming home from work at night and as his path lay through a wooded section, as my father lived on a farm, he certainly waked the echoes. That was a number of years ago and I had forgotten to give the name of the song correctly. I want to thank Aries for the one she sent me in a Cottage by the Sea. I used to have a book of the old time songs but I loaned it and never saw it afterwards. Last night I heard from Station WJZ, New York city several old time songs my father used to sing which awoke the memories of my childhood. I will [illegible]

WHERE ARE THE OLD WRITERS?

Dear Social Corner Members: Last Sunday was Mothers' day and let us hope that all observed it with great respect for mother the best friend man ever had. There can never be enough said in praise for Mother. It has been many years since we lost the truest friend on earth, our Mother. There is hardly a day passes we do not think of her and the willing hands which did so much for us. Mother is the life of the family and the life of the world.

Black Eyed Susie: Your letter of some of the kind deeds of Mother was fine. Many more could be added and they would not be half of the love of mother for us all. Mother comes first, last and all the time. The last words of the dying soldier on the battlefield was a message to his dear mother at home.

Spring is coming slowly along and new life seems to be near at hand for all the pictures of summer again, and people seem to be happy when the man of the house brings in a good string of trout for breakfast and a fine lot of cowslips for dinner. Housecleaning is now in order and things seem to be some what mixed up but we must just hoe our temper up but only comes once a year.

Crimson Rambler: I am glad you were pleased with the poetry. You know it is not well for man to live alone.

Balsam Fir: Thanks for the card received; it was quite a help for a man learning to cook.

I am glad to see the Corner page well filled up, but where, oh where, have the old writers gone? Hope this will find the Corner members all enjoying life every day and of all days never forget Mother's day. With best wishes to all from RURAL DELIVERY.

MORE OLD PANS

Dear Social Corner Members: What a nice day we had for our meeting the 6th! Such a nice dinner too. Wish the sister who brought the pie with raisins at the bottom and some kind of thickening on top would send us the recipe. It had two crusts. I wish to thank the editor for the yellow slip that slipped into my mail box. It was a very pleasant surprise.

O. D.: Pleased to meet you and all the others from your way. Will you send me your address?

Red Rose: So you think old pans is a good subject to write about. I have four that were purchased at Harstow's, April 1870, been in constant use and have never leaked. When it comes to old things, my home is full of them including myself.

Everything out door looks beautiful now with so many shades of green on the trees and the red maple blossoms look pretty. Hope the sick ones are on the gain and that we shall have a whole page of letters each week.

Best wishes from

JOAN.

PLANNING FOR A LARGE CROWD

Dear Social Corner Members: What a nice day Club No. 1 is having for their meeting. I think some from Club No. 6 were planning to go.

Melissa, whose birthday was May 10, had a party that day so I attended that. I have not missed her birthday party for at least ten years; it is always an enjoyable affair.

Club No. 6 will hold its May meeting Tuesday the 18 at Westerly in Veterans' hall over the Atlantic and Pacific store on West Broad street. There is plenty of room and it is very central and easy for those coming by bus or trolley to reach. O. D. and Frances the hostesses are planning and hoping for a large crowd. So come all who can and bring some one with you who would like to join the Corner. Every one remember to bring knife, spoon, cup and plate and some kind of food. Hope the North Stonington sister will come out in full force.

E. L. M. (Shore Line Club No. 6.)

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Social Corner Editor: I have attended a few of the Social Corner meetings and enjoy them very much I am not a member but would like to be enrolled as one, as I am looking forward to the June meeting. If not too late would be pleased with a pin If no one has it, will take for pen name.

PIPPIN.

MILA JOINS CORNER

Dear Social Corner Editor: After being an interested reader of the Social Corner letters for the past few months I have decided to join the Corner and Shore Line club, No. 6.

May I have for my pen name.

PLEASED WITH REMEMBRANCES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I want to thank all of you who remembered me on my birthday. I think it very nice of you when I have been a member so short a time. Am in hopes to know you better. I plan to be with you at the next meeting. Hope E. L. M. will bring some beans.

FOR THE BRIDE TO BE

Dear Cornerites: For the little bride-to-be, a wreath of eyelets is easy to make, and, with a spray of woodbine worked in a satin stitch makes a handsome corner for a hemstitched or a colored handkerchief to match a quilt. Other pretty designs are a wreath of forget-me-nots worked solid (all in white.) This, too, can be worked in eyelets and a basket developed in basket stitch containing flowers worked in French knots, with dear little satin stitch leaves.

The bride's supply of linen is not complete without at least six guest towels. A design of cut work bars, intersected with clusters of roses worked in white, is a rich decoration. The roses should be worked solid; the centers may be eyelets, French knots, or solid embroidery. The cut out bars are made first by button holing an oblong space; next at regular intervals, weaving tiny connecting bars which lie on the surface of the towel and are only attached at each end, then cutting away the material beneath them and within the buttonholed oblong. The bars are made by taking two long stitches across the space between the button holed edges and then weaving around them. I start at one end, going over one thread, under [illegible]

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Just 50 years ago this week Charles Menck was elected captain of the Norwich silber Garde, the choice for the first lieutenant being Fred Klein. The Dime Savings bank also held its annual meeting the same week and elected E. R. Thompson president of the year 1876-1877. George D. Colt was elected secretary and treasurer and W. C. Abbott was named assistant treasurer. Interesting items taken from the files of the The Norwich Bulletin of May, 1876, are as follows:

Monday, May 8, 1876—A very handsome safe was put into the postoffice yesterday. It is one of Marvin and company's fire and burglar proof and very finely finished. It measures six feet seven inches by four feet seven inches. It has single doors opening in the middle with a combination lock and is artfully painted on each panel. It is arranged inside with drawers for loose stamps and money and room for stamped envelopes. Hitherto these latter have merely been locked up in the office. Postmaster Bidwell realizing the necessity of such a safe, succeeded in obtaining the consent of the postmaster general to have this one built. Its cost was about $900.

The result of the admirable system inaugurated by the present street committee, of oblidging the tramps lodging at the expense of the town to make some return therefore in the way of work, has been to greatly reduce the number applying for shelter here. Twenty-two men were taken from the lodgers' room the first time. The next night only ten applied for lodging.

The Norwich Silber Garde elected at their annual meeting for 1876 the following officers:

Captain, Charles Menck. 1st lieut., Fred Klein; 2d. lieut., G. Geisthardt; secretary, D. L. Brambach; treasurer, Andrew Engler; quartermaster, Henry Seidel; 1st sergt., William Noss, 2d. sergt., V. Konsalik.

Tuesday, May 9, 1876—The new glee club at Poquetanuck has disbanded. At the first place they stopped they sang one verse of a beautiful sentimental ballad and then a man came out with a shot gun and wanted to know if he owed anyone in the party anything or had ever injured any of them. The members explained afterward that the club was a perfect success, but that they weren't able to be out nights much, and in fact, personally, they never cared for music anyway.

The adjourned meeting of the common council was called to order last evening at 8 o'clock, Mayor Osgood presiding. A hearing was had of those interested in regard to the grading of the sidewalk on Broadway from Broad street to Williams avenue, and to the curbing of the west side of Broadway to be done at public expense was laid over to the next meeting. Appropriations were made as follows:

Blake Crusher Co., $73.15; Falls Co., $56.40; George S. Smith of Sedgwick Post, for the Grand Army decoration, $100.

The county commissioners met yesterday and granted a license to Edward Neilan of New London and appointed A. E. Gay, M. D., physician at the Norwich jail and D. P. Frances, M. D., physician at the New London jail.

Wednesday, May 10, 1876—There were three boats loaded with porgies at the wharf yesterday and the competition was such that the fish were sold at the rate of 10 for a quarter. They are taken mainly around Noyes' rocks, east of Watch Hill. Last Sunday one gang caught 170 barrels full, which were sent to New York and retailed at 14 cents a pound.

Buffalo Bill and Texas Jack, who are real western scouts and hunters, will give a play called Life on the Border in Breed hall, next Monday night, supported by a cast of 17 persons. The play is of the most sensational order and will introduce feats of strength and skill with the lasso and firearms.

The house of Miss Gilman at Norwich Town was entered Monday night by burglars. A gold watch and chain were taken.

In the city court yesterday Robert Schocks, for driving over Laurel Hill bridge at a gait faster than a walk, was fined $3 and costs. He appealed to the superior court, giving bonds in the sum of $150.

Thursday, May 11, 1876—At the annual meeting of the Dime Savings bank held yesterday the following additional trustees were elected: James Greenwood, John Willard and A. W. Gibbs. The officers for the ensuing year are president, E. R. Thompson; vice presidents, A. C. Hall, H. H. Osgood and W. R. Austin; directors, Horace Whitaker, James Burnet, William C. Osgood, G. A. Jones, C. T. Palmer, F. J. Leavens, W. R. Burnham, C. D. Browning and John Willard; secretary and treasurer, George D. Colt; assistant treasurer, W. G. Abbott; attorney, Allen Tenney.

A new organ grinder was in town yesterday. He pretended to be an Italian, but as he lighted his matches on the rear part of his trousers and required a radius of some 12 feet to spit comfortably, he was generally believed to be the president of a western college trying to earn a little money during vacation.

The number of tramps applying for lodgings has greatly fallen off since the new system was put into effect. Yesterday for the first time since it was begun no one was put to work, there being only three lodgers at the police station. Last night only one applied for lodging.

Friday, May 12, 1876—About 100 fine shad were taken in the Thames yesterday. Among the 60 received at Nushnell's market was a stripped bass weighing about six pounds, which was also caught in the river along with a number of smaller ones.

The street commissioner began yesterday to macadamize the small strip of ground between Williams street and Lincoln avenue on Washington street, which was left unfinished last year.

Walking matches are now the popular amusement among the ladies uptown. A gentleman acts as judge and somehow or other the prettiest girl always wins.

Saturday, May 13, 1876—The 26th and 21st regiments, C. V., meet in annual reunion at Mystic river text Tuesday. All regiments and friends of the two regiments are cordially invited to be present.

The members who have been added to the Central Baptist church since the first of January, about 60 in number, called on the pastor, the Rev. John Davies, last evening. The latter made a very appropriate address and a very pleasant evening was passed.

The adjourned town meeting to consider the building of an almshouse and to act in the matter of certain roads and bridges will take place Monday afternoon.

I wanted to add, an attractive towel end combines punched-work motifs with a border of dragon flies. The body of the fly may be worked solid, the wings outlined or done in long and short stitch.

GEO. CHAPMAN, HELD AT NEW LONDON, FUGITIVE FROM JERSEY JUSTICE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 14—George Chapman, a former coast guard sailor is held in jail here unable to secure a bond of $1,000, charged with being a fugitive from justice in New Jersey, where he admits he committed robbery. Chapman was honorably discharged from the coast guard, but he had not picked up his belongings and gotten out. He was confined and there a letter was found on his person which he had written to a pal in Jersey and which conveyed the information that he expected to do a job here before he left that would net him some $500. When he was taken into custody it was not known that he was a fugitive from New Jersey, but he supposed that he was detained for that robbery and he "squealed" up and admitted that he did the robbery. Sergeants Smith and Cavanaugh, detectives of the New London force, led him about and he told all. Now the Jersey police department has been made aware of the facts and to await such action Chapman is held. He is also accused of having obtained a watch from a store in this city without having paid for it and he secured a suit of clothes from an installment house for which he did not pay. Chapman seems to be in for a prison term because of his endeavors to get money or its equivalent without work for them.

Louis Johnson, a chief machinist's mate in the coast guard service of the government and George Burke, a civilian, will be in the police court tomorrow morning, to relate what happened in a midnight fight in the street Wednesday. Thomas Murphy cannot be found, or he would be there also. Johnson accuses the civilians of having attacked him without cause while Burke declares that he acted in self-defense in the row. The civilians were arrested on complaint of Johnson, but when they were given a hearing yesterday Johnson was not on hand to relate why he complained. His arrest was ordered and now he is accused of having taken part in the fight. Johnson said today that he was talking with two or three fellows with whom he was acquainted when he was attacked. He said he was knocked down and rendered unconscious. His companion saw one of the pair arrested (supposedly Murphy) pulling at his necktie. Officer William Riordan was called and arrested Burke at The Coffee Pot, a restaurant that was kept things boiling a great deal of late. Murphy was not found at his home and was taken into custody. He put up a bond of $50 to appear to answer, but he chose to give up the money rather than appear. The shipmate of Johnson was connected with the case for the first time today, so to get him the case went over till morning.

Zachary Kora was passing along Main street Thursday evening when he happened to brush against a sailor, William Beylot. Beylot took offense and delivered a vicious blow at Kora that landed. Then a fight was on. Both men were arrested. There seemed to be little more than a misunderstanding about the fight, so judgment was suspended on both.

A group of drunks was disciplined by the court. Newton Lanphere, John Billings and Patrick McNeill were sent to jail because they could not pay fines of $5 each. John Daly went along to jail for the same reason.

John Oddun was presented in court on complaint of his wife for striking her Oddun set up that he objects to a female companion with whom his wife associates and he lost his temper and hit his wife. The case appears to be one that can be settled without a prosecution and to bring about that result it was continued a month. Billings said he had been employed in Preston and came here after his clothing. But Policeman Dorsey represented that Billings was very drunk and was near the police station when apprehended.

The funeral of Michael Donovan, of Taftsville, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. John's church, Montville and was attended by many mourners. A high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. James A. O'Meara. The bearers were John Doyle, Thomas Denton, Charles Carber, Thomas Doyle, Timothy Shea, and Thomas Quinn. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, this city.

The funeral of Miss Mary Elizabeth Bielgy was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, a mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. Michael Reagan. The bearers were Jerome J. Collins, Peter F. Dyer, John F. Murray and John J. Kelley. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Funeral services for Sarah J., widow of Erastus Gilbert, formerly of Ledyard, was held this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock at 43 Shapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. Horatio J. Chase, pastor of Montauk avenue Baptist church. Burial was in Spencer cemetery, Ledyard.

The funeral of James C. Smith, of Waterford, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 45 Shapley street and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The services were conducted by Bay View lodge of Masons, of Niantic, of which order Mr. Smith had been a member many years. Members of the order acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

DUNNED FOR PRICE OF SUIT, SAILOR PEEVED AT WOMAN

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 14.—Albert Dudley, ex-soldier, at one time stationed at Fort Wright, and recently employed at the plant of the Robert Gair Co., Montville, and Mrs. Lucille Denners, wife of a sailor stationed at Brooklyn navy yard, and employed as housekeeper at the rooming house, 97 Bank street, were arrested this evening charged with breach of the peace. Dudley and the woman engaged in a row on State street. The woman was released when her employer furnished a cash bond of $50, but Dudley was held as he could not procure a bondsman. Both will be in the police court tomorrow morning.

The couple were observed by Sergeant Frank Howard engaged in a heated conversation near North Bank street. Finally the woman took hold of Dudley's coat and when she did, Dudley gave her a vigorous push, causing the woman to fall backward in a heap on the sidewalk. Both were then taken into custody. At the police station Dudley stated that he did not desire to talk with the woman and when she seized his coat he pushed her from him. The woman admitted that part of the incident and much more for she stated that she kept company with Dudley the greater part of three years and that it was probably upon her statement that she intended to return to her husband that Dudley did not desire to speak with her. The woman declared that she engaged in conversation with Dudley for the purpose of endeavoring to collect from him the price of a suit of clothes, which Dudley was wearing and which, Charles A. Pinney, charged with oper-

Mrs. Caroline Strickland Colgrove, 74, wife of George D. Colgrove, and a former resident of New London, died at her home, Brooklyn, N. Y., last night after an illness of a year. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Henry H. Callen, of Brooklyn, and a sister, Mrs. Martin Cullen, of this city. Mrs. Minnie Bergen, of this city, is a niece. Rifle Barrell Photography

The bureau of standards of the department of commerce is now able to photograph the entire interior of a rifle barrel, according to George K. Burgess, director. A camera has been developed at the bureau which permits the bore of a rifle to be pictured without mutilation of the barrel. In examining the inside of a rifle barrel in the past, it has been necessary to split it lengthwise. "A long periscope is inserted in the bore," Burgess said in describing the new device. "and a small incandescent light at the end of the periscope provides the illumination. The image of a small portion of the bore is brought out by the periscope and received on a motion picture film. The barrel is automatically moved so that different portions of the bore are photographed in succession. Six pictures show the entire interior surface of the bore."

Palace Theater

Harold Lloyd, that excellent and bespectacled comedian, who is coming to the Palace next Sunday in his latest mirth-provoker, For Heaven's Sake! is of the firm opinion that laughter is an aid to longevity. Hearken to Harold's elucidation of his theory:

"Laughter is a complex phenomenon, the cause and nature of which have been studied for centuries. That which makes us laugh at a joke or a witty remark or at some sight is hard to analyze. Even highly intellectual people, when asked on the spur of the moment what is particularly funny in a joke or a situation at which they laugh heartily, are unable to put their finger on the special point that awakens in them merriment and laughter.

"In comedy and laughter there is a letting go of the realities of life: there is present a relaxation from the persistent concentration on the problems life constantly sets before us: there is relief from the seriousness of our daily toil.

"We take liberties with stern realities, play with them and laugh with them. Laughter arises from a sense of freedom from mental activities.

"This relaxation and freedom is as necessary to our longevity as food and exercise. Therefore, every human being should earnestly seek such entertainment as will give him the complete rest and relaxation that only laughter brings.

"All the various manifestations of the comic, the witty and the ridiculous belong to that particular emotional side of our being which we class as joy; whatever is joyful awakens laughter in us. Hence, a funny stage play or a good screen comedy is one of mankind's greatest boons."

"For Heaven's Sake!" gives Harold a fine opportunity to demonstrate the truth of his theory. It is guaranteed to make you live longer and happier. See it for your healths sake!

Broadway Theater

This Sunday coming the Broadway management is offering two exceptional features on one program for the usual price of 25c for any seat.

The ingenuity of detective and mystery story writers has become so common that it is almost tedious. Yet when one turns the pages, one can scarcely find a more clever writer for twists of plot and novel clews than Richard Harding Davis, whose prolific pen has enriched the world of fiction by scores of absorbing volumes.

Not the least of these is White Mice, a novel he wrote at the prime of his career, and which has enjoyed as large if not larger, circulation than many of his other works.

Because of its plentiful action, colorful locale, and vivid characters, White Mice lent itself especially well to screening and the film production. White Mice is being released by Associated Exhibitors, at the Broadway theater here as the first feature for Sunday nights only.

The picture was filmed in Cuba, with many of the scenes taken at Havana, with views in and around the Prado and Morro Castle. Jacqueline Logan, famed for her darkeyed beauty, was cast as the Spanish heroine, with William Powell in the role of her young American rescuer.

If you are looking for something a "little different" in dog stories, the Broadway theater promises that in The Courage of Wolfheart, starring Wolfheart, the wonder dog, the search comes to an end. It is a thrilling, gripping, likable presentation of the uncanny intelligence that belongs to Wolfheart. It will be the second attraction at this theater Sunday night only.

In addition patrons will also find interest in the comedy and News also showing.

Breed Theater

Monte Carlo, which comes to the Breed theater Sunday, is one of the sensational comedy hits of the year. It is a Carey Wilson story, and like all Carey Wilson tales it runs swiftly, is told skillfully and glows with flashes of unexpected wit and hilarious comedy. Carey Wilson wrote His Secretary, starring Norma Shearer, and Ramon Navarro's equally successful starring vehicle, The Midshipman. Both of these pictures, remember, have played to enormous grosses. Carey Wilson knows what the public likes and never turns out a story the public doesn't like. He knows his business.

In Monte Carlo he has achieved the climax of his career as a successful writer for the screen. Monte Carlo is a scream. It is packed with laughs from beginning to end. It never stops laughing.

Bible Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A.

At 4 o'clock at the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday very interesting moving pictures on the story of David will be shown, under the title "The Chosen Prince".

Probably no character in Biblical history is more interesting than is that of David. He seems to have possessed those qualities that eminently fitted him for the important place that he filled in his day and time, and if ever a man was "God chosen" David was that man. The pictures on this occasion will portray the early life of the man who afterward played an important part in the interesting history of his nation. To have pictures on the screen the story of such a life is indeed a real inspiration, and doubtless many will take advantage of the opportunity. This Bible feature will be shown in sections through the next four Sundays. Both men and women are invited and boys and girls over fourteen are welcome.

Girls' Glee Club Concert

All local lovers of music will be interested to know that Miss Annie March is one of the soloists of the Girls' Glee club, whose annual concert comes Wednesday evening, May 19th. Miss March, a pupil of Benjamin Knox of Hartford, has a beautiful lyric soprano voice, and sings most charmingly. Many will recall her pleasing voice broadcasted several times this spring from station W. T. I. C.

Miss Charlotte Brooks is also a soloist of the evening. Her voice, soprano, is rich, soft and melodious. It is worthy of note that Miss Brooks is a descendant of the great Sebastian Bach. All are eagerly awaiting the Glee club's annual recital.

For the annual meeting of the Norwich branch of the American Association of University Women and the Norwich College club at 3 o'clock next Monday afternoon at the golf club the speaker will be Miss Hester Crutcher secretary of the state board of mental hygiene. STOCK PRICES FLUCTUATED

NEW YORK, May 14—(AP)—Disregarding the declaration of an extra cash dividend of $4 on General Motors common stock, the stock market today continued to fluctuate irregularly within a narrow trading area. Prices generally closed lower on the day with total sales barely exceeding 850,000 shares.

The day's business news was largely constructive. It included the announcement of special dividend distributions by the Standard Gas & Electric, and Buffalo, Niagara and Eastern power companies, and the annual report to the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey showing consolidated earnings of over $111,000,000, exceeded only once before in the company's history in 1920.

The weekly mercantile reviews report that business is running about on a level with that of a year ago. Some curtailment is noted in the steel and textile trades, with a reduction in output also reported from some of the automobile and furniture manufacturing centers. Bank clearings this week were about 3 1-2 per cent. above those of the corresponding week last year.

Outside the stock market, chief financial interest centered in the weakness of the French and Italian currencies. The commodity markets were mixed with wheat futures dropping 1 to 2 cents a bushel and cotton relaxing slightly on reports of rain in Texas. Raw sugar eased 1-8 of a cent a pound but coffee prices were firmer.

General Motors opened a point higher at 126 1-2 but when no effort was made to follow up the advance. Large offerings appeared and the stock sold down to 14 1-2 and then back to 125 5-8, up 1-2 net. Hudson got down to within a fraction of the year's low at 61 3-4; and then rallied slightly. Chandler-Cleveland common and preferred, Dodge Brothers A, Jordan, Moon, Paige-Detroit, Fisher Body, American Bosch Magneto and the Stewart-Warner issues touched new levels for the year.

One of the most interesting developments of the session was a flurry of buying in the oil shares under the leadership of Atlantic Refining, Marland and Pan-American B, which closed 1 1-2 to 5 points higher. Buying of these issues was based on reports of large current earnings and record-breaking gasoline consumption.

Other stocks for which there was a good demand included Durham Hosiery, Philadelphia Co., Sloss-Sheffield Steel and U. S. Distributing, on the other hand, marked heaviness was apparent in American Sugar Refining, General Electric, Gulf States and Republic Steels and Westinghouse Air Brake.

Heavy calling of loans by banks, presumably in connection with the increased demand for funds for May 15 payments, sent the call money rate up from 3 3-4 to 4 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Extreme weakness of French francs, which broke 8 points to a new low record figure at 3.94 1-2 cents, and Italian lire, which broke 64 points to 3.36 cents, the lowest since last June when the extreme low of 3.33 3-4 cents was established, featured the extreme low of 3.32 3-4 cents was established, featured the reactionary foreign exchange market. Demand sterling ruled about 1-8 of a cent lower around $4.85 3-4, and moderate recessions took place in practically all other European rates.

GREENEVILLE

The World Wide Guild of the Third Baptist church, met at the home of Miss Doris M. Lund of 230 Prospect street Friday evening. The meeting opened with devotional exercises, led by the president, Mrs. Henry Sebastian after which a very impressive initiation ceremony took place when three new members joined the guild. Officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Henry Sebastian; vice president, Miss Miner; secretary, Miss Doris M. Lund; treasurer, Miss Jennie Sebastian; chairman of membership committees, Miss Minnie Quinley. Plans were discussed for the annual strawberry social and lawn party to be held in June and other matters of business were taken up. The president reported the sum of $100 raised and sent to headquarters during the past year, which with the largest amount sent in by any W. W. G. in New London association and in proportion to membership was also the largest in the state. Light refreshments were served by Miss Lund and the guild members were invited to Miss Miner's for the next meeting.

The Community Workers of Greeneville held a special meeting a short time ago and made and filled May baskets, which were sent to the sick and shut-in friends of the members. Over 30 baskets were filled with fruit, candy, cookies, etc., and jelly and jam contributed by the members and were taken to the homes by the Community Workers, who have carried out this program for their May meeting for a number of years past, to help and gladden the hearts of those who were sick and aged. The many cards of thanks received bear testimony to their appreciation of the May baskets received. The June meeting is to be held with Mrs. John McNeely of Boswell avenue and will be in the form of a picnic.

TAFTVILLE

One of the prettiest May weddings took place Monday morning at 9 o'clock, at a nuptial high mass at Sacred Heart church, when Miss Florida Savageau of South C street, became the bride of Leon Ducharme of Providence street, the ceremony being performed by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of the church, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

As the bridal party entered the church the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin was played by the organist, Miss Alice Frechette. The bride was met at the sanctuary rail by Miss Aldea Ducharme, sister of the groom, and Miss Viola Michon, an intimate friend, both members of the Sodality of the Children of Mary who led her to the side altar of the Blessed Virgin Mary where the act of consecration was read, signifying her departure from the Sodality.

The bride was charmingly gowned in white canton crepe. Her bridal veil of tulle was caught up with lilies-of-the-valley, and she carried a bouque of white roses, with a shower of lilies-of-the-valley. The bridesmaid was Miss Regina Savageau, sister of the bride, who wore green satin with hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The best man was Alexander Labarre, a close friend of the groom.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Herd of South C Street. A wedding breakfast was served in the dining room, where the color scheme was pink and white.

The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond ring, and to his best man he presented gold cufflinks. The bride gave the groom gold cufflinks and to her maid of honor, she gave a pearl rosary. During the afternoon the young couple left for a wedding trip which will include New Bedford, Fall River, and Providence, and upon their return will reside in a newly furnished home on South C street. The bride's traveling suit was of light blue with hat to match.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philas Ducharme of Providence street, and holds a position in the No. 1 Carding department of Ponemah mills. His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Herd of South C street and has always been a resident of the village.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Ducharme are well known, and have a wide circle of friends who wish them much happiness in their new life.

Funeral services for Joseph Pora, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Pora were held at 8:30 Friday morning from the home of his parents, 19 Norwich avenue followed by a requiem high mass at Sacred Heart church, celebrated by Rev. John Malley. There was a large attendance at the service and there were many beautiful flowers. Classmates of the boy acted as bearers. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery on the Old Canterbury turnpike, where Rev. Father Malley read the committal service. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

John Meger of Providence street has accepted a position with the Sea Sled company of Mystic.

Miss Helen C. Aberg of Willimantic is spending the weekend at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Axel L. Aberg of North Third Avenue.

NOTICE!

I wish to inform my Norwich friends that I have severed my connections with the Wauregan Barber shop and on or about May 19th, will open a shop of my own at 18 Broadway where I will be pleased to welcome my former patrons.

MUCH MEDICAL TALENT AT COMPENSATION HEARING

A compensation hearing that called forth an unusual array of medical talent, in fact one that was regarded as having brought out the greatest galaxy of such authorities before any hearing ever held in the state, was that in the First National bank's directors' room at Middletown on Friday before Compensation Commissioner J. J. Donohue, M. D., of this city.

The hearing concerned the application for compensation by the mother of Miss Wilder, who was for years librarian at the Russell library at Middletown. It was claimed that she worked incessantly there, late and early, engaged in all activities and greatly increased the circulation and was active in the building up of the institution. While so engaged she suffered a nervous and physical breakdown and went for treatment to Dr. Hallock's sanatorium, the Hartford retreat and Middletown state hospital, where she committed suicide.

Counsel for the widowed mother, Attorney Wells of Hartford, claims that the arduous duties were instrumental in producing the physical and mental breakdown resulting in her death.

The library is insured through the Travelers Insurance company, which through Attorneys Maxwell and Nagle, disputes the claim that her death can be said to have resulted from her employment.

The medical talent in the case included ten doctors, psychiatrists or specialists in mental or nervous diseases, probably the greatest gathering of such both as to number and ability at any such hearing in the state.

There were present Dr. Craig of Middletown, Dr. Compson, Dr. Holley, Superintendent Lee, M. D., Assistant Superintendent Waterman, M. D. of the Connecticut State hospital; Dr. Whitefield Thompson, superintendent of the Hartford retreat; Dr. Lloyd Thompson of New Haven Medical school, Dr. Diefendorf, psychiatrist of New Haven; Dr. Max Malthouse, emeritus professor of nervous diseases at Yale medical school and Dr. Hallock, superintendent of Cromwell hall, an institution for mental diseases, all men of the highest standing in psychiatric work. Mrs. E. Kent Hubbard one of the directors of the library assisted in presenting Mrs. Wilder's claim.

The case was strongly contested and it is probable that the decision which was reserved will be appealed whichever way it may be decided. Briefs are to be submitted.

SETTING UP STOVE CAUSED FIRE ALARM

An alarm from box 14, Thames square, at 6.40 o'clock Friday morning, called out the fire department for a supposed fire at No. 18 Thames street. Peter Ballaro, who moved into the house Thursday, had just completed setting up his kitchen stove and started a fire there. Then, from the yard, he saw smoke coming from the eaves. The bell alarm followed.

As it happened there was no fire. Ballaro, in setting up the stove had used too much force and knocked the pipe out of the hole in the chimney. The pipe goes through a ventilator thimble in the ceiling, connecting with an elbow leading to the chimney. The attic had filled with smoke and the smoke found its way out through the eaves, giving the impression that the house was on fire.

GAVE INTERESTING TALK ON MISSIONS IN EGYPT

The regular meeting of the missions department of Park Congregational church was held Friday afternoon. The text "To whom much is given, of him much will be required" was the subject of a short talk by the chairman, Miss Edith Bliss, that gave the spiritual keynote to the subject of the afternoon.

Mrs. Samuel Smiley gave a report of the meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Branch at Mystic.

The main speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. J. Beveridge Lee of New London who gave a spirited and delightful talk on Missions in Egypt, that was illuminated by personal knowledge gained from several visits paid at the home of her relatives Dr. and Mrs. Harvey in Cairo, by whom the work of the United Presbyterians is so wonderfully administered. The model plan of their mission work is concentrated in Egypt. Itinerant work is carried on in outlying villages as well as in the heart of Cairo in the fine building presented to the ruling pasha of the time. The inception of the work in 1854 marked the beginning of mission work on the Nile. Mrs. Lee showed that a hold had been secured among the people and the respect and co-operation of both Egyptian and English officials had been gained, by the courteous and punctilious regard for their prevailing customs and treaties.

By stories and anecdotes it was shown that by help in times of illness and of trouble, by human sympathy given as from one human being to another faith had been created in those who were upholding the Christian belief in alien surroundings. Each act was as a little pearl of human love shown to those that are bound together by the common ties of humanity. The work was not stereotyped, but as varied as the needs and circumstances of the individuals helped. The whole question is one of understanding, of the removal of artificial barriers. The effort is made to bring home the realization that we are all brothers and sisters with one aim with the inspiration one person, the Lord, our Master, who gave his life for us that we might be saved.

Tea was served by the committee. Miss Zenia Trumbull, chairman, assisted by Miss Cecile Crowell and Mrs. Harrison Gray, with Mrs. Rollin C Jones and Miss Amy Coggswell presiding at the tea-table.

In the absence of Mrs. John S Blackmar, Miss Fannie Bliss acted as secretary at the business meeting. At the next meeting of the parish house Department, Miss Amy Coggswell will give a talk on "The Small Garden" and Miss Elizabeth Collins will sing. The Wayside Fair will be held next month.

DIRIGIBLE NORGE COMPLETED INITIAL TRANS-POLAR FLIGHT 8 P. M. THURSDAY

Landed at Teller, 75 Miles Northeast of Nome—Captain Amundsen and Three Other Officers of the Crew of Eighteen Arrived at Nome in the Launch Pippin at 5 a. m. Sunday—Residents at Nome Were Chagrined by Failure of Amundsen to Make That City the Landing Place—No Land Was Discovered in the Arctic Wastes.

NOME, Alaska, May 16—(AP)—Captain Roald Amundsen, Lincoln Ellsworth, Captain Oscar Wisting, and Lieutenant Oskar Omdahl, of the crew of 18 of the dirigible Norge, arrived here from Teller, 75 miles northwestward in the launch Pippin, at five a. m. today. The Norge reached Teller from Spitzbergen via the north pole at 8 p. m. Thursday.

The Pippin was dragged 14 miles to open water over the frozen bay of Port Clarence at Teller before it could put off for the trip down the coast of the Bering Sea. It was a cold and gloomy voyage.

Captain Peterson piloted the little launch in which the quartet left last night to complete the voyage originally planned for the airship from Spitzbergen to Nome.

A small band of natives and whites from Nome and the surrounding district greeted the transpolar flyers when they arrived at the mouth of the Snakar river, seven miles west of Nome. The Snake river which flows into the Bering sea, affords Nome its only harbor.

Amundsen, a Norwegian, was leader of the Arctic flight; Ellsworth, an American, second in command. Omdahl, and Wistling, especially charged with landing the Norge.

The remaining 14 men comprising the crew were left at Teller with the big dirigible, which has now been defated. It is to be made ready for shipment by steamer to the United States.

A feeling of resentment against Amundsen was expressed by many people of Nome over the failure of the explorer to bring the Norge to Nome after sending a message to Ralph Lomen, Norwegian vice consul, to arrange to have one hundred men ready to help pull the airship to the ground by ropes. This message assured the populace that Nome would be Amundsen's landing place and the chamber of commerce went to considerable expense placing a cable and four anchors on the Nome landing field. A triumphal arch was erected on the Main street and streamers and banners lined the street while all buildings and homes were decorated. Some persons suggested that the decorations be substituted by crepe.

The public was deeply chagrined, including Amundsen's Norwegian friends.

These friends, recalled Amundsen's quiet slip out of Nome for Point Wainwright in 1923, on his first polar expedition. Point Wainwright is 100 miles southeast of Point Barrow, on the Arctic coast. This undertaking failed when Amundsen's airplane, piloted by Omdahl, was damaged in a take-off from the ice. The Norge anchored at Teller 71 hours after having left Kings Bay, Spitsbergen, on Tuesday. The air voyage took the dirigible across the north pole where the explorers dropped the flags of three nations.

After word was received of the passing over the pole, it was reported the dirigible was seen early Thursday near Point Barrow, the most northern point of Alaska. From Thursday until early Saturday no messages were received from the Norge. It was feared then that a storm might have carried the dirigible far from the Alaskan coast.

After motor pictures were taken of the successful transpolar flying craft, it was deflated in 30 minutes. A perfect landing was made on the frozen bay of Grantty harbor at Teller. The work of dismantling the Norge was being done under the direction of Colonel Umberto Nobile, an Italian, first pilot the designer and constructor of the ship. It is to be preserved for reconstruction.

Captain Amundsen and Wisting are the only two men in the world to have visited both the north and south poles. Wisting having accompanied Amundsen when he discovered the south pole. At Nome, Amundsen declared that a wireless station should be erected at Teller, as it is the only real harbor in this section. The Snake river, seven miles west of here affords Nome its only harbor.

Lieutenant Omdahl, who is to return to Teller in the launch Pippin with Captain A. Peterson, master of the little water craft that brought Amundsen and three of his party to Nome today, said that the engines of the Norgew are in good condition and worked perfectly. The other three airmen are to remain in Nome.

Colonel Nobile was very proud of the ship he piloted, as it performed its feat nobly.

Amundsen said that he knew the position of the Norge at all times.

THIN ICE AND OPEN WATER WERE FOUND AT THE POLE

NOME, Alaska, May 16—(AP)—Lieutenant Hjalmar-Riiser-Larsen, Norwegian, second pilot, said today that thin ice and open were were found at the north pole, but no land was discovered in the Arctic wastes by the Amundsen-Ellsworth expedition which arrived at Teller, Alaska, Thursday night in the dirigible Norge from Kings Bay, Spitsbergen.

Teller is 75 miles northwest of Nome. The big airship was in the air about 72 hours.

Considerable time was spent at the northpole making observations, the Norge having descended to within six hundred feet of the ice, and rose to an altitude of 4,000 feet.

Over Point Barrow, on the Arctic coast, 850 miles northwest of here, ice formed on the whirling propellers of the ship and then broke off, cutting the big gas bag. Loss of hydrogen gas made the Norge extremely heavy. A fair wind aided it on the voyage from Barrow to Teller.

The crew of 18 arrived at Teller very tired but in excellent physical condition.

Preparatory to landing, an anchor was dropped from the Norge and Sergeant Ettore Arduino, assistant mechanician, descended and supervised the landing. A strong wind blew while the airship was being lowered and T. A. Pellerson, manager of the Teller Lighterage company, grabbed the bow line of the ship and headed it into the wind.

COOLIDGE URGES STATES TO MAINTAIN THEIR RIGHTS

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., May 16—(AP)—President Coolidge yesterday called upon the states to discharge their functions so faithfully that there can be a contraction, instead of an extension, of the authority of the federal government.

Speaking at the sesquicentennial observance of the adoption of the Virginia resolutions declaring for the independence of the American colonies, he said that by providing for the regulation of internal concerns of each colony by the colonial legislatures, the resolutions made "a plain declaration of the unassailable fact that the states are the sheet anchors of our institutions."

While asserting that liberty cannot be divorced from local self government and "no plan of centralization has ever been adopted which did not result in bureaucracy, tyranny, inflexibility, reaction and decline," the president coupled with his appeal to the states a plea for national unity and the elimination of actions based upon geographical lines under a system of government based upon majority rule.

OVER 1,000,000 YOUNG PEOPLE TO ATTEND 6,000 SUMMER CAMPS

NEW YORK, May 16—(AP)—More than 1,000,000 young people are expected to attend the 6,000 summer camps in this country this summer, H. W. Gibson, of Boston, president of the National Camp Directors' association, announced today.

Mr. Gibson said that interest in this phase of recreation was increasing constantly, the number of boys attending Y. M. C. A. camps alone having quadrupled in ten years. These camps accommodated 103,163 boys last year, while the Boy Scout encampments numbered 259,703 attendants. Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls contributed many thousands more while private camps took care of a large number of others.

The interest in camping, Mr. Gibson said, has been recognized to such an extent that Columbia university, Harvard, Boston university, Goucher and Western Reserve have included courses in camp directing in their curricula.

GIFTS OF TWO VALUABLE SITES OF LAND TO HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 16—(AP)—Adding another gift to the long series which has marked him as one of Harvard's greatest benefactors, C. Chauncey Stillman, Harvard '98, of New York, has presented the university with two valuable sites of land in the center of its territory, it was announced tonight.

The sites are those of St. Paul's Catholic church and of the St. Paul's rectory on Holyoke street. These buildings were razed a year ago and the sites were purchased by a real estate corporation which planned to erect a twelve story hotel. The project aroused considerable opposition at Harvard as the hotel would have been placed in the center of the district between the group of college buildings in Harvard yard and the group along the Charles river. Among those who felt this objection most strongly was Mr. Stillman.

INDUSTRIES IN BRITAIN ASSUME NORMAL CONDITIONS

LONDON, May 16.—(AP)—The last embers of the general strike are dying down, and with the exception of the miners, who are likely to remain out until a satisfactory agreement is reached, the country is rapidly assuming normal conditions and the people and the government are beginning to count the cost.

No final estimate is yet possible, but the general impression in government circles is that the loss will be less than the cost of the coal strike in 1921, which is generally thought to have been in the neighborhood of 200,000,000 pounds.

CLERGYMAN ASPIRES TO BE GOVERNOR OF TEXAS

NAPLES, TEX., May 16—(AP)—Another hat has been thrown into the Texas political ring to compete with the bonnet of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

The Rev. C. F. Zimmerman, announces that the time has come when "some man has got to offer himself as a martyr for the salvation of Texas." In announcing his candidacy, Mr. Zimmerman said he was prepared to "lead the battle against 'Fergusonism.'"

Three men and three women are now contending for the governorship.

Passengers Were Brought Ashore — Grounding was Caused When the Ship Sprung a Leak.

MIAMI, Fla., May 16—(AP)—Two hundred and eighty passengers from the Clyde line steamship Seneca were brought here today after the vessel grounded a mile out of Miami harbor last night as a result of a leak which partially filled her hold with water.

Anchor was weighed and tugs summoned. The passengers were transferred to small relief boats today and continued the journey northward by train.

The Seneca tonight rested easily at her anchorage, listing slightly to the starboard side. Throughout the day water was pumped from her hold allowing her to float clear from the small reef near the channel entrance. She will be towed within the harbor tomorrow.

INTEREST IN REP. PRIMARIES IN PENNSYLVANIA TOMORROW

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—(AP)—After six weeks of intensive campaining one of the most keenly contested primary election battles in the history of Pennsylvania neared its end tonight.

Most of the candidates completed their speaking tours of the state last night, returning to their homes today with optimistic reports and predictions that they would be victorious Tuesday.

Chief interest centers in the triangular race for the republican nomination for the United States senate and the four-cornered fight for the gubernatorial nomination of that party.

Senator George Wharton Pepper, Governor Gifford Pinchod and Congressman William S. Vare, aspirants for the senatorship, all issued statements tonight claiming they would be nominated by comfortable majorities. The same was true of the candidates for governor—John S. Fisher, Edward E. Beidleman, Congressman W. Phillips and John K. Tener.

Governor Pinchot's campaign managers claimed the governor would carry 51 of the 67 counties and that he would win by a plurality of approximately 135,000.

Pepper and Vare spokesmen were equally as optimistic. Pepper leaders asserted that Vare would not carry a county in the state except Philadelphia and Dauphin and that the senator would have a plurality of 109,000. Vare supporters said he would win by at least 120,000. They placed Senator Peper second and Governor Pinchot third.

Making the race on a "wet" platform, Mr. Vare, throughout his campaign, has maintained that the liquor question was the chief issue. His Principal plea to the voters has been that if nominated and elected he would work for a modification of the Volsted law to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer. Senator Pepper declared that prohibition was not an issue, while Governor Pinchot is making the fight on a "bone dry" platform. All three pledged to support the National administration.

MARX AS CHANCELLOR TO RETAIN LUTHER CABINET

BERLIN, May 16—(AP)—Doctor Wilhelm Marx has accepted the chancellorship proffered to him by President Von Hindenburg. He will retain the Luther cabinet and has informed the president, that his policy, especially in foreign affairs, will be the same as that of the Luther government. His aim will be to co-operate to the utmost with the socialists.

The centrist, Dr. Johannes Bell, will be added to the cabinet as minister of justice. The centrists today discussed at great length the feasibility of Dr. Marx assuming the post of chancellor. At a joint meeting of the German peoples party and the centrists, it was agreed, first, that the formation of a government was an urgent necessity, and therefore both parties were prepared to enter in a minority cabinet; second, that foreign relations demanded the earliest possible formation of the cabinet supported by the majority; third, that only such parties were eligible for the cabinet which recognized the international agreements of former cabinets.

After their party meeting the centrists requested Dr. Marx to take over the chancellorship. He proceeded to the executive mansion, where the president formally made the appointment.

The embassy declines to comment, and it is not revealed whether the embassy has forwarded representatives to the Mexican foreign office; any announcement must come from the department of state.

A TEMPORARY CABINET IS FUNCTIONING IN POLAND

The Cabinet is Made Up Largely of Experts From the Different Government Departments—Former President Wojciechowski Has Been Permitted to Retire to the Presidential Summer Residence at Spala—The Other Members of the Ousted Government Are in the Custody of Pilsudski—The Victorious Troop Are Repairing the Damage in Warsaw.

WARSAW, May 16.—(AP)—Warsaw has settled down to its accustomed calm under the control of Marshal Pilsudski, with Radaj acting president and a ministry functioning under Prof. Bartel, until the national assembly meets some time during the present week to elect a president.

The former president, M. Wojciechowski has been given a passport and permitted time to retire to the presidential summer residence at Spala. Some of the ministers of his former cabinet are still under guard at Wilanow, but the minister of railways has been permitted his liberty.

Among the members of the ousted government who are in the custody of Pilsudski are M. Zdsiechowski, Senator Smulski, General Malcsewski and General Rovadvowri, Anders, Zogorski, Kessler and Zubynski.

The victorious troops of the invading army have been busy today repairing the damage and restoring a semblance of order, but in other ways Warsaw appears to be conducting its activities in a normal way. The damage from the street fighting was not as heavy as at first supposed; the most dilapidated building is the war office, there having been fierce exchanges between the opposing forces both within this building and around it. The public offices are open as usual and street cars have been operating.

The railways are reported to be working regularly. The Paris-Warsaw express arrived today only an hour late. There has been no change in the management of the Polish bank.

A public funeral of many of the victims of the warfare, which was to have been held today, was postponed until tomorrow, for what are described as "technical" reasons.

NEW CABINET IS MADE UP LARGELY OF EXPERTS

WARSAW, May 16.—(AP)—The temporary cabinet which will hold office until the national assembly meets presumably this week, to elect a new president, is constituted as follows:

Premier and minister of railways, Charles Bartel; minister of interior, Prof. Lodzianowski; foreign affairs, August Zaleski, former ambassador to rom; war, Marshal Joseph Pilsudski; finance, M. Czechowics; public works, Prof. Broniewski; labor, Dr. Jurkiewlecs; agriculture and agricultural reforms, Dr. Reczyski; industry and commerce, Hygolite Glwic; education, Prof. Milkowyski-Pomorski; justice, Prof. Wenceslas Makowski.

The cabinet is made up largely of experts from the different government departments.

In a statement issued today, Premier Bartel says:

"My government has been formed to clear up the situation. It guarantees security and bids the citizens be calm and continue to work. This government will continue only until the election of a president by the national assembly, which will occur with the least possible delay. The government will firmly adhere to the constitution."

M. Rataj, who has assumed the provisional presidency, also issued a statement emphasizing the urgency of reverting to a strictly constitutional order of things as soon as possible.

"I am absolutely convinced," he added, "that the situation will have a peaceful outcome."

It is learned that General Sikorski commanding the army corps at Lemberg, has informed Marshal Pilsudski that the corps is at his command.

The railroad strike which was declared Wednesday as a protest against the Witos government ended last night in response to an appeal telegraphed to the leaders by the premier. M. Bartel has ordered the immediate release of M. Chondzynski, former minister of railway under the Witos government.

Waldo Marvin in the criminal superior court tomorrow morning on two charges of carrying a concealed weapon and accessory after a statutory burglary.

State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, who will present Shean, declined today to announce the sentence which he will recommend to the court to impose on the Springfield man. It is understood that the recommendation will be pretty close to the maximum sentence of eight years allowed on the two counts, or a sentence of any where from one to six years in the state prison at Wethersfield.

No indication was given of the apportionment of Shean's sentence. The charge of carrying a concealed weapon carries with it a sentence of a fine of $1,000 and a prison sentence of from one to five years. On the charge of accessory after the statutory burglary the law provides a prison sentence of from one to three years.

CONN. TROOPS HAVE ARRIVED IN PARIS

PARIS, May 16.—(AP)—The Governor's Footguards and the Putnam Phalanx of Connecticut and the Richmond Blues of Virginia, arrived in Paris this afternoon from Brussels. The militiamen were enthusiastic over their reception by the king of the Belgians, and even the worst May weather Paris has ever known failed to dampen their spirits.

A band, playing the Marseillaise and the Star Spangled Banner greeted them at the station amidst the applause of a French holiday crowd. The smart marching of the Blues to waiting omnibuses was particularly approved by the welcoming military delegation, headed by Captain L'Hopital, aide-camp to Marshal Foch.

HUNTER'S FURIOUS DUEL WITH HUGE GRIZZLY BEAR

BOISE, Idaho, May 16—(AP)—Armed with only a hunter's knife, Jim McCann, hunter and woodsman, successfully fought a duel with a huge grizzly bear in the mountain wilderness near the headwaters of the Salmon river Friday. Details of the fight reached here today.

McCann, with his right arm almost torn from its socket and his scalp almost torn off, is in a precarious condition, but may recover.

McCann and his brother, William, were en route to their cabin in the mountains when they came upon the tracks of a bear.

Jim told his brother to continue with the pack train and he would track the bear.

After following the trial some distance McCann was suddenly set upon from behind, and knocked down by the animal. His rifle was knocked from his hands and he was unable to reach a revolver, which he carried at his hip. Grasping a huge hunting knife which he also carried McCann drove the blade into the bear's body near the heart.

After the fight McCann crawled some distance before he became too weak from loss of blood to move further fearing death before he was rescued the man scrawled a note to his brother reading:

"Bill: The bear killed me, but by God I killed him."

When found by campers McCann was unconscious. The bear, dead, was several hundred yards distant, and the trail between the two was marked by blood from the victor's wounds."

The continued case of Leander Willis, 73, held on a serious charge of wrongful actions with a female child, was taken up in police court chambers Saturday morning. Through his attorneys, King and Harvey, the accused entered a plea of not guilty.

An 11 year old girl said that she had known Willis for three years and that she visited his home on April 26, 27 and 30. The man gave her money each time, she said. She denied with emphasis that Willis had wronged her. Another little girl corroborated this story.

At the close of a conference Prosecuting Attorney Gaucher said that the state could not prove its case against Willis for lack of evidence. He asked that the case be nolled and this was done, the accused being discharged.

Refusing to abide by the order of Justice of the Peace Mrs. Ruth Benton of the Andover town court and pay a town tax of $2.23 which he claims he does not owe, Olmstead S. Peck of Glastonbury, one-time resident of Andover, has appealed the case to the Tolland county superior court. He has furnished a bond of $50. The alleged tax is due on the grand list of 1924, according to Tax Collector Willard Fuller who has the authority to collect back taxes. As principal witness Collector Fuller says that Peck came to Andover in the Spring of 1924 and made his home with the Backus family. He left for Glastonbury late in the fall of 1925. On the abstract book Peck was down for owing taxes on a horse, two cows and a Ford car. He also owed personal taxes for he and his wife. When Collector Fuller tried to get the tax Pack claimed that he did not owb the animals or the Ford having a small interest on them. He knew nothing about the horse. In attempt at compromise the tax bill was revised and considerably lowered. The two combined taxes on one cow and an automobile plus ten per cent for not paying on time made the bill $2.23 which Peck refused to pay as well as the costs of the court of $17.50. He paid the personal taxes for himself and wife, amounting to four dollars and gave notice of appeal on the other tax matter.

E. Edward George, a business man of Hartford was charged with trespassing and failure to show his fishing license in the Mansfield town court last Friday afternoon. The Barrows Brothers who own land bordering the Fenton river in the town of Mansfield were the complainants in the case. Deputy Game Warden Allen of Mansfield stated that George trespassed on their property which was posted since Saturday of last week. He alleged that when the Hartford man was brought to account for trespassing and asked to show his license he refused to do so. The court authorities were then notified and a warant made which was served on George by Deputy Sheriff William H. Eldredge. George pleaded guilty to not showing his fishing license, but not guilty to trespassing. Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews found him guilty on both counts and imposed a fine of $5 and costs for trespassing and $1 for failure to show the license. The total "assessment" was $25.76. George said that he would appeal to the superior court so Justice Andrews gave him 48 hours to change his mind, allowing his freedom on his recognizance.

Miss Helen Main of Central Village and Arnold Adams of Plainfield St. were married on Friday evening. The wedding ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Miss Edith Kennedy, at her home. The bride was attended by Mrs. Walter Clark, and the best man was James Walker, who drove the young couple in his car. After a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Adams will reside in Plainfield.

The Plainfield fire company and the Lawton fire company, responded to a fire alarm sounded on the Lawton mill whistle, at 5:30 a. m. on Sunday morning, for a fire at the property of Mrs. Hardji on the old Moosup road. A small building was demolished and the fire in the barn was quickly put out by the firemen. The alarm was turned in by Herbert Tarbox, who saw the flames from his house. When he and Clifford Burdick arrived they had to make Mrs. Hardji, who had not seen the fire.

Leon Frink and William Sprague, drove to New London on Sunday morning, to meet Mrs. Sprague who is returning from Florida, where she has spent the winter.

A record has been established in the town of Plainfield in the town of Plainfield in the collection of personal taxes. Upon refusal to be identified and taking responsibility for the damage, Hopkins was placed under arrest by Officer William Vincent. It was alleged that the car driven by Hopkins had no lights burning.

VIENNA, May 16 (AP)—Admission of dogs has brought joy to the hearts of the future tenants of 250,000 model apartments built and owned by Vienna. DANIELSON

NO BAN ON FISHING ON STATE LEASED BROOKS

DANIELSON, May 16—If rain was what was needed to lift the ban on fishing along Snake Meadow brook, this ban in force over the week end, it should be lifted sky high by this morning. Thunderstorms—a series of them—during Saturday afternoon brought a deluge of rain. It was estimated that more than an inch of water fell over this territory, allaying for the time being all danger of serious forest fires.

Wardens kept fishermen off the brook at the week end. When the heavy rain came Saturday afternoon there was little further need of trying to enforce the no-fishing order, for all but the hardiest of the anglers were driven to cover.

Aside from all fishing interests, the rain of Saturday and the small additional amount that came Sunday was unusually welcome. Weather records show that the rainfall for the year is about six inches below normal in this territory. The late winter and early spring brought few heavy rains and water that came down during May, up to Saturday, was comparitively small, although there was a heavy thunderstorm on the night of May 1.

Such forest fires as were smoldering in this territory Saturday morning were drenched out, and woodsmen say that the deal danger of forest fires is probably over for the season. Grass is getting a good start now and other conditions are becoming such as to check the danger of these destructive happenings. The worst fire of the season in this county was the one in the region of Elliott on Wednesday and Thursday, when a number of square miles of territory were burned over.

The funeral of Thomas Wood was held from the home in Dayville Saturday morning with services at St. Joseph's church, Rev. Edward J. Shelley, M. S., acting pastor, being celebrant of the high mass of requiem. They were many relatives and friends attending. The bearers were Patrick Riley, Edwin Billings, Hormidos Perry, Eustache Beauregard, Philip Mooney and Louis Lamonthe. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. Martin T. Burns was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

To the average motorist there has been some confusion the past few days over the prosecution of a Norwich man in the Killingly town court because said accused was presented to answer to a charge of operating his car with a red and a green light showing in front. Such lighting is not allowed in Connecticut excepting by special permission of the commissioner of motor vehicles, though there are car owners who have indulged themselves in colored bulbs for use on sidelights on their machines. The restriction on the use of these lights is brought about because motor coach lines are using them with special permission, and that the public may not be confused they are intended only for such use when waiting for a coach by having some private car come along with the colored lighting arrangement in front. The rule against the unauthorized use of colored lights is to be rigidly enforced by state officers.

A small light car was wrecked over the Killingly line in Rhode Island Friday night in a collision with a giant platform trailer that was being towed by a big motor truck owned by J. McCormack Contracting company of East Providence.

It so happened that State Officer Streamens of the Danielson barracks held up the driver of the truck in this town for towing a trailer of such leviathan proportions and excessive width as to conflict with the state's regulation that no motor vehicle or trailer of over 8 feet 6 inches in width shall be operated on any highway in Connecticut. This trailer was 12 feet in width and was taking up the greater part of the highway. The driver of the truck established that a permit had been granted by the state motor vehicle department to run the trailer from East Providence to Franklin, in New London county, in transporting a 16-ton cement mixer, for us on state road work being done there. As the trailer was being towed back to Rhode Island under this permit, state officers here, after consultation with headquarters at Hartford, allowed it to proceed. Only a few miles out of Danielson, following the release, the collision mentioned occurred. The machine that was in collision with the trailer is owned by Malcolm Hopkins of Danielson.

Officials of the chamber of commerce will watch with interest this (Monday) evening the patronage of the Danielson-Goodyear coach service. This service—a Monday evening service only—was established last week. On the first trip the passengers were not as numerous as was hoped would prove to be the case, but there is the possibility that more people will use the service as time goes on. This is necessary if the coach is to be run. That the people of Goodyear may have the best possible service Monday nights, the coach is run up from the center of the village and over Goodyear Heights, where the majority of the residents of the village live, before leaving for Danielson. The coach leaves here on the return trip to Goodyear after the close of the theatre entertainment.

OFFICERS LOOKING FOR MAN SUSPECTED OF MURDER

DANIELSON, May 16—On a report from Eastford that a man who might be Frank Owens, wanted in New Hampshire to answer to a murder charge, was in that section of the county Sunday afternoon, a state officer was despatched from the Danielson barracks to investigate and question the man if found.

The subject of the search was a man about 50 years of age, about 5 feet 8 inches in height and of about 160 pounds weight. These details dovetail with those of Owens, for whom a search throughout the New England states is being made. Owens is said to have a scare on one cheek, but the man who was seen in Eastford Sunday had such a heavy growth of recently grown beard that the scar could not be discerned. A suspicion that the man might be Owens was aroused when he stopped to ask for a drink of water at a home where the story of the New Hampshire murder had been read on Saturday.

Owens, if captured, will be brought back to Atkinson, N. H., to answer to a charge of murdering his employer, Louis Jacobwitz, 53, a farmer. The killing is said to have taken place early Friday afternoon and is believed to have been accomplished with a shovel; this implement being used to batter the man to death. Jacobwitz's body was found in a field, where corn stalks had been piled over it and set afire in an effort to destroy the body. Owens could not be found after the discovery of the body, so a request to apprehend him was broadcast. He is said to have had only about 75 cents on his person when he disappeared.

Exceptionally heavy motor traffic for Saturday forenoon fell off materially during the afternoon and was comparatively light Sunday, all things considered, due to the rain.

Leaves on trees in Danielson expanded in an amazing way during Saturday and Sunday under the beneficient effect of the rain for which nature had been longing.

Miss Katherine T. Thayer of Worcester spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Witter of Cottage street.

The public here will be generally interested this (Monday) afternoon in the declamation and spelling contests to be held at the auditorium of Killingly high school. There will be competitors from various towns in Windham and New London counties.

DeForest Wells of Colonel Edward Anderson camp, Sons of Veterans, of Danielson, recently at the state convention of the organization in Hartford, was named division chaplain of the Connecticut Sons of Veterans.

A new amusement place, that opened Saturday, is being developed on the Danielson-East Killingly highway near Killingly Center.

A meeting of the Danielson Chautauqua organization officers is scheduled to be held this (Monday) evening with Mrs. F. C. Armington.

Rev. Myron E. Genter, district superintendent, Norwich, will be here Wednesday evening for the first quarterly conference at the Methodist Episcopal church.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich comes here Tuesday for the monthly clinic to be held at the health station in the town hall building.

Walter G. Bruce, teacher of agriculture at Killingly high school, has prepared an especially interesting program for tonight's meeting of Killingly Grange when the first and second degrees will be conferred on candidates.

Members of the Epworth league in Danielson plan to be at Jewett City next Friday evening for a meeting of the Circuit league.

A number of the Polish residents of Danielson went to Jewett City Sunday afternoon to witness a parade of Polish societies held in that community.

Herman A. Sanderson of Providence was a visitor with friends in Danielson over Sunday.

HALF-MILE COACH SAYS WATTERS CAN BEAT MARK

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 16 (AP)—When Dick Floyd directs the half-milers to their marks in the I. C. A. A. A. A. Golden anniversary meet at the Harvard Stadium, May 29, more than a few "old-timers" will think back over the thrills that this event produced in their day.

This is the view at least of William J. Bingham, now athletic director at Harvard and in his athletic prime a crack half-miler himself, a rival of the famous Ted Meredith.

"Perhaps they will recall Goodwin, thrice winner in the '80s, or Hollister three times winner in the '90s, or the great John Paul Jones or the greater Ted Meredith," said Bingham. "There will be others who will reflect what might have been had the first quarter been run a little faster or had they sprinted a little sooner. But their races have all been run and they form the history that makes the 880 one of the most interesting of championship events.

"The half mile is one of the eight events on the I. C. A. A. A. A. program which has been run continuously for 50 years. The slowest time was recorded in 1887 when G. M. Hammond of Princeton broke the tape in 2.20 1-2 after winning the quarter mile in 54 seconds. The fastest time—1.53—was run by Meredith of Pennsylvania in 1916, after winning a 47 2-5 second quarter mile.

"The first man to break two minutes in the half mile was W. C. Dohm of Princeton, who ran 1.57 1-5 in 1890. Evan Hollister of Harvard, was the only man to run under 1.57 at any of the 24 I. A. A. A. A. meets held during the 19th century. Meredith has the distinction of holding the record for the largest span of years. The only man who threatened the mark was George Masters of Georgetown, whose winning time in 1925 was 1.53 5-10.

"Will new history be made in 1926 half-mile? Meredith maintains that Watters of Harvard, cannot break 1.53 because he never run a quarter-mile under 50 seconds. Two years ago Watters looked better than 1.50 to me. I still think if he can avoid pockets and run a 54 second first quarter, he is capable of running faster than Meredith's 1.53."

WIG ARTIST PLAYS BIG PART IN OPERA ROLES

NEW YORK, May 16 (AP)—Singing is the important factor of opera but forming the background are costumes, scenery, acting, directing and a thousand other properties. And no small part of the latter is hair.

Whatever the part, the time or character, wigs in the great majority of cases determine an integral part of character. There are the long plaits for ladies of the middle ages, powdered puffs for grande dames, courtiers' wigs, rough, coarse peasants' wigs, and the odd wigs such as Chaliapin affected in his characterization of Don Quixote with the forelock standing straight for several inches, ending in a point.

Each of these wigs is the creation of an artist, and that artist at the Metropolitan for 24 years has been William Punzel.

During that time no wig has been created by fingers other than his for a Metropolitan performance and the curtain has never arisen without Punzel having arranged the wigs on the characters. His only assistant is his son, whom he has trained in the art.

Years ago, Punzel dressed the hair of cators at the old Irving Place German stock company. Later he went to Chicago with the Chicago Opera company and made his dressing room debut with the "Met" during the season of Caruso's first appearance at the expressed desire of Caruso.

Since then he has taken each artist under his wing and solved their hair dressing problems. Now it is Gigli, reigning tenor, who holds him in esteem. Punzel accompanied the Opera company on its end-of-season tour at the request of Gigli, who felt his characters could not be complete without the aid of Punzel.

Punzel has made it his rule to appear every morning at 9:30 during the season, and for the six months of activity he is on hand until the curtain is rung down every matinee and night performance. There was one period when an ailment caused the temporary loss of use of his right leg. A pair of crutches were pressed into service then and in spite of protests from the whole company he maintained his record of attendance.

Although his name is liked with the greatest stars, Punzel considers them so far as his work is concerned no more than the chorus person whose wig also must be dressed.

"It makes no difference to me," he said. "The smallest are just like Gigli and Martinelli. The hair needs dressing, and it is dressed—just the same for all."

URGES SCHOOL OF TROPICAL AGRICULTURE FOR SOUTHLAND

NEW ORLEAN, May 16 (AP)—Roy Tasco Davis, American minister to Costa Rica, stopped in New Orleans long enough on his way to visit his Columbia, Mo., home to say that a school of tropical agriculture should be established in the south.

"The future of the Caribbean countries lies in agriculture," said Mr. Davis. "There are hundreds of thousands of acres of undeveloped lands there as rich as the Garden of Eden but there are no schools to teach scientific culture of the soil. Numbers of Costa Ricans have asked for information about colleges of agriculture to which they could send their sons for learning that would profit them in the tropics.

"The interests of the United States and Latin-American countries are mutual. If production could be increased good roads built and the country developed more in Central America, the people there would have more money to buy manufactured articles from the states."

At the church festival the oyster dodgeth alike the just and the unjust.

LAUDER WILL CARRY ON SO LONG AS CAN WAGGLE KILT

LONDON, May 16 (AP)—Americans may expect "farewell" tours by Sir Harry Lauder just as long as the famous Scotch comedian can waggle his kilt.

"I shall not give up the stage until I can find a better job," said Sir Harry recently. "I shall go right on to the end of the road. I shall never leave my profession until I have to."

Sir Harry, who is 56, began work as a boy in a flax mill and later worked in coal mines, early 15 shillings a week. In 1892 he entered the singing profession in Glasgow and thought himself lucky to get a salary of eight dollars a week. Today he receives about $10,000 a week for his appearances.

THE PRESIDENT ON CENTRALIZATION

President Coolidge was the speaker at the sesquicentennial of the College of William and Mary and Williamsburg, Va., Saturday morning, at which time he made reference to the duties of states which is of particular concern at this time in view of the opposition to coercion in regard to federal inheritance taxation which has been displayed on the part of Rhode Island and which matter is to be made the subject of an investigation by a special committee recently appointed by Governor Trumbull of this state.

Referring to the fact that this is one big country and that we must keep all parts harmonious by refusing to adopt legislation that is not for the general welfare he stressed the fact that the states are the sheet anchors of our institution and said: "No method of procedure has ever been devised by which liberty could be divorced from local self government. No plan of centralization has ever been adopted which did not result in bureaucracy, tyranny, inflexibility, reaction and decline. Of all forms of government those self administered by bureaus are the least satisfactory to an enlightened and progressive people."

In opposition to the tendency that has been noted for some time of giving encouragement to centralization the president declared: "The states should not be induced by coercion or by favor to surrender the management of their own affairs. The federal government ought to resist the tendency to be loaded up with the duties which the states should perform. * * * I want to see the policy adopted by the states of discharging their public functions so faithfully that instead of an extension on the part of the federal government there can be a contraction.

Such an expression by the president leaves no doubt as to where he stands upon that question and he could have no more clearly stated his sympathy with the attitudes that are being shown in Connecticut and Rhode Island but his views been directly asked upon the subject.

STOPPING AUTO THEFTS

"I am taking the key out of my car now," said a driver who has been in the habit of leaving it outside overnight and even leaving the key in it. That admission was followed by the observation that it might not prevent one who knows how from starting it otherwise, but it would be less handy and would attract more attention than as if the key was ready to be turned.

Without doubt there would be fewer stolen cars if more cars were locked or the facilities for starting a car were less handy.

In this connection it is interesting to note that as the result of the many cars which have been stolen in Worcester an investigation was made by the police of that city which showed that nearly half of the 8,698 cars on the streets of that city on a certain day were not locked, and in most of them the keys were left in the ignition switch.

When a car is left in such an inviting manner for the temptation of those who are inclined to run off in them for joy rides or who are in the business of picking up cars for the purpose of selling them, it is perfectly apparent that the owner is not doing all that he can or should for the protection of his own property.

No one excites suspicion by walking up to a car and getting in. No one is likely to know whether such a person is the owner or the driver of that car, and if he is so fortunate as to find the car unlocked and the key in the switch and soon drives off any onlooker would regard it as perfectly legitimate. On the other hand if the car, being a closed one, is locked or if the key is missing from the switch, or if there is a shift lock that is being used, the antics of a person who encounters and tries to overcome such obstructions would be more apt to attract attention.

Without a doubt the practice of locking the car and removing the key is an excellent one. It may not prevent the theft of all cars but it will stop many of them. Certainly self protection ought not to be disregarded.

NO CHANCE FOR SPEED

How conditions can change within the space of a short time is shown in the case of the situation surrounding the disarmament conference due to open Wednesday at Geneva.

Following the Locarno conference the outlook was rosy and enthusiasm ran high. But since then the outlook has changed. The prospects of accomplishing much have dwindled. There have been developments which cannot fail to dampen the ardor of the nations, especially those which have been lukewarm. The situation today in Europe is in decided contrast to what it was following Locarno, and it is not improbable that it will be reflected at Geneva.

There has been reason to believe that no very big disarmament program could be put through, and therefore that the coming conference which is for the purpose of formulating the program will proceed cautiously.

The outstanding fact before the conference will be the results obtained at the Washington conference. With that as an object lesson it is to be hoped that the program will be so arranged that encouragement will be given to favorable rather than unfavorable action by the subsequent conference. Such it is believed can be done if the attempt is not made to bite off more than can be chewed. It is entirely possible to take up an extension of naval disarmament and include certain of the classes that were not involved in the present naval agreement. That would mean progress toward the goal without attempting so much that the whole effort need be wrecked.

The farther we get from the Locarno conference the more unlikely becomes the chance for land disarmament. While there was a sentiment favorable to considering it at one time, there have been internal and external difficulties among a number of the European countries since then which have had a reactionary effect. As troubles have developed the thought and talk of disarmament have decreased until it is a question what the outcome of the conference this week will be. Plainly the best that can be hoped for is slow progress.

FISHERMEN AND WOODLAND

Regarding the protection of property as of greater importance than the pleasure of fishermen, the action of the state fisheries and game commission in placing a ban on fishing until the danger from forest fires was abated was a wise one.

Rain in good and sufficient volume to soak down the leaves and underbrush and thus place a damper upon fires was received over the week. It was what was needed and everyone will be happy that it has at this time served so many interests.

It is well understood that fishing in itself involves the setting of no fires, but most fishermen are smokers and while all the carelessness is not to be found in the fisherman who smokes he is known to have his share of it. No one would think of attributing all the woodland fires to those who seek trout and yet it is apparent that if fishing is forbidden and the ban is respected any fires that develop during such a time cannot be attributed to the followers of Walton.

The destructive fires that have occurred this spring accentuate the need of individual effort for their prevention. Those who walk through the woods and the fields should appreciate the responsibility that rests upon them to avoid being the cause of someone else's loss of standing timber and possibly buildings.

Woodland fires are easily started under right conditions but it should be remembered that they are just as easily prevented, and it is prevention on which attention should be concentrated. There is no possibility of there being too much cooperation with such an end in view. With everyone doing his part bans would not be required.

POLAND'S TROUBLE

The world is watching with close attention each step that is taken in the Pilsudski coup which overthrew the established government and set up a new one with Professor Bartel as premier and Marshal Pilsudski as minister of war. It means a change in the method of conducting the government of that country and whether it means a prolonged civil strife remains to be seen.

Reports from Poland have been conflicting. It is difficult to picture the outcome of the effort in all its possibilities. Opposition to the Witos government had apparently been carried to the point of getting the support of a sufficient part of the army to accomplish the ousting and now it remains to be seen not only what satisfaction the new government will give but how it will be received by the neighboring countries as well as by the people of Poland.

The new government is now going to be put to a test. If Poland develops a civil strife that promises to swell to large proportions there are those along its borders who might consider it a proper time to lay claim to the sections of Poland which they covet or insist belongs to them, and in addition there are the financial problems which every new government must face. Probably no move by neighboring nations need be anticipated if Pilsudski can show he has full control of the army and there is no likelihood of a successful counter revolution.

Whether the change is going to be a beneficial one for Poland remains to be seen. Its effort must be to convince the people of the salutary effect of the overthrow and to strengthen itself through its good deeds, although the idea of making such changes through a revolution that means much bloodshed is not impressive.

EDITORIAL NOTES

WOMEN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Never clean windows when the sun is shining on them.

Olive oil and salt will remove white discolored spots from furniture.

Discolored knife handles may be cleaned with a slice of cut lemon dipped in salt.

Hang meat in a cool, airy place, but not in a draft, for that makes it dry and hard.

Save old silk shirts for cleaning cloths. They polish windows better than linen or wool.

In making custards, scald the milk, then cool it before mixing with other ingredients and it will not whey.

Do not keep pineapple in the ice chest where other foods are stored. The food will absorb the odor of the pineapple.

Try putting carrots through the coarse grinder of the food chopper. They cook much quicker and are a change from the old way.

If pickles are not kept under brine or vinegar they will become soft, quickly spoil and be unfit to eat. To keep them under the liquid necessitates a weight if they are in a crock or open jar.

If, in opening a jar or bottle containing liquids, you break it, fasten a piece of absorbent cotton over the end of the funnel and strain the juice through this.

For your leather chairs that stick when you sit down on them: Wash thoroughly with warm water and soap, wipe off with dry cloth, then rub to a polish with another dry cloth.

Rice water used in place of milk or plain water makes nice fluffy raised bread. It does not dry up quickly. Potato water may also be used. Potato water may also be substituted for milk in cakes.

Before serving soup or beef tea to a child or invalid take a piece of tissue paper and draw it two or three times over the top. This will remove every sign of fat which is usually found so objectionable to invalids.

WHEN TO VARNISH

It is best to varnish articles on a warm day and in quarters which are warm and dry. When the days are humid, muggy, cold or wet it is difficult for the varnish to dry and it is apt to lose its lustre, crawl and give poor results.

EXTRA COOKING SPACE

If you have a small kitchen and limited stove space, remember that electric toasters, percolators and other table equipment will enable you to augment what you have very satisfactorily.

SPOTS ON FURNITURE

White spots on furniture can be removed by rubbing with a cloth moistened with ammonia. But have a cloth wrung out of cold water ready to wipe off the surface as soon as the ammonia has been applied. Rub dry with a soft chamois.

POACHED EGGS

To prevent poached eggs from sticking to the pan, place a large spoon in the boiling water and slide the egg into the spoon. Cook this way for an instant and then slide the egg from the spoon into the pan.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Apply white of an egg to take the scald out of a burn.

Don't forget to wash baby's rubber and celluloid toys each day, as they are constantly in and out of his mouth and must be kept sanitary in order to keep baby healthy.

Don't neglect little scratches and cuts because they are not important looking. A pin prick has caused death through infection. If you keep a wound clean you are doing all that is humanly possible to guard against blood-poisoning.

Badly ribbed nails usually indicate some form of poor health, or they are one of the effects of a severe, wasting illness. A thorough physical examination by a competent physician will often reveal the hidden cause of this blemish and then a cure may be made on that basis.

When the skin around the nails is dry or horny, it may be softened by applying the following salve at bedtime after the hands are cleansed. Two ounces white petrolatum; one-half ounce powdered Castile soap; five drops of oil of rose or other perfume. Massage in a generous quantity of the cream, then cover it with the fingertips cut from an old pair of gloves. A little piece or adhesive tape will keep the fingertips in place at night.

HAVE THEM CLEANED

Don't put away winter clothes without first sending them to the cleaners. It costs very little in comparison to the loss you will have to stand when you find moths have gotten into all the spots upon taking them out next fall.

BEWARE OF RED ANTS

Now is the time to watch out for small red ants, as they are very apt to get in the refrigerator in no one knows what manner. Boiling water and then a liberal application of red pepper and borax prove their Waterloo.

A NEW COMBINATION

The average housewife is familiar with the varied ways in which to serve pineapple, fresh and canned. Here is a new combination:

Sear quickly in a frying pan a thick slice of ham. Put into casserole and sprinkle with 1 tablespoon sugar and ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Cover with juice from small can of sliced pineapple, and surround with halved slices of same. Bake in hot oven until brown. Mix two tablespoons flour with a little cold water and add various spices. Remove ham and add flour mixture to gravy. Return ham to dish, garnish with parsley and serve.

KEEP THE LID ON

Stews and pot roasts should be simmered with the lid on the pot so as to keep the steam in. The action of the steam is almost as important as that of the hot liquid which cooks the meat and vegetables.

DICTATES OF FASHION

One of the smartest milliners in Paris has created a chic little toque made entirely of green feathers.

Many of the silk frocks designed for afternoon have large, soft sleeves in front that give a jabot effect.

Sports coats of velveteen in tiny checked designs are among the latest models introduced for early summer.

Transparent capes and coats with the most fascinating sleeves are shown as a part of the new evening outfit.

The scalloped hemline is not only smart for evening in pastel colors, but for day in black or navy blue frocks that have simple lines.

Hats in medium and large sizes fashioned of straw or taffeta are conspicuously featured for wear with the street or afternoon costume of blue.

A convenient and commodious bag for the traveler is made of heavy duck striped in tan and brown and fastened with the popular zipper fastening. It is trimmed with bands of pigskin.

The rougher silks such as rajah and shantung, make the most fetching jumper costumes for sport, and take as naturally to colorful scarfs and fancy kerchiefs as well as the known duck does to water.

The polka dot is to be a decided feature of the spring silks. In addition crepe frocks are embellished with little embroidered dots in combination of black and blue or white and white on black and royal blue.

The last warm days have done more to settle the styles than all the dressmakers have accomplished. Kasha and Kasha toile obviously are to be considered outstanding fabrics with the ensemble holding its place in the styles without serious opposition.

For the young miss, plaid coats with cape attachments are offered as a spring suggestion. The cape portion may be lined in vivid red or green to correspond with the main tone in the plaid mixture. Most capes extend to the wrist and dip slightly at the rear.

HOUR GLASS EFFECTS

The skirts of some of the new evening frocks are almost sheathlike in their silhouettes. But they give perfect freedom of movement. They are split at the back and widened by an insert of crepe. This is hardly visible when the wearer is still, but when in motion the insert permits full freedom of stride. The V of the neckline and the V of the skirt combine to give an hour glass effect in the back.

BEFORE MAKING DRESSES

About now we are all interested in new washable house or porch dresses, and if we can make them ourselves, so much the better. However, be sure to put your new material in a pan of cold, salty water overnight and then hang on the line smoothly, letting it drip dry. This will insure you against fading and shrinkage.

MAKES THEM MEALY

To bake potatoes dry and mealy, put a fork at least twice into each when they are tender and let the steam escape.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Soak the very soiled clothing in borax water. It will loosen the dirt without hurting the material.

If the water is hard add a handful of borax along with the soap flakes for laundering purposes. It will serve as a whitener as well as soften the water.

If your last year's white silk dress is too soiled to be worn without laundering, when you wash it dissolve a teaspoonful of powdered borax in enough cold water to cover the article, and let it soak for an hour. Then wash in the usual way and your silk will not turn yellow.

All blankets, unless new, should be washed during the annual spring cleaning. Soak them in a tail of water containing one tablespoon of ammonia and some suds. Rub as little as possible, working them round with a smooth wooden stick until they are clean. This prevents shrinking.

WILL WHITEN THEM

Stained or discolored garments, such as handkerchiefs, towels, underwear, etc., will be whitened beautifully if one tablespoon of spirits of turpentine is added to the boiler of soapy water. Boil as usual, rinse in clear water and prepare to be delighted with the result.

STARCH AS A CLEANER

Apart from its laundry uses and as a substitute for paste, powdered starch is a good silver polisher, and it is far superior to bread crumbs, dough, and such things for cleaning soiled wall paper. Powdered fine and gently rubbed over the walls with a clean, soft duster, or an old muslin curtain, it will remove even those annoying stains caused by the grease in bricks.

A lump of starch dissolved in water is more effectual for cleaning windows than is whitening.

Boiled starch may be washed over newly cleaned linoleum and allowed to dry. This will form a skin and if the linoleum is to be polished, only a very small quanity of polish need be used.

To polish glassware, take a soft cloth and tie several lumps of starch in one corner, then mash it fine with the hands, dust it on the glass articles until they are white, then take the other part of the cloth and rub until the dullness has disappeared. Several dustings of the starch may be necessary.

THE BREAD KNIFE

The saw-edged bread knife is unquestionably the best sort to buy. It is easier to handle when cutting fresh bread and is less likely to cause serious harm should it slip. It can be sharpened just like any other knife, although one would hardly believe it from the dull bread knives one encounters.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The number of women lawyers and judges has trebled during the past 10 years.

Ten years ago there were 85 women listed in the census as chauffeurs; today there are more than 1,000.

A new candidate for cross-channel honors is Eva Morrison of Nova Scotia, who will attempt the crossing some time this summer. She is the only woman ever to make the three-mile swim from Boston to Boston light and return.

The Soroptimist club of London, an organization for women much like the Rotary club for men, has adopted the idea of having all guests at receptions and other affairs wear identification tags.

Miss Lillian Copeland of Pasadena, recently established new records for her sex in the shot-put and discus throw with marks of 35 feet 7 3-4 inches and 95 feet 8 inches, respectively.

Now at the age of 74 years, Mrs. Mary Durand, of Cleveland, O., who has been a telegrapher for 56 years, is probably the oldest woman telegrapher in the country.

SALT IN GASOLINE

In removing spots from clothing with gasoline a ring often forms where the spot has been. A little salt sprinkled in the gasoline will help prevent this.

MORE SANITARY

When you have a choice of a tube or jar when buying ointments or creams, select the tube. It is more sanitary than an open jar, where dipping the finger into the salve may carry infection to the next user.

RECIPES

Upside Down Cake: Place in frying pan five tablespoons butter, one cup light-brown sugar, one can of pineapple, diced or sliced and drained. Cook slowly. Make batter of one and one-half cups sugar, three eggs, one and one-half cups flour, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon vanilla and one-half cup of water or the juice from the pineapple. Beat eggs lightly add sugar gradually, add the water or pineapple juice and fold in sifted dry ingredients. Place cooked fruit in a greased cake pan, pour batter over it and bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven. Turn out and serve upside down to show the pineapple decoration.

To Serve With Asparagus: Put into saucepan 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour; stir well and add 1 cup stock, (white stock the best.) 3 drops onion juice, 1 sprig parsley, tiny piece bay leaf; stir until it thickens.

Boil tops from 1 bunch asparagus in water to which has been added 1 tablespoon vinegar and boil for 10 minutes. Drain and rub through a sieve; strain the white sauce on the asparagus, return to the back of stove until hot. Season with salt and pepper.

From Small Beginnings

Samuel Sloan, the Clerk; A Great Railroad President

An immigrant family stood on the deck of the vessel that had brought them from old Europe, and looked ahead at the dim out lines of the American coast. With them there was a little boy, too young to know what America means to those who come to it from foreign shores. He was too young even to have an interest in the land to which he had been brought. He did not know it then, but to him America was to mean the rich opportunity to use his brain and his personality, to rise from humble life into usefulness and power, to become the president of a great railroad system and to be known affectionately, even in his prosperity as "Sam" Sloan.

The first opportunity that America gave him was the free school system whose benefits he gained until he was about 14. He had had high hopes of going on with his studies, and even of entering college, but suddenly his father died, and the lad found himself obliged to help support the family. He had done well in his school work, wrote a good hand, and was quick at figures. He did not find it difficult to obtain a place as a sort of clerk. In this work, as in his school, he was faithful, and did not only his full share, but even more.

"What are you doing here, Sam?" the "boss" asked him one day some time after hours.

"I didn't like to wait till tomorrow," the boy answered. "I like to see a job finished."

Such a boy does not have to ask for an increase in pay. Young Sloan moved along from place to place, and continued to win the respect of everyone. Instead of spending his money freely, as his salary advanced, he saved more and more, until in the end he had a sum that he could invest. He became a prosperous business man, won public confidence, was elected to the state senate, and there brought intimately into contact with men of affairs. He was led to invest his money in the Hudson River Railroad, became a director and chief influence in building the road into prosperity. With this as a beginning success, he went on to other roads, and finally became president of the great Delaware and Larkawanna system.

To him the necessity of work proved a rich opportunity.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The proverbial ill luck attached to the number 13 does not seem to apply to King Alfonso XIII of Spain, whose 40th birthday anniversary will be celebrated today throughout his kingdom. Although the 13th ruler of his dynasty, Alfonso has been more fortunate in holding to his throne than have many other European sovereigns and at the age of 40 he is the dean of them all in the length of his reign. Indeed, he seems to have been born under a lucky star. Since his accession to the throne at least eight unsuccessful attempts on his life have been made, while on several occasions he has almost miraculously escaped death through accident. The young king, who married a granddaughter of Queen Victoria, has surprised Europe with his energy and ability since he came to the throne as a mere youth. His personal popularity extends to all classes of his subjects.

Stories That Recall Others

Only a Speck

An unusually bright and observing blue eyed girl was listening to the conversation which concerned a fire. That recalled to her mind an experience which made a lasting impression. She said, "You should have seen the house near us that was burned. It was terrible. It burned up nearly everything in the house, even the woman's clothes, except the speck she had on."

Every singer in a quartet can point out three good reasons why the organization isn't absolutely perfect.

AGGIE TEAMS IN ACTION AT STORRS THIS WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, May 16.—Two Connecticut Aggie teams will see action this week, the ball nine meeting Springfield here Wednesday afternoon in a return contest, and members of the track team entering the New England Intercollegiate meet at Boston on Friday and Saturday. Freshman teams will be active also, the yearling ball nine playing Williston away on Wednesday, and the track team engaging Rhode Island freshmen in a dual meet here Thursday.

Springfield downed the Aggie at Springfield May 8 by a 5-3 score, a three bagger by a pinch hitter with two men on doing the trick. Makofski pitched for Connecticut in that game, and he will probably draw the assignment for the next one. It is unlikely that Coach Dole will make any change in his lineup.

Coach Daly will not enter many of his track men in the New England meet. Those who will probably go include Longo, record holder in the shot put; Atwood, record holder in the 220 yard dash; Farrell, holder of the high jump record; and Mulligan, record holder in the mile run.

GIRLS PARTICIPATE IN CENTRAL CHURCH SERVICE

The Girls' Sunday programme was carried out effectively at the morning service at the Central Baptist church with girls of the church officiating as ushers, two anthems, Saviour Like A Shepherd Lead Us and Hark, Hark, My Soul was sung by the girls chorus and a five-minute talk by Miss Marion Royce, president of the older girls group, who spoke upon the part Connecticut could claim as being the home of the first man to advocate prohibition as the ultimate cure for the evil of the drink habit. This was Lyman Beecher, then a resident of Litchfield Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt's sermon was in special reference to the day, his theme being Woman's Place in Jesus Plan. He pointed out that, with the exception of the religion of Jesus Christ, there is no religion of today that does not give woman an inferior place to man.

For this service the women and girls had challenged the men and boys to an attendance contest, the count showing 188 of the former and 150 of the latter at church. On a percentage basis the men were winners, but as numbers present the women were ahead.

THEY MAY KNOW THEIR LATIN BUT NOT BASEBALL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, May 16.—Amid the hue and cry of over emphasis of athletics in colleges come proof from Connecticut Aggies that such a condition does not exist in the Nutmeg institution.

This proof is found in the examination papers on baseball rules, which all freshmen are required to take, and which are given by the department of physical education.

Answering the questions of which team has the choice of innings, one freshman states "the losing team." Another yearling answered the same question with the statement "the bat is tossed in the air and caught with one hand, after which the captains place one hand above the other, and the man to cover the top has his choice." This same man insisted that the penalty for a balk was the addition of one run to the score of the opposing team!

Describing dimensions of the diamond, one freshman said the distance from home plate to the backstop was 33½ feet, while another claimed there was 90 yards between bases.

Defining a sacrifice fly bothered many, one man claiming it was a fly ball which a fielder touched but could not catch. Another claimed it was "a fly in which the batter takes a chance of making the opposing fielders fumble, so his teammate on bases can come home."

The authorities at Connecticut Agricultural college are not worrying about over emphasis in athletics!

Occum Married Men Win.

The Married Men of Occum defeated the Single Men in a one-sided game Friday evening by a score of 8 to 5. Joe Bush being too strong for the Single Men, retired in favor of Belair who allowed the Singleites their five runs.

SOUTH MANCHESTER BAND PLAYS AND MAJ. SEAVER SPEAKS AT SERVICE

It was Salvation Army night Sunday at the Central Baptist church when a special united service of the churches was held at 7:30 o'clock with addresses by Mayor Milo R. Waters, Major Thomas C. Seaver of Hartford and music by the well known Salvation Army band from South Manchester. In spite of the extremely stormy weather there was a good sized attendance at the service which opened at 7:30 o'clock with Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church, leading the devotional period. Selections by the splendid band were followed by sacred numbers by the male chorus of 30 voices. Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, Norwich church, offered prayer after which there was a sacred vocal number by Mrs. Mehling, wife of Adjutant Mehling of Hartford. Rev. Dr. Pitt, introduced Major Seaver and Major Seaver in turn presented Mayor Milo R. Waters.

Mayor Waters spoke very highly of the Salvation Army and the work it is doing and urged the public to give its support, moral and financial, to the campaign which the army is soon to hold in Norwich to raise $5,500 for expenses during the coming year. The offering taken during the service was turned over to the Salvation Army to help pay the deficit in the local Salvation Army captain's pay.

Major Seaver spoke in a very interesting manner on The Past and Present of the Salvation Army. He enlightened the minds of many who had no idea as to how the army was started. It was in 1865 that Rev. William Booth, then a pastor of a Methodist church in England, paid a visit to London. During his visit he went through a district known as Whitechapel, which was one of the darkest sections of the underworld in London. He saw such a sight as he could never have dreamed possible. Literally thousands of men and women passing up and down the streets on Sunday, in and out of saloons cursing, swearing ad blaspheming God and man, never entering any place of religious worship. His great heart went out to them. He resigned from his church and returned to London with his wife and three delicate children, without financial backing.

He borrowed from a friendly grocer a soap box and placing it on the sidewalk started to sing a hymn. The people gathered around him and there he made his first convert. This was the beginning of the Salvation Army work. The city of London has placed a tablet on the sidewalk and on the tablet is inscribed "On this spot of ground, in the year 1865, the Rev. William Booth started the work of the Salvation Army."

The major then spoke of the early struggles and difficulties encountered in the work. In 1885, General Booth at the request of people in Philadelphia, who had been engaged in the work of the Salvation Army in England, sent over Commissioner Railton and several Salvation Army lassies and they started the work in the city of Philadelphia. The major then spoke of the great increase in the work in this country and all over the world. He made an earnest plea that during the coming campaign the citizens of Norwich respond to the appeal and help this religious and charitable work.

While the band played the congregation sang the Doxology and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Pitt. As the congregation was leaving the church the band played a spirited number. The bandsmen left by bus shortly after 9 o'clock for their homes in South Manchester.

BAND CONCERTS MAKES HOSPITAL PATIENTS HAPPY

The Salvation Army band from South Manchester, which came here to participate in the mass meeting Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church, preliminary to the campaign for $4,500 which is to be launched here soon for the Army, gave three concerts in the city Sunday afternoon Promptly at 1 o'clock C. W. Taggart, John J. O'Rourke, Walter N. Block, A. C. Lillibridge, L. M. Crandall and one Salvation Army car, a car owned by the state hospital, Dr. Wilcox's, and William R. Frisbie's cars, kindly answered to the call of the Norwich chamber of commerce and conveyed the Salvation Army band from Franklin square to the Norwich state hospital, where Major Thomas C. Seaver and the band were cordially welcomed by Alfred B. Davis, male superintendent of the hospital, in the absence of Dr. Wilcox. Mr. Davis thanked the band very heartily for their kind service in coming to the hospital. As the band began playing some of the unfortunates present did not know what it was all about, but by intuition they responded to the beautiful music, and put on a joyful expression. It was an impressive sight to see 900 of the 2,023 of the human unfortunate inmates of the hospital sit in the most orderly manner and applaud the music. When Mrs. Adjutant Mehling sang "I Walk with the King," many of them had tears in their eyes, others had an expression of great contentment. A snappy march, after singing "Down by the Riverside" by the entire ensemble, finished the concert at 2.00 o'clock.

The band was quickly transported to the tuberculosis hospital where 156 patients there were given a treat and a thrill. It was thrilling to behold how the unfortunates forgot their troubles and were transported into the land of hopeand faith for the future by the beautiful music. The band braving the inclement weather by standing on the hospital lawn, notwithstanding the rain, entered into the programme with sincerity and religious fervor and rendered a concert which the patients of the hospital will not forget for a long time. The concert was divided into two parts, the first part was given on the lawn facing the male division and was finished by Mrs. Mehling siging "Rock of Ages" to the tune of Silent Night, accompanied by Adjutant Mehling on the trombone. The second part was given on the lawn facing the women's division, and although it was rather quite hard, the band was undaunted by the rain and gave a fine concert, which was finished by Mrs. Mehling singing the "Wondrous Story." Miss Mariam Campbell, matron of the hospital, thanked the band for the concert given and was visibly affected by the delight shown by the patients by listening to the music. Miss Campbell with her usual solicitation for the welfare of her charges, expressed the hope that such concerts may be given more often at the hospital.

From the hospital the band was brought to the town hall where a comprehensive concert was given to about 350 citizens who attended in spite of the rain. The band began by singing "Onward Christian Soldiers" in which the audience joined. Mrs. Mehling led in prayer. John J. O'Rourke introduced his honor, Mayor Milo R. Waters, who said in part: "It is the second time that we have with us Major Seaver of Hartford, and the South Manchester Salvation Army band. They are here for the purpose of awakening enthusiasm for the coming Salvation Army drive in Norwich." The mayor called attention to the good work the Salvation Army did in the state camp and what the Salvation Army is doing in this city; being ever ready to do a good turn, wherever help is needed. The mayor lauded in the highest terms the good turn which the band did for the unfortunates of both hospitals, and expressed the hope that the citizens will answer generously to the call of The Salvation Army. Major Seaver responded by expressing confidence that the people of Norwich will show their generosity by supporting the Salvation Army of Norwich in their coming appeal. The program continued with a trombone solo by Adjutant Mehling, entitled "I Love Him Better Every Day," accompanied by the band. Louis M. Crandall was called on for a word and he said that the Salvation Army problems are testing stone, and that Norwich will prove equal to it's problem. Mr. Crandall said a few words in regard to the preliminaries of the campaign and urged those that are not in a position to give monetary assistance should come forth and contribute their work to the campaign. The selection next played was a march entitled "On the Air" composed by Harold Turkington of the band, who led the musicians through the number. Mrs. Mehling sang next with the band singing the accompaniment. The song was entitled "When You Know Him." E. J. McCabe was presented by Major Seaver, as the second generation in the Salvation Army. Mr. McCabe is conducting the campaign in Norwich and he thanked the mayor and the citizens for the assistance and kind hospitality given to him since he came to Norwich. American Melodies was the next number played by the band. At request Mrs. Mehling sang "Rock of Ages" assisted by Adjutant Mehling on the trombone. The song was rendered in a very clear, fine soprano voice, and the audience applauded generously. The final band selection was "Songs to Britain" finishing the concert at 4.45 o'clock.

TO START WORK ON FAIRGROUNDS TRACK TODAY

The Norwich fairgrounds takes on an activity this week that presages a busy season there for the next five weeks, this including the three-day visit of the Bay State Circuit harness horse racing of June 22-24.

Teams will start to work Monday morning removing from the course patches of soil here and there that have lost their resiliency; other teams will haul loads of loam to replace the discarded surface, the two processes being the preliminary work in expectancy of the arrival on Wednesday or Thursday of the Goshen (N. Y.) track expert, J. S. Coates, who then will take personal supervision of the job, that of regarding and resurfacing the half-mile ribbon of dirt over which the speedsters will engage in many a stirring contest next month.

The local fairgrounds track has never been rated poor footing, but the list of entries for the June meeting proved of such liberal proportions—there are horses entered from 32 states—that the local club feels that in compliment to the visiting horses that the best battleground possible be afforded. Accordingly Mr. Coates was sent for, and the Goshen expert's supervision of the track rehabilitation will be sufficient of a warranty to the campaigners that the job will be well done.

Mr. Coates is coming direct to Norwich from his latest construction project in North Carolina, where he has just completed building two tracks, a half-mile track with a three-quarter mile track, for the Harrimans of New York, Averill and Roland, sons of the late E. H. Harriman, the big railway magnate, the North Carolina plant to serve next winter and thereafter as the off-season training grounds of the extensive Harriman racing stables, which, by the way, now are their home quarters in Orange county after their past winter's training months in Florida. Peter Maltby 2.06 1-4, unbeaten two-year-old trotter of last year, is the present topliner of the big stable which Trainer Will Dickerson has in charge for the wealthy New York sportsmen.

The work at the local track is to be hurried, since several big racing stables already are planning to make early shipment to the Norwich track for their season's final preparatory work. Among these is the big outfit of some 30 crack candidates owned by Robert French of Tecumseh, Ont., who is expected to arrive at Norwich about June 10. The French stable, which furnished the winner of the $25,000 American Pacific Derby at Kalamazoo last July in Tarsan Grattan, 2.03 1-2, has another candidate for this year's rich Michigan race in Jean Grattan, who raced around the 2.03 notch this year. The best experts are placing the one-two honors of the 1926 Kalamazoo race as between Jean Grattan and the Hartford-owned Miss Czar Moko, and the fact that these two great mares are to engage in their first duel of the year at the June meeting here, has attracted national attention to the three-day race meeting at Norwich. However, the Jean Grattan-Miss Czar Moko fussle will prove only one of the many great races that are in prospect.

The Norwich Short Ship association, which is composed of Norwich business men, has made elaborate plans for their coming Bay State Circuit week, since the majority of the racing stables are owned by men of wealth who race as a recreation and for Sport's sake. These gentlemen, from a score of states, will be at Norwich to see their favorites parade, and it is the desire of the local business men to give them as good an impression as possible of an up-to-date Connecticut trade center.

JEWETT CITY YOUTH GOT INTO TROUBLE HERE

Two Jewett City boys, one 19 and the other 20, came to Norwich Sunday and about 9.15 o'clock in the evening got into trouble with an Italian family on North Main street. Complaint was made to Officer Peter Vuono who happened to be in the neighborhood, and the officer, although off duty, responded to the call and found a fight in progress. With the assistance of Constable George Hollingsworth, he arrested the Jewett City youth and they were given a ride to police headquarters where they were locked up for the night, one being charged with breach of the peace, resistance, and intoxication and the other with breach of the peace. Their cases will come up for trial in the city court this (Monday) morning.

For Mother-Daughter Banquet

About 50 girls and their mothers will represent the Central Baptist church at the mother and daughter banquet to be held Friday evening at the Community house in connection with the girls' week programme. The United Congregational church will be represented by about 70 girls and their mothers. Other churches are expected to report today (Monday) on the size of their representations at the supper.

CONTRACT TO WILCOX FOR LAFAYETTE ST. MACADAM

Lowell J. Wilcox of Norwich Town, the lower one of the only two bidders on the contract for laying about 1,800 feet of macadam by Lafayette street was awarded the contract when the bids were opened Saturday by the selectmen, William S. Murray, Charles P. Bushnell and Patrick T. Gannell, Engineer Charles E. Chandler and Town Counsel Henry H. Pettis. His bid was $6,861. The other bidder was Fred D. Miller Co. of 43 Broadway, their figure being $6,960.70.

The area to be covered is about 5,100 square yards, in putting in a new macadam street from the corner of Washington and Lafayette streets to the city line at the junction of Williams and Lafayette streets.

The appropriation for this work by the town meeting was $12,000. The bituminous binder for the work will be furnished by the town and it is expected that the cost of this will about bring the cost of the work up to the appropriation.

According to the items listed, the bids for each were:

Item 1—For each square yard of 2 1-2 inches bituminous macadam, 3 1-2 inches stone base and including excavation and removal of excavation, $1.80 per square yard by Miller, $1.71 per square yard by Wilcox.

TORRENTS OF RAIN BROKE LONG DRY SPELL

A torrent of rain with lightning and hail between 6.30 and 7.15 Saturday evening broke the long dry spell, brought cheer to those who have been waiting for a spring rain to get the ground into good condition for planting and made it unnecessary for the state fish and game commission to continue the ban on fishing on the state leased brooks.

The rain continued lightly through Sunday morning and in the early afternoon, but in the latter part of the afternoon descended with vigor and certainty upon the golf match at the links of the Norwich club. This served to remind many of weather predictions made by two prophets, one of them as late as Thursday and the other several weeks ago. The most recent prognosticator, Herbert Janvrin Browne of Washington, missed it for he had said it would positively be pleasant for the day of the match. On the other hand, the well known Cloud Digger of this section of the state had been equally positive that it would rain. This was his prediction several weeks ago. There was no denying that he scored.

CENTRAL CHURCH GAINS IN ATTENDANCE CONTEST

Sunday morning at the Central Baptist church, the men and boys of the congregation increased their lead in the attendance contest with the First Baptist church of Waterbury to 44 points. The percentage totals are now as follows: Norwich 358, Waterbury 314.

The Norwich church had an attendance of 150 men and boys as compared with 110 in the Waterbury congregation, giving the local church a percentage of 66 to 55 percent for Waterbury.

The effect of the rainy day was evident when the percentages for the five Sundays in the contest so far are compared. The percentage figures are as follows:

	Norwich	Waterbury
1st Sunday	63 1-3	76
2d Sunday	63 1-3	65
3rd Sunday	67	67
4th Sunday	69	46
5th Sunday	66	55
Totals	358	314

MORE THAN $2,000,00 GOES THROUGH MACHINES ON DERBY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.—(AP)—More than $2,000,000 passed through the Pari-Mutuel betting machines at Churchill Downs on Derby day yesterday and of this $894,958 was bet on the Derby itself. The figures finally were compiled early today showing the exact total to be $2,038,701.

Just how much money passed through bookmakers' hands will never be known, nor how much bubbling over the Blue Grass colt won for his backers. His proud owner, E. R. Bradley of the Idle Hour farm, Lexington, Ky. won a gold cup and $50,575 on Bubbling Over and $6,000 on his other entry, Beggenbaggage, which came in second. Various estimates of his bets were made, some being that counting in good odds in the winner books he may have taken in a quarter of a million dollars.

The 52nd renewal of the turf classic of America with its record breaking amount of money bet through the machines saw two disappointments to followers of the thoroughbreds from other states. One was that Pompey, entered by W. R. Coe of New York, failed to finish in the money, and the other was that Carlaris dubbed the "wonder horse" as a result of his Tijuana victories, was not in shape.

Carlaris kicked himself on the leg in cooling off after a Tijuana race and could not be got in shape in time, though he was brought here for training.

But although outsiders may have suffered disappointment, there was little or "no home" among Kentuckians. Bubbling Over is a Kentucky bred animal and so is his stable mate, Beggenbaggage, and so is Rhinock who raced in fourth, Rock Man, who came third, was the only "outsider" of a large number of eastern contenders to finish "in the money." and Bubbling Over finished in 2:03 4-5, just two-fifths of a second slower than the Derby record made by Old Rossbud, in 1914. Many believe that if Bubbling Over had been pressed he might have broken the record. Those long, easy strides for which he already is famous carried him at a terrific pace and landed him five lengths clear of the field.

While Bradley owns two of the horses that finished in the money, the other two are owned by women. Rock Man is the property of Mrs. Margaret Emerson Baker of New York, and brought her third prize of $3,000, and Rhinock, by taking fourth place, paid Mrs. George B. Cox, of Cincinnati, $1,000. Pompey in fifth place, followed Rhinock to the wire and then in order were the others; Esping, Light Carbine, Canter, Bloodin, Display, Recollection Champion De Mars and Roycrofter.

The story of yesterday's race is a story of careful breeding and training by Bradley and H. J. Thompson his trainer, and skill in piloting shown by Jockey Albert Johnson. But the jockey said when the race was won that all he had to do was to "sit back and let him run."

The thousands of visitors who saw the race yesterday were thinning out today, though many remained to attend the meet this week and others stayed long enough to visit Churchill Downs again today and admire the thoroughbreds there.

Although the crowd was so great it was an orderly one and never have there been so few arrests on Derby day, or so few complaints to police.

NORWICH SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS ON PROGRAMME

A group of Norwich Sunday school workers will be in charge of the programme of a meeting of the Community Bible Teachers league which is to be held tonight (Monday) at the Montauk Avenue Baptist church in New London. After the supper at 6.30 Rev. H. C. Dunbar will deliver an inspirational address, which will be followed by conferences for the various departments, beginners, primary, junior intermediate, senior and adult. Among the conference leaders will be Mrs. C. Edward Smith, Miss Jennie L. Congdon, Miss Edith Ellis and the Rev. J. Harlow Graham, all of this city.

Attended Dedication of Organ

Mrs. H. L. Richardson and son, Dwight, of 635 Main street, accompanied by Mrs. William McNeeley and son, Russell of Palmer street, motored to Howard, R. I., Sunday afternoon to attend the dedication concert of the new organ at the state hospital for mental diseases. A noteworthy program was given by three Providence organists, Mrs. Lucy Marsh Gordon, soprano, soloist and a chorus of 150 voices, all members from Providence festival chorus.

The new organ is located in the congregate dining hall at the state hospital. It is one of the largest and most attractive halls in Rhode Island. With the dining tables removed it has a seating capacity of 2,000. The organ is to be use das a part of the systematic use of music employed at the Rhode Island State hospital in the care of the mentally ill. A choir of nearly 60 patients under the training of a musical director gives concerts on Sunday evenings and other occasions.

PADDOCK TO MAKE ATTEMPT AT NEW RECORD

LOS ANGELES, May 16.—(AP)—Three attempts will be made by Charles Paddock, sensational sprinter in the next 30 days to further cut the time of 9.5 seconds for the 100 yard dash that he set here yesterday in the Southern Pacific A. A. U. meet.

Plans for a series of dashes on a specially constructed track on the property of the Breakfast club, an organization of local sportsmen, were announced today calling for appearance of the blonde haired flyer May 28 and June 4 and 11.

LOW-HURDLE MARK MET BUT ONCE IN 28 YEARS

PRINCETON, N. J., May 16 (AP)—The history of the championship track and field meet of the I.C.A.A.A.A. which celebrates its Golden anniversary at the Harvard stadium May 28 and 29, has nothing more unusual than the fact that only one man in 28 years has equalled the championship low-hurdle record of 23 3-5 seconds set by Alvin C. Kraenzlein of Pennsylvania in 1898.

That one man, said Keen Fitzpatrick, veteran Princeton coach, was James Wendell of Wesleyan, who tied the mark in 1913.

"There have been other good low hurdlers, such as Johnny Garrels of Michigan and Coard Taylor of Princeton who have won titles in fast time," Fitzpatrick declared. "Last year, Kenneth Grumbles of Southern California won the title in 24 seconds flat. He is another of the rangy type best fitted for low hurdling.

"The man who does it must be a ten-second sprinter, as was Kraenzlein. I have heard stories to the effect that the Pennsylvanian's fire was aroused when he went to the mark in the 1898 final. As I recall it the track was mud covered, yet Kraenzlein clipped one full second off the record.

"The low hurdles was added to the I.C.A.A.A.A. program in 1888, and the first man to improve 25 seconds was Jim Lee of Harvard in 1890, who, incidentally was the first competitor to make fast time while taking eight strides between the hurdles. Seven strides between each bar is the orthodox style but Lee mastered the feat of taking off with his left and then with his right foot. Listed among the record breakers was Harry Williams of Yale.

"The technique of low hurdling is at different from that of high hurdling as night is from day. Over the high barrier it is essential to bend one's back as the hurdle is cleared but there is no time in low hurdling to do much bending because so much depends on straightaway speed. Technique must be largely ignored.

HAGEN AND STIMPSON WIN FOUR-BALL EXHIBITION FROM FARRELL AND WATTLES

Walter Hagen, former golf professional of America with H. E. Stimpson, captain of the Harvard golf team defeated Johnny Farrell, Quaker Ridge pro who is picked by golf critics as a future champion, and J. E. Wattles, Jr., captain of the Yale golf team, in a four-ball exhibition match at the Norwich golf club Sunday afternoon, taking seven holes out of the eighteen while the remaining eleven were halved Hagen turned in a card of 73, going out in par 36 and in in 37. Farrell took an 84, going out in 40 and in in 44. Stimpson took an 82, 41 out and 42 in. Wattles had an 84, out in 42 and in in 41. At the turn Hagen and Stimpson were up two holes but coming in they picked up five more.

The match was played under the most adverse weather conditions, a freezing rain from the northeast setting in just as the match started and before the first nine holes had been played it became a driving rain accompanied by stiff wind. A gallery of nearly 200 ardent golf fans followed the match, braving the fury of the elements and sploshing along with wet feet and seeming to enjoy it. Slickers and umbrellas were of some protection but those without either were sure soaked.

There was no doubt left in the minds of any who followed the match that Walter Hagen comes rightly by his title of master golfer. Hagen demonstrated why he has twice been national open champion and twice British open champion. It is through consistent playing, long driving and superb approach shots and accurate putting on the greens. In Sunday's match Hagen demonstrated this to the satisfaction of all. His drives were hard and well placed and his approach shots were played with a skill that more than once brought applause from the gallery. Only twice during the eighteen holes did Hagen find himself in the rough and both times he played out with skill.

Farrell without a doubt was off his form as his card of 84 shows. Many times Farrell's drives went astray especially on the sixteenth where he drove two balls out of bounds in an effort to cut across the corner of a dog-leg hole. His approach shots lacked power and many times he was forced to putt from the edge of the greens. It was on some of these long putts that the gallery was treated to a slight thrill for a number of times Farrell missed the cup by a matter of inches.

In comparing Hagen with Farrell in Sunday's match Hagen was far superior to Farrell. Hagen outdrove Farrell on the majority of holes and his approach shots were laid to the pin with far more accuracy. In the putting Hagen showed great skill. Farrell was far from the Johnny Farrell that played at Worcester last year and his playing can be attributed to weather conditions and an off day.

The collegiate side of the game was well worth seeing as both Stimpson and Wattles played exceptionally nice golf the Harvard captain having the edge on the Eli golfer by one stroke for the eighteen holes. Wattles was inclined to get into trouble with his drives but was strong on the greens. Stimpson drove hard and his approach shots were good.

All were off to good drives on the first hole but Farrell ran into hard luck when his approach shot dropping on the green rolled over into the rough forcing him to take a five while Hagen and the college players were on in two and holed out in four.

On the second hole all were on the green in two although Wattles had to play a neat chip shot from the rough to get there. All holed out in 4 Hagen having a chance at a three but his first putt was two inches short of the cup.

Driving off the third tee all found good lies and on the second all but Wattles were on the green. Wattles overshot the hole and landed in the pine scrub beyond the hole. Hagen on his second shot laid his ball about six feet from the pin but missed his putt by inches. Farrell who was slightly farther away also rimmed the cup for a four. Wattles took a five.

Hagen registered a birdie three on the fourth hole and Farrell again missed a chance of tying up with Hagen when he missed a long putt by the fraction of an inch. Hagen got away a long drive that carried well and then his approach took him within four feet of the pin from where he holed out with ease. Farrell took a four while Stimpson and Wattles each had a five.

The fifth hole a dog leg hole was uneventful. Hagen, Farrell and Stimpson holing out in four while Wattles took a five having driven into a sand pit.

Hagen won the sixth hole when he holed out with a par four. The three other players took fives all having seeming difficulty on their second shots.

Hagen registered another birdie on the seventh hole and par five hole, as did Wattles who also went out in four. Farrell and Stimpson each took a five.

The eighth hole was another uneventful hole all playing to the green in two and then holing out in four.

The ninth hole seemed to bother the two college players, both getting in trouble with their second shots Stimpson taking a six and Wattles a seven. Farrell and Hagen each found the green a little sooner and their putts were short.

At the turn Hagen had a par score of 36 while Farrell had 40, Stimpson 41 and Wattles a 42.

It was coming in that Farrell ran into his worst streak of luck, especially the sixteenth. The tenth hole was halved Hagen and Wattles each taking a four while Stimpson and Farrell had fives.

Hagen took the 11th in par with a three while the other three players took fours. On the twelfth Hagen drove out of bounds which cost him a stroke and holed out in six while his partner turned in a par four giving them the hole, Wattles and Farrell each taking a five.

On the next hole Hagen turned in a birdie three getting away to a good drive and a perfect approach shot and holing a seven foot putt. The other players took fours. Farrell again missing a long putt by inches.

The fourteenth hole, the longest on the course, 600 yards, found Hagen again in trouble. His drive was good but his second shot came to rest in a swampy lie and then brought him to the rough to the right of the green from where he chipped on to the green but was only able to get a six.

Farrell played this hole well and went out in par five making a nice putt from the edge of the green. The college players also took fives.

Going from the longest to the shortest hole of the course Hagen was on the green in one but missed a five foot putt for a birdie 3 and holed out a three. Farrell was just short of the green on his drive and then overshot the hole, taking a four. Stimpson holed out in four while Wattles took a five.

The sixteenth proved the undoing of Farrell. Hagen on his drive got off one of the most perfect balls of the match. He drove across the corner of the boundary and onto the fairway, a magnificent drive of better than 250 yards. Farrell in attempting the same shot twice drove off of bounds his ball falling short. On his third ball he played around but the damage had been done and he was forced to take a nine on the hole. Hagen by virtue of his drive and a nice second shot was on the green in three and holed out for a birdie 4. Stimpson and Wattles each took six their second and third shots falling a little short.

The seventeenth hole was uneventful each taking a four On the eighteenth Hagen got off another long drive and while Farrell was not so strong both holed out with a par four Stimpson took a six.

The cards:

Hagen:
Out	4	4	4	3	4	4	4	5	—36
In	4	3	5	3	4	3	4	4	—37
Farrell:
Out	5	4	4	4	5	5	4	5	—40

Stimpson:

Wattles:
Out	4	4	5	5	5	5	4	4	7—43
In	4	4	5	4	5	5	5	4	—41

After the match Hagen was loud in his praise of the Norwich course. He said that it was one of the best natural courses that he had ever played and that although a new course the greens and fairways were in nice condition and that he thoroughly enjoyed playing over them. He said that there was a wonderful future ahead for the course and that with a few slight changes it would rank second to none.

Farrell also spoke highly of the new course saying that it was beautifully laid out with just enough hazards to make it very interesting and not too many to make it a discouraging course to play. He like Hagen said that the greens and fairways were in good condition and that as the course grows in years it will be one of the best in the country. Both expressed their appreciation of the courtesies extended them by the Norwich golf club and spoke highly of the obvious good work done by Superintendent William Skelly on the course.

Doctor Franklin S. Wilcox was the referee and Johnny Sayles caddied for Hagen while Sam Wilcox was Farrell's caddy.

The mighty Hagen for all his wonderful playing on Sunday failed to set a record for the course or even do it in par. George Falconer, local professional holds the honor with having up the low score for the course at 69, a record which is likely to stand for some time to come. When two of the best American golfers fail to even approach the record to say nothing of breaking par for the course the record made by Mr. Falconer looks pretty good to stand for many years George, although never playing in national tournaments is no mean golfer and local golfers say that he would have made a creditable showing against either Hagen or Farrel in Sunday's match.

WILLIMANTIC BIRDS ARE VICTORIOUS AT WESTERLY

Willimantic sport followers emerged victorious in an early Sunday morning cocking main conducted to the eastward of Westerly in the open in the early hours of Sunday morning in which the vanquished birds had backers from Wakefield, R. I. Some seven or nine bouts were held on location of the one held about two weeks ago, but last Sundays main turned out badly for the birds of the east end of the state, which back along have had quite a winning streak.

First intimation of the main was gained from crowing birds which passed through Westerly streets in the early hours of Sunday morning to crow no more. Among the 150 to 200 followers, included in the number being business, professional men and out and out sports, gathered at the pens were numbered many from both Connecticut and Rhode Island The trip to the scene was made by autos which were parked some distance from the scene of the encounters, and not only was this precaution taken against surprise but lookouts were stationed on surrounding hills with revolvers to signal the approach of uninvited intruders. Hot dogs and other "tonics" were served so that those who attended would not be called away by desire for an early breakfast. It was reported that as some of the favorite birds lost, a considerable quantity of "kale" was also transferred. Taken altogether, it was a great morning for the Black Narragansetts.

CUBS NOSE OUT PHILLIES IN SLUGGING MATCH

DETROIT TAKES OVERTIME GAME FROM RED SOX

DETROIT May 16—(AP)—Gehringer's two-bagger, which Carlyle lost in the sun, scored Bassler, who had singled and ended the 11-inning struggle which Detroit won from Boston today, 6 to 5.

Only sensational fielding saved Holloway from a defeat in the regulation nine innings.

Manush's catch of Carlyle's long fly nipped a Boston rally in the third, while fast fielding by Tavener, O'Rourke and Wingo saved Holloway on other occasions. Collins relieved him in the ninth when the bases were filled and none out. He pitched only to Rigney who singled, scoring two runs. Johns, who finished the game, did not allow a hit. Score:

BULKELEY ADMINISTERS FIRST DEFEAT OF SEASON TO ACADEMY

A shroud of gloom settled over the Academy camp Saturday afternoon when its most hated rival, Bulkeley, was victorious once again over the Academy clan. Bulkeley administered the first defeat to the Academy team Saturday afternoon at Morgan field in New London by a score of 1 to 0. Inability to hit Locke, the Bulkeley pitcher, and erratic base-running was largely responsible for the Academy defeat.

Locke, tantalizing slow ball pitcher with nothing but a sweep out curve, had the Academy players at his mercy and slow-balled them into defeat. Only one hit was garnered off his delivery o this pack and was an easy out Locke to Montall. It was a pitiful exhibition of baseball and was heart-breaking to the Academy supporters. The only other man for the Academy to reach first was Burke who singled off the third base sack in the second inning. Burke was caught stealing.

EDDIE BREWER

The Academy team was powerless to hit the ball out of the infield except on the fly five balls in all going to the outfielders Bulkeley could do little with Jarvis except in the second inning when Briggs tripled to left field and then rode home on Shurt's smash over the second sack. Bulkeley threatened, however, in the seventh inning but brilliant fielding by Eddie Brewer prevented a score. In this inning with one away Jarvis hit Shurts who advanced when Jarvis passed Decked after fanning Gorton for the second out. Collins hit to Tombari who fumbled the ball and all were safe. With the bases full, Locke crashed into the ball and drove out what looked like a sure hit to right center. Eddie Brewer and Johnny Greene started for the ball and Brewer going at top speed took the ball just before it went into the crowd in center field. The ball was labeled for a hit but for the wonderful fielding of Brewer three runs would have scored.

Brewer also executed another brilliant catch in the eighth inning when running at full speed he snagged Gaetano's drive just as it was passed over his head. Brewer was running with his back to the ball and speared it with his gloved hand. This ball had it gotten away from Brewer was good for a double if not a triple. Brewer in the first inning also made a nice running catch.

Ducky Jackson who started in right field for the Academy went out on the first play with a wrenched knee. The first ball hit by Bulkeley went to Jackson who made a pretty catch but in throwing the ball in he stepped in a hole and wrenched his knee.

Jarvis and Locke pitched brilliantly, Locke being inclined to keep the balls close inside with the result that he hit three Academy men. Jarvis had good control and fanned six of the Bulkeley men and hit one and passed one. Locke fanned but three of the Academy players.

What effect this defeat will have on the Academy is uncertain but it ought to show them that in order to be champions they must play with their heads up at all times. With three games scheduled for this week the Academy should be in fine trim to meet Bulkeley again next Saturday when the Orange and Black invades Norwich.

All credit must go to Bulkeley for the fine baseball played Saturday and two more evenly matched teams would be hard to find. Coach Canty of the Bulkeley squad has done wonders with a team that is practically seeing its first season with the exception of Montali and Gaetano.

Ruth's string is twice that of his nearest competitor, Bottomley, with the St Louis Cardinals, who has six Williams of the St. Louis Browns has five as has Fournier of Brooklyn. The leaders:

WESTERLY

BIRD LOVERS ENJOY DAY AT KIMBALL BIRD SANCTUARY

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 16—Field day for the Kimball Bird Sanctuary, the 29-acre preserve of the Rhode Island Audubon society on the shore of Watchaug pond, in the town of Charlestown, R. I., was enjoyed by admirers of wild bird life on Saturday.

From early until late auto parties found their way from the Boston Post road to the society's commodious and beautifully located bungalow on an eminence at the south end of the pond. From this beautifully appointed country home of the late Walter H. Kimball, and deeded to the Audubon society, subject to the life interest of Edward C. Sanford, who quit-claimed to the society on March 21, 1924, the variously named picturesque and well-kept bird trails were followed by the groups of exploring parties up hill and down and 'round thicket and bush winding in and out of the woodland and ever present to the northward through the thinly leaved trees now and then was glimpsed the winding waters of Watchaug pond.

One could not help but take mental note of the various species of birds seen and heard, while Mrs. L. E. Kenyon of Bradford, a member of the Audubon society, jotted down on her note book more than 35 varieties as follows: Tree swallow, robin, bluebird, song sparrow, chapin sparrow, chickey, catbird, chewink, bluejay, barn swallow, bank swallow, crow, Hawke, brown thrush, yellow warbler, oreole, blackbird, phoebebird, chebec, thrasher, cockcock, morning dove, purple finch and others. Mrs. Samuel Brown of Edgewood, R. I., was among the field day visitors, and brought with her as a donation to the sanctuary equipment a winter feeding station with revolving stand.

Dr. Marion G. Weston, of Providence, president of the R. I. Audubon society and a professor at the Rhode Island College of Education in Providence, was active in extending a personal welcome to the visiting strangers and to see that the guest book at the bungalow was signed. Another member of the executive committee present was Mrs. John L. W. Alger, wife of the president of the R. I. College of Education, who was interested in seeing that visitors from different sections of the the surrounding country in attendance became better acquainted. Among needs of the sanctuary, as explained by her was the desire to have an artesian well driven to assure a constant water supply in place of the present well which sometimes went dry, and for the desire to dispose of the motor boat of the association, in place of which their skiff would suffice. Other members of the committee are Edward Sanford, who had vacated his life tenancy of the property in favor of the society; Ralph C. Watrous of Providence, who had a summer home near the pond; Willard H. Bacon, superintendent of public schools of Westerly, and who will be the executive committee member present on the grounds and occupying the bungalow on the nights of the last two weeks of the month of May. Other members of the sanctuary executive committee to have charge later will be Seth G. Jameson and Henry E. Childs, clerk.

Unlike the Birdcraft Sanctuary established by Mabel Osgood Wright at Fairfield, Conn., the 29 acre tract close by the town, Kimball Sanctuary, borders woodland nine miles from Westerly. Its isolation, a mile and a third from the Boston Post road, serves to keep out all curious seekers of picnic tendency giving it an ideal location for the biological and bird students. This time of the year and especially this year, migratory birds are to be found in great numbers during the May month. A planting programme is progressing for trees, plants and shrubs on which birds may feed. Wild flowers abound and even visitors have introduced varieties of plants, foreign to this section, which are growing and thriving.

Known throughout New London and Washington counties as an Odd Fellow, former school teacher, musician and writer of poetry, the death of Benjamin Franklin Greeman, aged 86 years, 3 months, occurred Saturday at his home, 15 George street, Westerly.

Mr. Greenman was born in Charlestown in the Amos Green house, a mile or more south of Zachary's Bridge, on Feb 5, 1840, being the eldest son of William and Sarah (Kenyon) Greenman.

He was educated in the schools at Kingston and then for a period of about 40 years taught in the schools of South Kingstown, Richmond, Charlestown and Westerly. For about 15 years he was principal of the Quarry hill school here. He also served as clerk of the school committee at Charlestown for four years.

Mr. Greenman was one of the oldest members in Narragansett lodge, No. 7, I. O. O. F., of this town. He was initiated on May 30, 1874, and during his membership served twice as noble grand. For 20 consecutive times he was elected to the office of recording secretary, and for 26 consecutives times was installed as financial secretary of the lodge. He held the latter office at the time of his death.

He was also a prominent member of the Broad Street Christian church, which he joined on April 3, 1894. On April 5, 1908, he was elected a deacon of the church and had served in that capacity for the past 18 years.

Mr. Greenman's life was one of service. To whatever office or position he was raised he devoted his earnest efforts, and his many re-elections proved that his work was appreciated.

About 60 years ago he married Miss Sarah A. Allcock of Ashtabula, Ohio, who died June 5, 1916. They had six children, five sons and a daughter, the latter, Mary Ethel, having died in infancy. The five sons survive, they being W. Frank, Charles P., Elisha and Herbert Greenman of Westerly, and Arthur Greenman of Shamokin, Pa. He is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Sarah B. Card of Providence, and seven grandchildren.

The Fox-Ahren pumper of the Westerly Fire department with Westerly Fire Chief George E. Egger and driver Frank Knight responded shortly after 1 o'clock, Saturday night to a telephone call for a fire at Boom bridge. It is thought by some that one of the frequent flashes of lightning set fire to the more recently constructed of two ice houses, the property of Horace G. Lewis of North Stonington. Both Mr. Lewis and his son, Representative Harry B. Lewis, were in Westerly when the fire started but were soon on their way to Boom bridge. An endeavor was made by neighbors to fight the fire with pails of water hoisted to the roof but this met with little success. When the big pumper arrived the suction was kept in the pond by "Dad" Lynch, a nearby resident and under the direction of Chief Egger a line of hose was taken to the roof of the larger ice house and directed against the blazing run way. Later a second stream was taken about the house. The flames which were eating their way across a connecting runway to the larger building were soon extinguished and the pumper returned to the Westerly fire station. Most of the Westerly firemen were in attendance at the Firemen's fair in Johnston, R. I. When the Westerly firemen had left their headquarters word was sent to Engineer Pierce Morrison of the P. S. Barber Hose company in Pawcatuck to stand by and the Pawcatuck department stood in readiness to respond to any fire call in Westerly.

The icehouse burned was leased to the Westerly Ice company, Max Wein, proprietor. The house had a capacity for 300 tons and was about three-quarters full. The larger contained about 1,000 tons and the loss may amount to $800 or $900 partly covered by insurance. The burned house was built two or three years ago by Aniello Matarese.

Albert Bailey, colored, resident of New London and in the employ of the New Haven Dairy Ice Cream company was taken into custody in Westerly on Friday night by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown. On a complaint of larceny of ice cream consigned to Vars Brothers of Westerly, an embezzlement of which had been going on for some time amounting to $300, a plea of guilty was entered for him. He was found guilty by Judge Oliver H. Williams in a special session of Third District court on Saturday and sentenced to three months in jail and the payment of $100 fine and costs.

QUALITY AT LOW COST

Good Morning!

The Edward Chappell Co. Speaking

As you know, it has become something of a practice in Norwich to wait for the lowest prices in the coal market before filling bins for future needs. For nearly 90 years we have made an annual study of this subject, and figures show that for many years we have, with remarkable precision, notified our customers of the best and cheapest time to order coal.

We believe now is the time to fill your bins for next winter. The market appears to be as low as it will go with the added advantage to you that spring and summer coal shipments are cleaner and drier than any other time of the year.

As usual we recommend the Famous Reading Anthracite for which we are sole agents, also our selected Wilkesbarre Coal, and particularly we recommend Buckwheat size anthracite for home use. We have some interesting facts on this economical coal that are yours for the asking.

We sell many kinds of coal but GIVE one kind of service.

God's Remembrance

There came a whisper from the night to me
Like music of the sea, a mighty breath
From out the valley's dewy mouth, and Death
Shook his lean bones, and every colored tree
Wept in the fog of morning. From the town
Of nests among the branches one old crow
With gaps upon his wings flew far away.
And, thinking of the golden summer glow,
I heard a blackbird whistle half his lay
Among the spinning leaves that slanted down.
And I who am a thought of God's now long
Forgotten in His mind, and desolate
With other dreams long over, as a gate
Singing upon the wind the anvil song,
Sang of the Spring when first He dreamt of me
In that old town all hills and signs that creak:—
And He remembered me as something far
In old imaginations, something weak
With distance, like a little sparkling star
Drowned in the lavender of evening sea.
—Francis Ledwidge.

Shadow-Evidence

Swift o'er the sunny grass,
I saw a shadow pass
With subtle charm,—
So quick, so full of life,
With thrilling joy so rife,
I started last, unknown,
My step,—ere it was flown—
Had done its harm.

Why look up to the bine?
The bird was gone, I knew,
Far out of sight,
Steady and keen of wing,
The slight, impassioned thing
Intent on a goal unknown,
Had held its course alone
In silent flight.

Dear little bird, and fleet,
Winging down at my feet
Shadow for song;
More sure I am of thee—
Unseen, unheard by me—
Than of some things felt and known,
And guarded as my own.
All my life long.
—Mary Mapes Dodge.

A navy pigeon, lost at sea more than a year and a half ago, turned in recently in a loft at Coco Sola, Canal Zone, and reported for duty. Examination showed that the bird's wings had been closely clipped, probably when it was forced down by a rain storm and captured by a fancier who attempted to lure it from its navy allegiance. As soon as the clipped feathers had molted and a new crop grew out, the pigeon took wing for its home loft.

A little-known winter sport that takes place among the Green mountain hills is the friendly rivalry of logging teamsters to bring the largest load through the snow. Of the teamsters drawing logs to the veneer mill at North Troy, Lemie Carter holds the record of drawing 2,382 feet of hardwood weighing 14 and a half tons with one pair of horses. George Taylor was second with 2,292 feet of hardwood logs. When weather conditions are favorable these teamsters make two trips to the log piles daily, with a total distance of 24 miles.

Once the property of an unhappy queen of France, the consort of Louis XV, a quaint old seal for the marking of love letters is now owned by Miss Clara B. Fishpaugh, of Cockeysville, Md. A mother-of-pearl handle holds a framework of gilded metal. Within the frame is a wheel which turns freely, and on the wheel are placed six different semi-precious stones, with the seals cut in them. The lady using the seal might mark her letter with the figure of a dove bearing a note in its beak and the words. Answer quickly. This is cut in the amethyst facet. Or, if she chose to use the bloodstone, she would imprint the figure of a bird cage, from which the bird is escaping, and the warning that, Who neglects me loses me.

STANDARD ZONING ENABLING ACT IS USED BY 17 STATES

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—Seventeen states have adapted the standard zoning enabling act drawn up by the bureau of standards for the guidance of municipalities in preparing regulations for the use of lands.

Other states are expected to concur in the plan, described as permitting zoning without injustice or violation of property rights.

As an illustration of the progress along these lines, the bureau points to the fact that in September, 1921, only 44 cities and towns, with less than 10,000,000 inhabitants, had adopted zoning regulations.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Johnny Chuck is in a Bad Temper

Bad temper ne'er will gain a thing,
But only mere misfortune bring.
—Old Mother West Wind.

Old Mother West Wind came down very early in the morning from the Purple Hills. Over her shoulder she carried her big bag in which were her children, the Merry Little Breezes. Down across the Old Pasture came Old Mother West Wind, intending to open up her bag and shake out the Merry Little Breezes to play on the Green Meadows. As she came hurrying down a twisting little path she heard such a chattering and clattering of teeth and growling that she just had to stop to find out what it meant. Off at one side she discovered a pile of sand she never had seen there before.

"Some one has been digging here since I was this way," said Old Mother West Wind to herself, and looked to see what kind of a hole that sand had come from. Then she saw Johnny Chuck, and it was Johnny who was making all that noise. "My, my, my, Johnny Chuck, what a bad temper you are in," exclaimed Old Mother West Wind. "What under the sun is the matter with you? And why are you up here?"

At that last question Johnny Chuck flew into such a temper that it really wasn't at all nice to see. He kicked with his hind feet and sent the sand flying in all directions. Never before had Old Mother West Wind seen him in such a temper. She was quite shocked, but she was also curious. So she repeated her question: "What are you doing up here, Johnny Chuck?"

"Can't you see what I'm doing up here?" retorted Johnny. "I'm getting madder every minute."

"I can see that," replied Old Mother West Wind, "but what I can't see is what you are mad about."

"I'm getting madder every minute," replied Johnny Chuck, "because I don't know where I am, and I don't know how to find out where I am."

Old Mother West Wind nearly dropped her bag containing the Merry Little Breezes. "You don't know where you are!" she exclaimed, looking as if she really didn't believe Johnny Chuck meant it.

"No, I don't know where I am," snapped Johnny.

"How funny!" exclaimed Old Mother West Wind.

He kicked with his hind feet and sent the sand flying in all directions

At that, Johnny Chuck almost had a fit. He was so mad that he stuttered when he tried to talk. "F-f-f-f-funny!" he exclaimed. "I-d-d-d-don't see anything f-f-f-funny about it."

At that Old Mother West Wind laughed right out. "If you don't know where you are, how under the sun did you get here?" she said. "Did you walk here in your sleep?"

You should have seen Johnny Chuck then. Still, on second thought, I guess perhaps it's just as well you didn't see Johnny Chuck then. He didn't present a pretty picture at all. You know, people in a temper never do. "Walk here!" he sputtered. "Walk here! I was brought here."

At that Old Mother West Wind's eyes opened wider than ever. "Now, who under the sun could have brought you here?" she asked.

Johnny Chuck ground his teeth "Farmer Brown's Boy," growled Johnny. "Farmer Brown's Boy brought me here, and I don't even know where the Green Meadows are, to say nothing of the Old Orchard."

"You're in the Old Pasture," said Old Mother West Wind. "And I tell you, Johnny Chuck, there are lots of worse places than the Old Pasture."

"Oh," said Johnny, "is that where I am?"

JEWETT CITY

REV. S. A. ICIEK SPEAKER AT ANNIVERSARY MEETING

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, May 17—The 26th anniversary of the founding of the Society of Polish Czackowians under the protection of St. Casmir, and also the 155th anniversary of the arrival on American soil of the great warrior for freedom, Thaddeus Kosciuszko, was celebrated by the St. Casmir society here today. At two o'clock 700 men, women and children accompanied by three bands and led by Joseph Glowacki, as marshal, all carrying flags or banners, marched through the streets and to the park where the outdoor exercises were held. Here the American national anthem was played and the children sang.

Attorney Richard Dudkowski presided as master of ceremonies and introduced Rev. J. J. McCabe, who in turn introduced Rev. S. A. Icick, pastor of St. Joseph's church in Norwich, who delivered a most eloquent speech in English.

Father Icick said in substance:

One of the champions of America's independence was Thadeus Kosciuszko, a young Polish officer, who came here in October 1776. He was born in the eastern provinces of Poland, received his military training in the Cadet school in Warsaw and was later sent to Paris to complete his training as an engineer and artillery officer. When presented to General Washington who asked him what he could do, the Polish officer replied: "Try me." He soon proved his ability and was placed in charge of a great part of the engineering work of the Colonial Army. He planned the defenses and fortifications at the battle of Saratoga which resulted in the capture of the British army under General Burgoyne. West Point, the great military academy was at one time a fortress mapped and surveyed by General Kosciuszko. A beautiful monument was erected there to the memory of the great general and immortal champion of Poland's and America's struggle for independence. His life serves as an example and inspiration to every young officer.

For Kosciuszko was not only a valiant soldier, a capable general but he was a true patriot and lover of freedom who did not seek wealth or popularity, but rather justice and liberty for the oppressed and downtrodden people of his own country and the struggling American colonists.

Another Polish patriot who came here at that time was Count Casimir Pulaski, dashing cavalry leader. He is called the "father of American cavalry." He was commissioned by General Washington to organize the cavalry forces of the Continents army and a great part of his activity was confined to the southern states. His gallantry and skill were well demonstrated at the battle of Brandywine and he died a soldier's death leading a cavalry charge at the battle of Savannah. Pulaski was one of the first foreigners with unpronounceable name who gave not only their services but their lives for American's independence.

Such men as Kosciuszko Pulaski, Lafayette, Von Steuben and many others have, so to say, bought the right and privilege for their countrymen and all liberty-loving people, to come to the hospitable land of America, to live among the free and the brave, to enjoy its wonderful opportunities far from the war-ridden and downtrodden countries of imperial Europe.

America has well repaid her debt of gratitude to all those who came to her rescue in the hour of need. To France, who sent Lafayette and De Grasse and was our greatest ally, we have sent General Pershing with our army and a navy the likes of which never before crossed the briny deep. To America's man power and her tremendous resources that saved not only France, but all other European countries from German dominion. It was American generosity and charity that tied the wounds of bleeding Europe, that clothed the naked, cured the sick and fed the starving millions of European widows and orphans. Poland was amply repaid for her share in gaining American independence. Just as Kosciuszko and Pulaski came to struggle for America's Independence, the Kosciuszko Escadrille composed of some of America's finest manhood, some of her ablest and bravest aviators, went to Poland to help her stem the tide of Bolshevik invasion and to regain her liberty. Just as Pulaski gave his life in the battle of Savannah, Lieut. Graves and other American aviators gave their lives for the independence of Poland. The names of the American heroes, of the American doctors, of American nurses and of the American relief organization under Herbert Hoover, will be honored in Poland just as we honor the names of Kosciuszko and Pulaski in America.

These bonds of friendship between Poland and America going back to the time of America's struggle for independence have been greatly strengthened by the millions of Polish immigrants who came to the hospitable shores of this great republic.

Following Father Icick's address the procession returned to the Polish-American hall where the following program was presented:

Selection by band; school children's choir; American national anthem; school children's Polish national anthem; history of the society, written by Marcin Misiaszek; recitation, Polie Jy Drogs, Stanislawa Garska; address, Rev. J. J. McCabe; song, Chopin choir; recitation, Dzien Dobry, Stefania Misiaszek; duet, piano and violin, Stef. and Hel. Glowacka; recitation, Co Kocham Marja Rosol; recitation, Thadeus Kosciuszko, Bronislaw Lupa; address, Mr. Wlech; Lowell, Mass., band, selection, during the playing a collection was taken up for the Kosciuszko monument fund); song, Chopin choir; recitation, Ziemia Rodzinna, Natalia Malek; vocal duet, Messrs. Haricin and Pilczuk of Norwich; song, Chopin choir; address, Rev. S. A. Icick, Norwich; expression of thanks to organizations and societies for taking active part in the meeting, also to speakers and and Mr. Ballou for the giving of the use of his hall to this organization for the past 20 years.

Refreshments were served by the women. Priests present other than those mentioned were Rev. Fr. Topor, curate of St. Joseph's church, Norwich and Rev. Paul Barelewski, pastor of St. Joseph's church, Willimantic. Polish societies from Moosup, Norwich, Willimantic and Jewett City participated in the parade. The bands were Brehm's from Norwich and the two others from Webster, Mass., and Anthony, R. I.

The local order was founded January 14, 1906, by two of the substantial Polish men, Joseph Dudkowski, John Galuszka and Frank Baranowski. The first meeting was held in Slater's hall with twenty-three charter members. The first president was Joseph Dudkowski, vice president, John Galuszka, secretary, Stanley Kaminskiewicz, treasurer, Vladimir Kaminskiewicz; trustees, John Pedzlaniski, Stanley Ambor, Marshal Vladimir Sabiel; sick committee, Joseph Kapica and Michael Bredacki.

The object of the society was to disseminate the spirit of unity, cooperation and charity, to visit and aid the unfortunate members in sickness, to bury the dead as a special duty, the dissemination of learning and in particular the knowledge of the history of Poland. It was decided to limit the age of membership from 18 to 50. The assistance in case of sickness is seven dollars a week and the dead benefit one hundred and ten dollars. Besides this each member contributes one dollar to the widow. The society decided to receive both Poles and Lithuanians of good moral character as members. The society is incorporated under the laws of Connecticut. Having a well disposed superintendent in the person of Mr. Bailey of the Slater company he kindly gave the use of the Slater hall on Factory hill for meetings and entertainments. The society owes him a debt of gratitude.

When plans were made for building the new St. Mary's church, the Polish people being a considerable part of the congregation and having services and sermons in their own language, gave fifty dollars to the building fund. Later they donated the beautiful altar and statue of St. Patrick to the church. During the late war Liberty bonds of various issues were purchased from the society's treasury. April 6, 1919 Vojciech Malek placed before the society the idea of the purchase of the new Polish American Corporation building.

Other work done was the gathering of funds for the Polish Red Cross and the orphans of Siberia. It was decided to open an evening school for children to learn Polish lessons. The school was placed under the name of Henry Sienkiewicz, a noted Polish author, particularly as the writer of Quo Vadis. The officers of 1926 are president, Peter Kosial; vice president, Vladislaus Kapanskiewicz; financial secretary Vladislaus Jaruszako; corresponding secretary, Michal Bodnich; treasurer, Michal Sulinski; trustees Martin Misiaszk; Tioffl Serreczynski; sick committee, John Dynia and Joseph Kosul.

Mrs. G. H. Prior goes today (Monday) to Clayville, Pa., to attend a branch King's Daughters' convention. She gives an address, explains the pictures and installs the officers. On Friday she speaks at a county meeting in Pittsburg, Pa.

URGES MILERS TO RUN WHILE THEY ARE STRONG

BOSTON, May 16 (AP)—A truism of foot-running is "to make fast time, do your running while you are strong," in the opinion of Jack Ryder, Boston college track coach.

"The participants in most one-mile races hold back and decline to run a genuine mile race," he said, in discussing this competitive feature. "A lull occurs after the first quarter. It would seem by mutual assent, lasting until the final quarter.

"This happened last May at Philadelphia when Ellsworth C. Haggerty of Harvard, won the I. C. A. A. A. A. one-mile championship in the time of 4.25 7-10. This was good generalship on his part because, being primarily a fast 660-yard man, he could wisely defer the issue until approaching the finish. But for the runner who feels he is properly classified by the designation of miler, to tolerate such a loafing race simply means he is loath to take his medicine—he refuses to run an ideal one-mile race.

"It is too early at this writing to estimate whether an ideal mile contest will develop at the intercollegiate competition May 29, when the mile will be run for the fiftieth time in this meet.

"The first ideal one-mile race I ever witnessed was run on the old Holmes field track in Cambridge in August, 1893. The great Tommy Conneff was the scratch man in a one-mile handicap and won. He ran the first half-mile in two minutes flat. The total time for the mile was 4.17 3-5. He ran as fast as he could while he could.

"In 1876, the I. C. A. A. A. A. mile was won in time slightly under five minutes. Now until more than 50 years later—1927—was the race run in four minutes and 30 seconds. Then came John Paul Jones of Cornell, who in 1913 broke the record which still stands, by running the mile in 4.14 2-5. That was an average of two and one-half inches less than seven yards per second. Those inches in the mile mean three seconds in time.

"There is no athletic event which demands such excellence of physical condition as the one-mile run, when run correctly. There is no rest, no chance for recuperation. The great Conneff when asked how he felt while running a hard one-mile race, described his feelings like this: 'At the quarter I am tired: at the half I am weak, and at the three-quarters I am dead to the world.'"

MILLIONS ARE REQUIRED TO ENDOW PURE SCIENCE

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—A committee of eminent statesmen and scientists believes pure science is on the skids and that 20 million dollars are needed to endow its cause for the future.

This committee, headed by Herbert Hoover, announces a three million dollar start in what it calls the salvation of industry's huge debt to science. The industrial structure of the world today has emerged from the pure science laboratories of yesterday, these men say, and the supreme question for generations to come is how the progress of research in pure science can best be stimulated.

A National Research Endowment of $20,000,000 yielding an annual income of $2,000,000 directed by the National Academy of Sciences, is the means proposed. The committee plans to establish fellowships for research at various American universities, which would supplement the Carnegie, Rockefeller and other foundations in making opportunities for pure scientific study sufficiently attractive to compete with the high salaries and excellent equipment offered in applied science laboratories of the American industries.

Leaders in industry have been approached with such arguments as this, voiced by Dr. Robert Millikan of the Norman Bridge laboratories:

"Galileo's discovery that force is measured by the product of mass by acceleration made the construction of the modern dynamic engines possible, but we stress the value of the method rather than the result.

"It was two centuries before it found any particular application at all, but during that period it reshaped philosophy and reshaped religion, for through it mankind began to know a God not of caprice and whim, but a God who works through law.

"Through it we have learned to read the story of the geological evolution of the earth, of the evolution of life on the earth, of human, history and civilization, of the stars themselves and even of the elements of which the stars are made."

EXCAVATIONS DISCLOSE ANCIENT FILIPINO CULTURE

MANILA, P. I., May 16. (AP)—Discoveries showing the customs and culture of the Filipines of 700 years ago have been made in the excavations for the Novaliches Dam. They include old pits of pottery of curious design, weapons, beads, bits of opal, old gold, jade agate and glazed utensils.

Prof. H. O. Beyer, ethnologist and anthropologist of the University of the Philippines, said that the theory that the Filipines in Pre-Spanish times had a high degree of culture was again confirmed by the discoveries.

CULVER CITY, Cal., May 16 (AP)—Animals give Lillian Gish many ideas for her work before the motion picture camera.

Often when she is playing a scene in which the character is supposed to be very happy she may be seen spinning round on her feet. She does it because her dog reacts the same way to the same emotion.

"The means of showing emotion are limited on the screen," she said. "We have only facial expression and gestures. Therefore, the simplest way of expressing anything is the natural way. We must show what we mean in the elemental way—in the animal way—since we can understand animals although they do not talk to us. They have a great gift of naturalness."

SPRING IS PIGEON RACING TIME TO THIS INLAND CTY

MOLINE, Ill., May 16 (AP)—To the 7,000 residents of this vicinity of Belgian descent, the arrival of spring means that pigeon racing time is here again.

Every Sunday in the summer time some of the four pigeon clubs here conduct races, varying from 18 to 768 miles. Last summer the races were started from eastern cities. This summer the birds will be taken to western cities to begin their homeward races.

Several thousand birds have had practical flights of five to fifty miles.

A winner in a long flight is regarded by the pigeon lovers much as horsemen view the victor at a Kentucky Derby. Some of the pigeons develop a speed as high as a mile a minute, and the average time ranges from 40 to 45 miles an hour. Saturday evening the trucks carrying the birds for short races leave Moline, releasing the pigeons about seven a. m. Sunday. For longer flights they are taken to the starting point by train. The longest flight planned for this year starts at Amarillo, Texas.

Despite the fact that hundreds of pigeons participate in every race, a bird is seldom lost.

Some men boast that they can't be fooled twice in the same way, but there are lots of other ways.

PLUMBERS AND PAINTERS OUT FOR INCREASE TO $1.15

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 16—With the strike of the journeymen carpenters having been settled by the granting of an hourly wage of $1.15; the settlement of the strike of weavers at the Bloom silk mill by the company removing from New London, two more strikes are scheduled to take place this month unless a demand for an increase in wages is granted. The two bodies of journeymen who seek to obtain more money are the painters and plumbers. The plumbers' wage agreement with the masters will expire the 24th inst., and unless the journeymen receive $1.15 per hour they declare that they will strike. The matter appears to be firm in their refusal to grant the increase. The journeymen painters' working schedule will expire the latter part of the month and they threaten to strike unless they receive the same compensation as has been granted the carpenters.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lyceum Theatre, New London

It is generally agreed on Broadway, that nobody knows more about producing farces than Bertram Harrison. Practically the whole of his very brilliant career has been devoted to putting on farces for other men who reaped the profits therefrom. For instance, on the program of every successful Al Woods's farce—a thing which became a byword in the show business—you will find the legend, "Staged by Bertram Harrison."

At the Lyceum theatre, New London, on Thursday, May 20th, Mr. Harrison will present his first venture as a producing manager. Having spent so many years making money for other directors, he has at last decided to make a little for himself, and so on that date a new farce called "I Can't Bear It" will be exhibited under the management as well as the direction of Mr. Harrison himself.

"I Can't Bear It" was written by Russell Medcraft and Norma Mitchell, based on a play by Frank Bellamy and Lawton Mackall. Inasmuch as Mr. Medcraft and Miss Mitchell also wrote "The Cradle Snatchers" which has had one of the most successful runs of this season on Broadway, there seems to be a reasonably reliable promise that "I Can't Bear It" will be a genuinely funny article.

The idea on which the play is founded has the rare and desirable quality of being unhackneyed. What would you do if an eccentric millionaire offered a prize of two million dollars for the first baby born after the date of the offer?

That is exactly the problem that occupies the characters in this play. Out of their actions and reactions there ensues a most laughable and rapid series of complications. In form "I Can't Bear It" belongs to the type of farce in which a chase—the pursuit or competition for some particular thing—constitutes the skeleton of the action. The "chase" or "pursuit" type of farce is the most invariably successful in this particular department of theatredom.

Broadway Theater

That The Ship of Souls, his last piece of work, was his best, was the opinion expressed by Emerson Hough, the famous author, before his death, over a year ago.

He felt that it was much better than his earlier works, and even surpassed the vastly praised Covered Wagon, which ran as a picture in the same years on Broadway.

"The Ship of Souls" will make a much better picture, he is said to have remarked. "It has a far more powerful theme than the 'Covered Wagon,' the characters are more vital, and the background is just as impressive. Furthermore, I gave even more care to the developing of plot and sequence. The novel is by far the best of my work. I am eager to see the picture as associate exhibitors will make it."

Mr. Hough, sadly did not live to see the picture as associated exhibitors made it, but many of his admirers will have that opportunity when the picture comes to the Broadway theater starting today.

He has laid his scenes in the north country this time, among the eternal snows where men go mad in the frackless wastes and solitudes.

Hough is probably the most popular outdoor writer and a prolific author of western and northern novels North of 36 is another of his famous novels.

The Ship of Souls, directed by Charles Miller and produced by Max O. Miller, carries an imposing cast headed by Irene Rich and Bert Lytell.

Others of the cast are Gertrude Astor, Earl Metcalf, Ines Seabury, Cyril Chadwick, Jean Perry, Pete Mauer, W. J. Miller, and Captain Jack Irwin, U. S. A.

A comedy and new Kinograms make up the balance of the bill.

Palace Theater

Harold Lloyd takes more physical chances than any other star in motion pictures. While the bespectacled comedian is not rated the daredevil some of the he-men of filmdom profess to be, nevertheless, when it comes to risking his life and limbs before the camera, Lloyd undoubtedly takes the crown.

His latest comedy production, For Heaven's Sake!—the first to be released under the Paramount—goes a long way to bear this statement out. Not once, but at least half a dozen times, he performs "stunts" that most stars would have intrusted to a "double". In fact, his courage and grit during the making of this film amazed even his co-workers, who are well aware of his fearless spirit.

However, this business of defying death time after time is not without its penalties. Scarcely a picture goes by in which Lloyd does not suffer some injury. In Old Shy he was almost killed when the nozzle of a fire hose struck and knocked him off a fire truck hitting a forty-mile-an-hour clip through the streets of Culver City. For weeks after he finished making Safety Last, he had to doctor his right shoulder which was thrown out of socket when he performed one of his hazardous athletic stunts before the camera. And in The Freshman, he endured more punishment than the average football star undergoes in a tough season.

Perfect physical condition alone permits Lloyd to withstand the rigors of comedy making as exemplified by himself. A daily regime of setting-up exercises, supplemented by handball, swimming and golf—his three favorite athletic sports—keep him in constant top-notch trim.

Bread Theater

Some of the most lavish creations in womens' wearing apparel ever presented are seen in the fashion show sequence of Monte Carlo, Christy Cabanne's comedy production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer now on the screen at the Bread theater, with Lew Cody and Gertrude Olmsted in the leading roles.

The dazzling display is enhanced by true-color photography, which shows all of the rich fabrics in their actual tints.

Every garment shown in the fashion show is an original design by Kathleen Kay, Maude Marsh and Andre-Ani of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. They were made exclusively for this picture and will never be seen again, for when the picture was finished the gowns were taken apart for the materials and the designs destroyed.

Moonlight, Enchantment, Starlight, Spirit of the Nile, the Garter Dress, Spanish Rose, Desire are the names given some of the bizarre and exotic creations which will make every woman's heart trip an extra beat or two.

NOTED CONDUCTOR SAYS NO MUSICAL CENTER LIKE U. S.

BERLIN, May 16 (AP)—No other musical center can match America and especially New York, insofar as technical perfection of the rendition is concerned, declared Wilhelm Furtwaengler, just returned from his second season as guest conductor of the New York Philharmonic Society.

"In the course of the last few years", Herr Furtwaengler, said, "the musical life in America has so developed in intensity and grandeur of conception that it cannot be compared with any other musical center.

"There is a possible source of danger in the fact that the supply of musicians is greater than the demand. That may interfere with the steadiness and unity of development, but I believe that the sound instincts of the American public will overcome this danger. After all, the advantage America enjoys of being able to offer the best—both the best orchestras and the best soloists—is to great to need further comment."

Zoo Thrives on Can Milk

LONDON, May 16 (AP)—Animals at the London Zoo thrive on canned milk, and prefer it to fresh now that they have cultivated a taste for it.

In its annual report the Zoological society said "the complete replacement of fresh milk by condense milk has notably reduced tuberculosis."

"BOUNCING WALLS" HELPED TO PREVENT SPEEDWAY DEATHS

INDIANAPOLIS, May 16 (AP)—"Bouncing walls" and hub-high guard rails have been instrumental in preventing serious accidents in 500-mile races at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway in the last six years.

Pronounced the most dangerous speedway in the world by drivers, the course has been singularly free of fatal accidents since 1919, when two drivers were killed. The concrete walls are so constructed that when a car crashes into them, it is bounced back onto the track in such a fashion that it seldom overturns. The improvements to the course were made after 1919.

On the long straightaways, the guard rails are hub-high, so that when a car slashes into them they hit at the center of gravity and rarely are upset.

Where the faded flower shall freshen,
Freshen never more to fade;
Where the shaded sky shall brighten,
Brighten never more to shade:
Where the moon shall wake in gladness
And the moon the joy prolong;
Where the daylight dies in gladness
Mid the burst of holy song
We shall meet on yonder shore
With the loved one gone on before.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, May 16—(By)—Return of sterling exchange to gold parity for the first time since 1914, following within a few days the termination of the British general strike, was the most important development in this week's financial and commodity markets. Of only slightly less interest, however, was the sensational collapse of the Latin currencies. French francs falling to a new low record for all time at 3.01 1-2 cents, while Italian lire broke over half a cent to 3.36 cents and then rallied slightly.

Except for a renewal of selling pressure against the motor shares, several of which tumbled to new low prices for the year, the stock market was dull and uninteresting. The average of 20 leading industrials lost about 2 points on the week, but the railroad average showed little change.

Indications of a strong underlying investment demand were seen, however, in the establishment of a new high level for the year by the bond averages, and the prompt oversubscription of several big offerings, the largest of which, the $40,000,000 New England Telephone and Telegraph issue, bore a coupon rate of only 4 1-2 per cent.

Commodity markets also pointed downward, with weather reports that determining factor in the day to day movement. Active wheat futures dropped 1 1-2 to nearly 3 cents a bushel. Cotton drifted lower in relatively dull trading. Coffee prices were firmer.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Little Lost Pup

He was lost!—not a shade of doubt of that;
For he never barked at a slinking cat,
But stood in the square where the wind blew raw
With a drooping ear and a trembling paw
And a mournful look in his pleading eye
And a plaintive sniff at a passer-by
That bereed as plain as a tongue could sue,
"O mister! please, may I follow you?"

A lorn wee waif of a tawny brown
Adrift in the roar of a heedless town
Oh, the saddest of sights in a world of sin
Is a lost little pup with his tail tucked in!
Well, he won my heart (for I set great store
On my own red Rute—who is here no more.)
so I whistled clear, and he trotted up,
And who so glad as that small lost pup!

Now he shares my board, and he owns my bed,
And he fairly shouts when he hears my tread.
Then, if things go wrong, as they sometimes do,
And the world is cold and I'm feeling blue,
He asserts his right to assuage my woes,
With warm red tongue and a nice cold nose.
And a silky head on my arm or knee
And a paw as soft as a paw can be.

When we rove the woods for a league about
He's as full of pranks as a school let out:
For he romps and frisks like a three-months colt,
And he runs me down like a thunderbolt.
Oh, the liltheat of sights in the world so fair
Is a gay little pup with his tail in the air!

—Unidentified.

Love o' the Wind

I am a flame that leaps in air.
And do you think to hold me there
Upon your hearth of love?

I am the wind's, not yours at all—
The stars, the hills, the wide skies call—
I run through open ways.

To keep me, hold me for your own
Between these walls of wood and stone
I laugh at bonds like these!

This hand that thinks with bolts and bars
To keep me from my path of stars—
I burn it to the bone!

Quick, Wind, I come! The brittle grass
Shall turn to ashes as I pass;
Quick, Wind, I come, I come!
—Abrigail W. Gresson in New York Times.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Several days ago Uncle Jed received through the mail a prize book which he had sent to a Wide Awake for an exceptionally well written and composed letter. It came back because the writer did not give her address correctly. She was "unknown" to the postmaster in the village to whom the book was sent, as he was unable to locate any girl by the name given in his territory. This happens frequently and as a result some of the prize letter writers do not get their books.

If is no doubt disappointing to the boys and girls who see their names listed as winners and do not receive their prize books. The books are mailed out to the addresses given in the letters and if they are not received it is the fault of the winners in not giving their full addresses. For instance simply giving an address as "Willimantic," or "New London" is not sufficient. The name of the street on which the writer lives, also the number of the house, or the R. F. D. number and box number should also be given and be written plainly.

Insufficient addresses mean delay in the delivery of books, and also means trouble for the postmaster and his carriers. They do the best they can to get the books to the person named and address given but they can't be expected to know every girl and boy in the territory which they serve. Simply signing yourself as "John Sullivan, Willimantic," or Mary somebody else, New London, is not enough to insure delivery of your prize book. There may be a dozen names just like yours and all these young people may live in your city or town and of course the postman can't tell for just what "John Sullivan" the book is intended for.

Write as plainly as you can, write only on one side of the paper, sign your complete name and your complete address.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY THE WIDE AWAKES

Preserving Our Forest

Dear Uncle Jed: As I was hiking a few days ago I saw how our forests were being wasted. I was climbing a hill when I saw a beautiful cedar tree half sawed, half chopped, lying on the ground. That tree was left there to decay. Undoubtedly the person who felled that tree did not think of the scarcity of cedar. Undoubtedly that person did not realize that he was destroying the woods that God put on earth, for comfort and pleasure of man. That cedar tree might be sawed into lengths for cordwood or it might become or be part of a beautiful cedar chest that are so prized so much nowadays. But none of these things would happen now for that tree had been wasted.

Passing farther on I came upon a clump of white birch trees. In many poems birch trees are described as tall, slim, graceful, silvery, soft, white and smooth. But these were not smooth, soft, white or tall. On several were scars and cuts and ugly places where bark had been torn off. On one or two an axe or hatchet had been applied and cut half through the tree. The other half of the job had been finished by bending the tree so as to break it down.

These are samples of the handiwork of thoughtless people. There are many other things which destroy our forests such as gypsy moths, severe storms, floods, and

STEEL AND TILE TESTED UNDER PRESSURE OF FIRE

CHICAGO, May 16 (AP)—The qualities of steel and tile building materials to withstand fire under the same pressure to which they are subjected in a burning building are being tested for the first time at the Underwriters laboratories here.

The laboratories have frequently tested building materials for their ability to withstand heat but not until now has a means been perfected to test building materials for imperviousness to prolonged heat under a load such as they carry as part of the walls of a building.

The laboratory workers are building a brick wall in a huge steel frame supported by girders, with a sill resting on hydraulic jacks. At the same time that the wall is subjected to furnace heat the jacks put pressure on the structure. Some methods and materials of construction might make a wall which pressure could not budge under normal conditions, but which would wilt under pressure when it is subjected to fire.

Because there has been no way to test building materials simultaneously for resistance to heat and pressure, previous fire tests have been regarded as inconclusive.

FIRST SOLEMN MASS IS SUNG BY REV. CHARLES H. CORCORAN

There was a note of triumph and rejoicing running through all the solemnity of the services at St. Patrick's church Sunday and the thought of each was "Called to God;" for the supreme earthly honor had come to a parish boy, so that the great congregation assembled at 10.30 was as one large family. It was the first solemn high mass sung by Charles H. Corcoran, son of Mrs. Lila Fitch Corcoran and the late Charles W. Corcoran, ordained on Ascensio nThursday by Auxiliary Bishop Maurice F. McAuliffe, at St. Joseph's cathedral, Hartford.

His friends have known the young levite through his childhood and unblemished young manhood, recognizing his fitness for his stupendous honor, by reason of his long period of preparation, his personality, the worth which all feel sure he will show in his high calling. He proved to have an excellent singing voice Sunday. Assisting him as deacon was Rev. John J. Reilly, the sub-deacon being Rev. John Malley, of Taftville, and the master of ceremonies Rev. William Topor, of St. Joseph's church. The parish rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May occupied his throne in the sanctuary, Rev. Myles P. Galvin was arch-priest.

The Sisters of the parish convent and the members of the Altar society had adorned the three altars with lilies and pale pink roses and carnations, tall palms being set about the sanctuary.

The magnificence of the great auditory lends itself to the beauty of such a service. In special pews were Rev. Father Corcoran's mother, sisters and other relatives, a large representation of White Cross council, K. of C., friends and acquaintances from out of town. The ushers were John P. Corcoran, a relative of the newly ordained priest, John R. Tarrant, William J. McKnight and Thaddeus Leshy.

The organist, Henry J. LaFontaine had prepared an inspiring programme of festival music admirably interpreted by the volunteer choir. At the offertory, Mr. LaFontaine sang Ave Maria in a most melodious setting by Therese del Riego. The programme included;

Vidi Aquam, Mass in honor of St. Thomas, Kyrie, Gloria and Credo, by Silver; offertory, Ave Maria, del Riego. Mass in honor St. Philip Neri, Sanctus, Benedictus and Agnus Dei, Silver; Veni Creator, Werner, male quartet. Benediction, O Salutaris and Tantum Ergo, Mauro Cottone; divine Praises, male chorus; Laudate Dominum; O Lord, I Am Not Worthy, chorus.

The soloists were: Roderick F. Sullivan, John Kelly, Walter LaFontaine and Henry LaFontaine.

Preceding mass the following organ numbers were played: Processional March, Flagler; Improvisation, McDowell; Fugbetta, Lemare.

Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament followed the mass, and during this period of the services Father Galvin read the invocation to the Holy Ghost. Benediction was given by Father Corcoran.

Rev. Father Reilly's sermon was from the text, "I have fond him whom my soul loveth; I have held him; and I will not yet him go." His theme, treated with characteristic eloquence and convincing logic, was the Catholic priesthood—grollous, godlike, a bit of heaven on this earth, in its sublimity its beauty, its wonderful manifestation of the lavish gifts of the Almighty.

Affectionately and with great delicacy the speaker referred to the young candidate upon whom Heaven had bestowed such overwhelming blessing, touching upon his childhood, during which his inclinations and choice were given a bent by the training, example and influence of a good mother, the secret longing of the soul for God strengthened, until the purling of the ways was reached and the young man's life was abandoned to Christ. Briefly the speaker sketched the long and faithful and anxious period of preparation of the one set apart in eternal wisdom to eventually become an ambassador of Christ—to be endowed with power over sin, with power of dispensing for the uplift of sinners the body and blood of Christ, to repeat in his ministrations the powers of the first priest of the church—Jesus Christ.

History paints a picture of the glory of priesthood—of the great Melchisedec, of Malachi, of the sons of Aaron and Levi, all priests of God. Of the later priests in the new dispensation, a Peter, a James, a John, a Gregory; all for whom the churches of the world have been a background, from St. Peter's of Rome down t othe present day, when St. Patrick's, of Norwich, forms the background. In the center of each and all is Calvary. Another sacrifice, commanded by a dying Saviour in His last words to His disciples, "Do this in remembrance of Me." Pontius Pilate wrote over the head of the crucified Redeemer, "Jesus Christ, King of the Jews;" he should have written, "King of all men." Christ's throne was a cross—that taken away. He left an altar, where daily mass is offered as a panacea for all woes, for the solace, the cheer of troubled men. The priest offering sacrifice at the altar is the link between God and man, the span between heaven and earth.

But the empowering to offer the holy sacrifice of the mass is not all. The Saviour, knowing the needs of human nature, has given also to His apostles the power of confession: "Whose sins you shall forgive they are forgiven them; whose sins you shall retain, they are retained." Realizing this, Catholics revere their priests, seeing in each not the man, but the representative of Christ; one called to be the mediator between the Creator and His creatures—singled out by God to be another Christ.

The mother of the first Christ in her soul magnified the Lord in the great honor which had come upon her. The mother of the newly ordained priest of today must rejoice in this realization of her dreams, in thus giving her son to God. "He is Thy priest, O, Christ" was the thought to which the preacher kept recurring. He exhorted his hearers to pray earnestly for the young man thus signally honored in the parish, that he may go forth to labor in the vineyard of his Great Exemplar with full realization of his high calling, that he may ever keep unstained his hands, unsoiled his lips, pure and unsullied his heart; that Heaven may make fruitful his labors, so that those touched by his ministry may bless him here, and be hereafter his eternal crown.

At the close of the mass after Father Galvin had directed the people to come to the altar, a solid phalanx of men, women and children moved up the center aisle, kneeling at the sanctuary rail. Then, by imposition of hands, Father Corcoran blessed each person in the congregation. Many mothers brought their children to receive the first holy blessing of the young priest.

Sunday afternoon, Father Corcoran informally received his friends who called at the home of his mother, 71 Fountain street.

Where the young levite will be assigned to duty is known only to his bishop; it may be in some foreign field, as a professor in college or seminary, or as a missionary in the south or west. But that the young soldier of Christ will acquit himself well wherever sent was evident to those who watched him during the long and trying service and blessing of Sunday, when his earnestness and devotion were more than impressive.

POLISH CITIZENSHIP CLUB HELD STATE MEETING

The Connecticut Polish American political organization held its quarterly meeting here Sunday at the Kosciuszko and Pulaski hall, 160-162 North Main street. The meeting was opened by the president, John Winiaiski of Hartford.

The number of delegates present was 100 representing political clubs from the different towns of the state.

This state organization was organized several years ago, with the object stimulating the Polish Americans to take out citizenship papers and take active part in matters political in their own town and state. The work is progressing and shows good results by the increase of the number of clubs joining the state organization.

Arrangements were made to hold a banquet soon at which persons will be invited of political prominence in the state. New Haven was selected as the place for the next meeting.

The following are the officers: President, John Winiaiski, Hartford; first vice president, K. J. Kawiec[illegible] Terryville; second vice president, Joseph Romanowski Norwich; recording secretary, Stanley Karpinski, New Britain; financial secretary, Stanley Traceski, New Britain; treasurer, J. WAS TOLLAND COUNTY SURVEYOR MANY YEARS

Everett Young Fisk, whose death at the age of 92 occurred last Monday at his home in Stafford Springs, was the oldest resident of the town and had been county surveyor in Tolland county for so long in his active life that he was said to be familiar with "every inch of ground in the district."

He was a lifelong resident of Stafford, a surveyor and a civil engineer, and until a few years ago he was active in his profession. He also conducted a farm in Stafford street. He held several important town offices, until he retired from active business life several years ago.

He was born in Stafford, Jan. 16, 1834, a son of Calvin Fisk and Nancy Ann Converse (Young) Fisk. He was a graduate of Monson Academy in Monson, Mass., and of the New Britain normal school. He also studied surveying and civil engineering with his father and his grandfather both of whom were surveyors.

Until the office was abolished in the '60's, Mr. Fisk was county surveyor for many years. He also was a grand juror and town moderator until late in the '60's. During his term as county surveyor he often was required to attend sessions in courts throughout eastern Connecticut on land and boundary line disputes.

He was married to Miss Louisa D. Bartlett of Union in June, 1863. She died in 1910.

Mr. Fisk is survived by a son, Judge John E. Fisk of Rockville; two daughters, Mrs. John F. Richardson of Preston and Mrs. Howard W. Hunter of Hartford; five grandchildren, Donald and Douglas Fisk, sons of the late Henry C. Fisk of Stafford; Doris and Winfield Hunter and Mrs. Henry Bates. He also leaves the great grandchildren who are three children of Mrs. Henry Bates.

Funeral services were held in the home last Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, daylight saving time. Rev. William D. Woodward, pastor of the Methodist church of Staffordville offered prayer and the services were conducted by Rev. F. W. Tholen of Stafford. Burial was in Stafford Street cemetery.

MRS. LEILA T. GARDNER SINGS FROM EIFFEL TOWER

Because of the British strike, Mrs. Leila Troland Gardner of New York, formerly of Norwich, was obliged to change her plans to visit England and Ireland, returning from Paris on S. S. Mauretania at the week end. The Paris edition of the New York Herald recently published a sketch and cut of Mrs. Gardner, with the title, "Tours Radio Stations," and the explanation: "Mrs. Gardner, American contralto, specializes in negro spirituals; she sang from the Eiffel Tower radio station Sunday. Mme. Gardner is here in the course of a world tour, during which she is singing at the leading radio stations. She has visited Madrid, Lisbon, Athens, Constantinople and Milan, and from Parish she will go to London, Dublin, Edinburgh, Belfast, Glasgow and finally New York. Mme. Gardner says that although the Latins are not accustomed to spirituals they appreciate the musical qualities which those plaintive pieces contain."

As Mrs. Gardner speaks French fluently, she explained the songs as she sang them in Paris; the French critics were as enthusiastic over her singing as the Italians had been.

THREE DRIVERS FINED IN LISBON COURT

At a session of the Lisbon town court Saturday night, Justice of the Peace Walter F. Drew imposed a fine of $10 and costs on Walter Lewis of the Norwich state hospital, on a charge of speeding. John Filburn of No. 61 School street, this city, was also before the court on a charge of speeding. He also drew a fine of $10 and costs. Both accused paid their bills.

At a session of the court earlier in the week Hormisdas Suprenant of Jewett City was presented before Justice Drew. He was fined $100 and costs and paid his bill. The charge against him was operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. All three drivers were arrested on the Jewett City road by State Policeman E. V. Streaman. Lewis and Filburn were arrested last Tuesday.

Connecticut College

Freshman week end was one of the most successful events of the year and, in spite of the weather, many parents and friends visited Connecticut college for the freshman pageant. Until the very last moment because of the threatening weather it was not known whether the pageant would have to be called off or not. Classes were shortened to allow the freshmen plenty of time for the various activities planned. Lunch was served in the dining hall at 12:30. At 1:15 was freshman tree planting at which the freshman president, Miss Eleanor Fahey of Boston, Mass., received the spade from Miss Adelaide King, the sophomore president. Miss Fahey and Miss King both spoke a few appropriate words. The classes then sang to each other.

At 3 o'clock the Bates tennis tournament final match for the cup occurred. Miss Lillian Rizey of Quantico, Va., won the cup in two sets of 6-1, 6-1 from Miss Eleanor Whittier of Nutley, N. J.

At 4 o'clock the pageant in the amphitheater began. There were many out of town guests, as well as many New Londoners and college girls on the hill overlooking the amphitheater.

The pageant given this year was entitled Moon of Leaves. It was written by Mary De Courcey Vernon of Washington, D. C. Moon of Leaves is based on a historical event that occurred in Rhode Island in 1760. Miss Anna Heilpern, of Hartford, directed; Miss Helen Smith of Cleveland, Ohio, Miss Mary Slayter of Auburndale, Mass., Miss Margaret Kahns of New York city, and Miss Eunice Mason of Forestville ably assisted Miss Heilpern.

Miss Lois Latimer of Norwich was one of the Indian braves in the cast and Miss Marcia Stanton of Norwich was a British escort. The leading roles were taken as follows:

Miss Frances Reed of Denver, Colorado took the part of King Tom, chieftain of the Ninigrets very well, speaking in a strong, masculine voice that was easily heard all over the hillside." Miss Ann Steinwedell of Cleveland, Ohio, assumed the role of Queen Esther sister of Tom, very well indeed. Her knife dance was realistically executed. Peter Worcester, lover of Esther was played by Elizabeth Lanetot of Buffalo, N. Y., General Washington by Miss Elizabeth Spiers of New London. Eleanor Fahey, president of the freshman class took the part of General Layfayette. Janet Boomer of Waterbury was a gamester, Muriel Ewing of Port Deposit, Maryland, was a realistic and warlike messenger, Mary Ellen Service of Sharon, Pa., dolefully chanted the mourning over the dead chieftain, and Grace Houston of New London as elder of the strib solemnly crowned Esther Queen. Miss Katherine Capen of Sharon, Mass., related the story of the various scenes as the prologue speaker.

Dance numbers were given by the waltz couple, Katherine Congdon and Phyllis Barchard, and solo dancers, Mary Slater, Dance to the Sun and Muriel Whitehead, Huntress Dance.

The musicians were: Helen Roeber and Katherine Cummings, both playing flutes and Miss Elizabeth Seward playing the tom-tom.

Altogether the pageant proved one that will long be remembered in the history of Connecticut college. The earnest efforts of each and every member of the class was clearly shown in the perfection of every detail.

At 5 o'clock a reception to parents and friends of the students was held in Knowlton hall. President and Mrs. Benjamin T. Marshall; Dean Mary K. Benedict, Florence Hopper, Theodosia Hewlett; Patricia Clark, and Helen Farnsworth comprised the receiving line. A delightful program was rendered by the following students: Miss Helen Farnsworth and Katherine Bailey, fancy dance and fancy clog; Miss Mildred Dornan, Ruth McCaslin, Rhoda Booth and Lucy Norris, folk songs; Miss Patricia Clark and Margaret Battles, Pierrot and Pierette dance; Miss Marie Leverone, two charming piano solos; Miss Margaret Elliot, whistling selection, Indian Love Call, assisted by Miss Louise Gunther at the piano.

Refreshments consisting of fruit punch and cakes were then served by the following members of the sophomore class: Miss Elizabeth Gallup, Deborah Lippencott, Rhoda Booth, Ethel Blinn, Karla Heurich, Cordelia Kilbourne, Elizabeth Arthur and Barbara Salmon.

Instead of vespers, at 11 o'clock on Sunday morning, service was held in the chapel, at which President Marshall delivered the sermon.

WILL PROVIDE ELECTRIC SERVICE FOR FITCHVILLE

The citizens of the village of Fitchville will welcome the great improvement there in the form of electric light service, for already a large force of men are engaged in placing poles and stringing lines of wires which will serve this thriving community with light and power. This work is being done by the Bozrah Electric Co. of Bozrah of which Nathan Gilman is president.

The company has just finished running a service line from the town line of Norwich to the town line of Montville on the west side of the city at Leffingwell. Soon the village of Fitchville will be equipped with light and power as well as the other features of modern towns.

CHAMPION OF PAST YEARS PREDICTS 15-FOOT VAULT

SEATTLE, May 16 (AP)—Robert Paulding, who, carrying the colors of the Seattle Athletic club, was American champion in 1909 with 11 feet predicts that a pole vaulter will soon reach a height of 15 feet.

"It will probably take a tall, thin man," he said, "with very long arms and tremendous speed to reach such a mark—someone like Charles Hoff. I thought years ago that pole vaulters would reach 14 or 15 feet. My best recorded vault was 11 feet six inches. But I had been taught the old style, no shift of the lower hand."

Shifting the lower hand until it touches the upper one enables the vaulter to pull his body to a higher level before going over the bar. Under the old system the vaulter held his hands two or three feet apart.

Paulding said that R. G. Clapp of Yale was the first to use the shift.

The act of forgiving doesn't always take away the power of memory.

FROM LYDIA E. PINKHAM TO HER GREAT GRANDDAUGHTER

Have you ever heard a grandmother say, "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? Why, my mother and I took that fifty years ago." In some families the fourth generation is learning the merit of this dependable medicine.

From the days of the polonaise to the days of the radio, mothers have given this famous remedy to their daughters. The happy schoolgirl of today, like the demure maiden of the 1870's, knows she can rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

STORY OF DAVID IS SHOWN IN PICTURES

Notwithstanding the stormy weather the parlors of the Y. M. C. A. were crowded Sunday at the 4 o'clock service. Hymns, scripture reading and prayer constituted the opening exercises with two well rendered vocal solos by Hugh Kinder, who also furnished music for the moving pictures, the title of which was "The Chosen Prince" a feature picture of Bible history which is being shown in sections for several Sundays. It is the story of David, and the portrayal is very beautiful in photography and true to the Bible story. The pictures yesterday showed the dedication of David by Samuel, David tending his sheep, his slaying of the lion and his killing of Goliath. Between the reels Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk from the topic, "Chosen" and among other things he said. It is a great thing to be chosen for position of honor. No man was ever more directly chosen of God than was David, and how faithfully he followed God's leading; he was human like ourselves, but he made far less mistakes than most of us. David, the hero of this story, was also chosen by God for a great work, and he carried out the purposes of God most wonderfully. Abraham Lincoln was, we believe, just as truly chosen to lead the people of America as Moses was to lead the people of Israel, and he faithfully did the thing God chose him to do. How it thrills the heart of a mother or a father when their son or daughter is chisen to be the valedictorian of the class or some such high honors. Jesus was the chosen of God "the chiefest among ten thousand, the one altogether lovely." God chose him to be the Savior of the world, and he beautifully fulfilled this mission even though it led him to the cross where he effected your redemption and mine. Let me impress upon every boy, every girl every man and every woman here that God has chosen each one for some purpose, even though you may not think it, he has a place for you to fill, and he expects you to fill it. Let each find his or her place in the work of the Kingdom. Let not any boy say that he does not amount to much; you do, you are important to God, every one of you. Let us never forget that every individual is really chosen of God.

A companion case, in which Giovani Macalone was suing Rosow for damages was settled by counsel.

PENN. WILL SHOW PULSE ON PROHIBITION ISSUE TODAY

Congressman Vare, Who Stands For Modification of the Volstead Act, Will Contend For the Republican Senatorial Nomination With Governor Pinchot and Senator Pepper, Both of Whom Are Classed as Dry—Leaders of Each Faction Are Making There Usual Claims of Victory Today.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—(AP)—Pennsylvania's primary election campaign, one of the most interesting in recent years, came to a close tonight with the leaders of each faction in the republican and democratic parties making the usual claims of victory for tomorrow.

The republican party is faction-torn, worse than at any time since Boies Penrose, the master mind, laid down the state leadership when he died on New Year's eve, 1921. Since then there has been intermittent strife with no one man nor faction in absolute control.

Congressman William S. Vare, Philadelphia, one of the three candidates for the republican senatorial nomination, has put forward the modification of the Volstead act as the predominant issue of the campaign.

Senator George Wharton Pepper, fighting for renomination, refused to accept it as the sole issue, but asserted Vare was seeking to obtain control of the state organization and was using the liquor question as a means. Senator Pepper is classed as a "dry", having announced that he was for law enforcement and no change in the present federal law.

The third man in the fight for the senatorship, Governor Gifford Pinchot charged that Pepper was "damp" and that while the senator was fighting the Vare organization in Philadelphia, he was fighting with the "gang" in Pittsburgh, both of which, the governor asserted are "very wet."

An element of national interest in the fight aside from the "wet" and "dry" issue, was the entrance of secretary of the treasury, Andrew W. Mellon into the contest on the side of Senator Pepper. The secretary made an address in Pittsburgh last Friday night in which he told of Senator Pepper's value to the national administration and which was interpreted by many of the senator's followers as an endorsement by President Coolidge.

Congressman Vare, however, came out promptly with a statement that the president has remained neutral in the fight and that Mr. Coolidge had authorized no one to speak for him.

All three candidates have pledged their support of the national administration and its policies.

While each of the Vare and Pepper factions has a full ticket in the field, Governor Pinchot made no official announcement of any alliance with candidates for other offices.

He has been fighting for more rigid "dry" laws and appealing to the voters to wipe out "gang rule" by defeating those in control of the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh local organizations.

Governor Pinchot says he expects a heavy vote in both the hard and soft coal mining regions, having received the endorsement of the United Mine Workers' organization for the support he gave the miners in the recent anthracite strike.

In the fight for the republican nomination for governor, the Vare managers are supporting former Lieutenant Governor J. S. Leidelman F. Harrisburg, while the Pepper-Mellon leaders are backing former State Banking Commissioner John S. Fisher, of Indiana.

Two other candidates for the republican senatorial nomination are former Governor John K. Tener and Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, Tener is running on his record as governor, while Phillips is asking the support of those who favor a modification of the Volstead act.

There are six candidates for the republican nomination for lieutenant-governor, the Vare and Pepper factions each supporting a different aspirant.

In the democratic ranks, there is a three cornered battle for governor. The candidates are Judge Samuel E. Shull of Stroudsburg, who has the support of National Committeeman Guffey, of Pittsburgh; former Judge William E. Porter, of Lawrence county, backed by former National Chairman Vance McCormick, and Municipal Court Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, of Philadelphia, who is running as a "wet" candidate.

William B. Wilson, secretary of labor in President Wilson's cabinet is unopposed for the democratic senatorial nomination.

INQUEST INTO SHOOTING OF DR. LOUIS H. MILLER

DANBURY, May 17.—(AP)—Coroner John J. Phelan, of Bridgeport today examined 14 witnesses at the inquest into the shooting of Dr. Louis H. Miller who was killed in his office here last Friday by Leon Thomas, of this city. Among the witnesses were Mrs. Allen S. Biddiscomb, an elderly woman who was in the waiting room of the doctor's office at the time.

Thomas was not in the room when the inquest opened, but the coroner instructed that he be brought in. When the accused entered he appeared bewildered and in answer to the coroner's question whether he had anything to say, Thomas replied that he did not think so. A lengthy statement said to have been made by the accused to the police was then read.

In this document, Thomas admits that he shot Dr. Miller, saying just before he pulled the trigger, "You cannot take me the way you faked the other fellow." This statement was said to have referred to an acquaintance of Thomas' who died about a year ago. After the document was read, the coroner asked Thomas if he desired to admit that he had made this statement to the police. His answer was "the police have not given me the medical attention they promised."

Asked when he had been promised such attention, Thomas replied "on the way back from Bridgeport after they arrested me."

"Do you think you are in need of medical attention?" asked the coroner.

"Yes," replied Thomas, "you ought to be able to tell that from my looks."

OWENS CONFESSED KILLING OF FARMER LOUIS JACOBOWITZ

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 17.—(AP)—Confession to killing Louis Jacobowits, a farmer, was made to a sheriff today by Joseph D. Owens, known as Frank Owens. He was being brought here following his arrest in Derry under a murder charge. Owens denied, however, placing the farmer's body on the pile of charred corn stalks where it was found last Thursday evening near Jacobowitz's home, in Atkinson.

High Sheriff Ceylon Spinney said that Owens declared he had killed the farmer in self-defense. The prisoner's account was that Jacobowits, who had been threatening him, threw him into a pile of burning corn stalks after a quarrel. Owens said he jumped up, grabbed a shovel and struck Jacobowits on the head. The latter fell upon the burning stalks, and Owens ran into the woods, where he slept every night. All he had to eat up to his capture was a loaf of bread he had purchased in Windham Junction.

Owens will be arraigned in police court at Plaistow tomorrow. His counsel said he would waive a hearing for his client and that he would present a petition asking that Owens be committed to the state insane asylum for observation.

Owens was found today in a pew of a Catholic church in Derry, and to a priest admitted his identity and the killing of Jacobowitz.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

President Coolidge returned from Williamsburg, Va.

The revised Johnson veterans bill was passed by the house.

The conference report on the $185,000,000 public buildings bill was adopted in the senate.

Construction of ten coast guard cutters would be authorized under a bill passed by the house.

The McKinley anti-lynching bill failed to obtain a favorable report in the senate judiciary committee.

ADVERSE TO THE M'KINLEY ANTI-LYNCHING BILL

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP)—By the vote of 9 to 8 the senate judiciary committee refused today to report the McKinley anti-lynching bill, a measure similar to the Dyer bill which was passed by the house several years ago, but died in the senate under the fire of a filibuster by senators from southern states.

The motion for a favorable report was made by Senator Ernst, republican, Kentucky, and was supported by two other committeemen, Senator Cummins, republican, Iowa, chairman of the committee, and Ashurst, democrat, Arizona. Those reported to have voted against a favorable report were: Borah, Idaho; Means, Colorado; Harreld, Oklahoma; and Deneed, Illinois, republicans, and Overman, North Carolina; Reed, Missouri; Walsh, Montana; Caraway, Arkansas, and King, Utah, democrats.

The bill, offered by Senator McKinley, republican, Illinois, remains before the committee and its proponents said they would make another effort to have it reported. Opponents predicted, however, that they would be able to send the measure to the senate with an adverse report.

Under the terms of the measure, any county in which a lynching took place would be required to forfeit $10,000 to the estate of the victim and any state or county officer who permitted a mob to lynch a prisoner for whom he was responsible would be subject to a penalty of not more than five years in prison or a fine of not more than $5,000 or both.

SHEAN SENTENCED FROM ONE TO THREE YEARS

HARTFORD, May 17.—(AP)—Walter E. Shean, described as a "go-between" for criminals, companion of Gerald Chapman when the latter to get a little "loose change" went on a safe-blowing expedition to a department store in New Britain, October 12, 1924, and killed a policeman for which crime he swung on the gallows, went into Wethersfield state prison today. He had been sentenced for carrying an automatic gun which Chapman gave him, and for attempted burglary which was his part of the exploit.

Shean received from one to three years for the gun-toting and two years for his part in the store break. Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin, of the superior court who imposed sentence said that if Shean had been disassociated from Chapman the case would have been one of ordinary breaking and entering, and not a "terrible affair." But the Chapman trial, the court went on to say, and the notoriety in connection with it had made people wonder what would become of Shean. Some of the public, the court thought, might be inclined to believe that Shean and Chapman were in like degree guilty for what happened at the time and that because Shean turned state's evidence he got off easily in being charged only as he had been. But, added the court, when the matter is sifted this supposition is found not to be true.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT THE FUNERAL OF JOHN T. KING

BRIDGEPORT, May 17.—(AP)—Men and women of Bridgeport, in all walks of life, who in their contacts with John T. King, long republican party leader here, counted him as a personal friend, today paid their last tributes of respect by attending his funeral in the church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, and in following his body to St. Michael's cemetery.

The throngs which were at the service in the church and upon the street, standing quietly in Myrtle avenue for fully two hours while high mass of requiem was being sung within the church were regarded as the largest at any funeral ever held here. Among those who had places of mourners were men and women from other cities, including New York, Washington, many of them holding high positions in finance, business and in the courts. Among the number was U. S. Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire.

The floral tributes made great masses which at the church were banked around the bronze casket and at the grave were used as a covering to hide the newly turned earth. A single piece was a blanket of roses and lilies of the valley given by political associates who, even though he was dead, had had the white satin ribbon bear the words "our chief."

The official life of the city ceased during the morning that all those connected with the administration might attend the services, and the departments sent delegations, and several fraternal orders paid their last respects to a fellow-member by attendance in a body.

The funeral procession after the church service required nearly 30 minutes to pass through the city streets. On the sidewalks people stood quietly at the curb until the body had passed.

CHILD LABOR CONDITIONS IN THE TOBACCO INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP) — A picture of children between the ages of eight and 15 complaining of backaches, sickness from strong odors and skin irritation and of young boys and girls keeping vigil all night at curing barns and losing time at school is given in a report on child labor conditions in the tobacco growing industry made public today by the children's bureau of the labor department.

The bureau, which based its report on a study of what were described as typical districts in the south and New England, found that children under 16 have an important part in the production of tobacco, two of the "most tedious and disagreeable operations in its cultivation, suckering and worming," being considered in some sections as "distinctly children's work."

Worse conditions were found in the southern fields, because, the report pointed out, little suckering and no worming was reported by children question in "New England."

In all, 2,278 child workers were interviewed in Kentucky, South Carolina, Virginia, and in the Connecticut valley. About one half of those in the south and over one third in the Connecticut valley were under 13 years, while about one-fifth in the south and over one-tenth in New England were under ten. Approximately one-third of the total were girls.

Most children in both sections, the report said, worked long hours, few reporting less than eight hours, with ten hours the usual work day, some worked as high as 12 and 13, and in Virginia and South Carolina children were found at the furnaces in the curing barns until late at night, some staying all night.

Many children, the report asserted, were kept from school in the south, the average absence being from 15 to 19 days, with attendance noticeably better in the Connecticut valley.

Scarlet fever increased 17 cases to 98 and new cases of whooping cough were the same as the previous week, 54.

The department has announced the following well-child conferences for next week: Tuesday, Andover; Wednesday, East Haven and East Hampton; Thursday, Somersville and Windsor; Friday, North Canaan and Cornwall.

$30,000,000 Voted to Aid Disabled War Vets

For Expenditure in the Next Three Years—Measure Sent Sent to the Senate.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP)—Legislation calling for expenditure of $30,000,000 in the next three years for the aid of 27,000 disabled World war veterans was passed unanimously today by the house and sent to the senate.

Action came after one hour's debate, with no amendments allowed under the rules, and after the measure originally providing for expenditure of $40,000,000, had been sent back to the veterans committee for eliminations during the five months the bill was before it.

The measure, introduced by Chairman Johnson, republican, South Dakota, would extend for one year from July 2 next the time for converting term insurance, remove limitations on the time for filing disability claims, and provide for completion of rehabilitation work now under way.

Although the measure was unopposed on the final vote, democratic members crammed into the half hour allowed them time for debate, an unremitting attack on the administration and republican leaders in the house for bringing the measure up for consideration under a suspension of rules, limited discussion and prohibited amendments.

Representative Connery, democrat, Massachusetts, assailed the bill as a "sop thrown out by the administration to soothe veterans in election year" while Representative Garrett, the democratic leader, charged that since creation of the house veterans committee all bills bearing its approval have been considered under a similar suspension of rules "curbing free discussion in the house."

The chief sections of the original measure deleted during the prolonged committee consideration were these providing for hospitalization of tubercular patients on a large scale and creation of a medical corps in the veterans bureau. The hospitalization program, the committee said, will be taken care of in the new disability schedule being drawn up by the veterans bureau.

The measure approved today also would amend the veterans act of 1924 in more than a score of technical administrative points.

DISCUSSED THE ANGLO-FRENCH DEBT SETTLEMENT

LONDON, May 17.—(AP)—Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer and M. Peret, French finance minister, this evening held a two-hour conversation in private on the Anglo-French debt settlement.

M. Peret later told correspondents that he and Mr. Churchill had talked along general lines concerning the debt and that nothing definite has been determined. He said that he and the British chancellor were seeking a formula of accord but that this had not yet been found. He said that the conversation will be resumed tomorrow.

M. Peret is returning to Parish Wednesday morning and he said that it could hardly be expected that an agreement could be reached in so short a time.

The problem of the French commercial debt is being handled by direct negotiations between the bank of France and the bank of England he said.

TROUBLE IN POLAND IS BY NO MEANS SETTLED

WARSAW, Poland, May 17.—(AP)—While there is an outward calm in the Polish capital, a complete settlement of the situation brought about by the ousting of President Wojciechowski and the Witos government by Marshal Pilsudski, has by no means been reached.

There is a difference of opinion on the convening of the national assembly for the election of a new president, and Premier Bartel is having some difficulty with his cabinet, for it is announced that Count Skrzynski has declined to accept the post of foreign minister, on the ground that he does not consider Pilsudski's position stable enough at the present time. It is reported that General Dowbor Musnicki refuses to accept the new situation and continues to march on Warsaw at the head of his troops.

Several regiments, which were summoned from Posen to aid the Witos government, are still lined up about ten miles west of Warsaw, facing the capital.

All attempts of the Warsaw government to induce them to return to their garrisons have been futile. It is asserted officially that the present congestion of trains from Warsaw precludes their transportation to Posen.

Some of the parties have protested through M. Rataj, the acting president, that Warsaw is not a favorable site for a meeting of the national assembly, as it would not permit unprejudiced discussions.

HOMESPUN DRESS WAS PRESENTED MRS. COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP) — A homespun dress, woven by two Italian women, was presented to Mrs. Coolidge at the white house today by 14 women, members of the Mothers' club of the North Bennett Street Industrial school of Boston.

It is of white wool, trimmed in black and designed for sport wear. It was woven by Mrs. Louisa Guarino and Mrs. Maria Demassi, who on account of home duties and modest circumstances, could not be here for the presentation.

Several women in the delegation had not been out of Boston since coming to this country from Italy and had saved for two years to make the trip to Washington.

Graciously accepting the gift, Mrs. Coolidge expressed her appreciation and sent her greetings to the mothers of the school.

VISITING CONNECTICUT TROOPS MADE AN IMPRESSIVE SPECTACLE IN PARIS

PARIS, May 17.—(AP)—Eighteenth century America came to life on the busy boulevards of Twentieth Century Paris today. Colonial uniforms of buff, blue and scarlet, waving plumes and nodding bnabies turning the Champs Elysees into a scene resembling a picturesque color print of bygone days, as five hundred men of the visiting Connecticut and Virginia military bodies marched through silent crowds and laid a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The visitors spent a busy day, rushing from one dress parade to another, attending a few receptions and finishing up before the American embassy, where they were reviewed by Ambassador Herrick.

They were received by Marshal Foch, General Gouraud, military governor of Paris, and former Premier Herriot at the Inter-Allied club. In his speech of welcome, Marshal Foch said: "I see the same uniforms before me today as I saw at Richmond and Hartford during my visit to the United States in 1921. They always remind me of the epoch of Lafayette and the ancient alliance between France and America. We have a new link now in the exalted friendship of the battlefield."

Major M. F. Neal and Major John L. Gilson expressed American friendship for France. Major Gilson, speaking in the name of Governor Trumbull of Connecticut, said: "The American dead remaining in France is the best guarantee of the union of the sister republic."

Colonel John A. Cutchin, speaking in the name of the governor of Virginia, remarked: "Sons of the men who fought on different sides in the Civil war are now gathered in Paris to pay homage to the country of Lafayette and Foch."

The military made a great impression on the French for their smartness and soldierly bearing. "They march well," was the frequent comment of French veterans. Two color guardsmen of the First Company Foot Guards, who stand six feet four, strongly impressed General Gouraud when presented at the Inter-Allied club.

"I always thought I was tall," said General Gouraud, "but I feel like a dwarf beside these soldiers."

The militiamen will devote tomorrow to seeing Paris. Lieut. Thomas McKone, of Hartford, will deliver an address at the tomb of Lafayette.

BATTLE IN SENATE OVER NEW DRY LAW ENFORCEMENT BILL

Followed Formal Reporting of the Administration Measure From the Judiciary Committee—Chairman Means Declared the Bill Was Based on Experience in Enforcing the Volstead Act—Senator Edge Contends That the New Bill is a Direct Admission That the Volstead Act "Can Never Be Enforced"—House Has Voted $9,000,000 to Be Used in the Construction of Ten Cutters For the Coast Guard to Cope With Liquor Smuggling From the Sea.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP)—The battle between the wets and the drys in the senate was renewed today with the formal reporting of the administration's new dry law enforcement bill from the judiciary committee.

In presenting the measure, Chairman Means of the sub-committee which held extended hearings on the prohibition question, declared, it was based upon the experience of that department in enforcing the Volstead act.

Coincident with the submission of the committee report, Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, a leader of the wets, issued a statement asserting that new measure was a "direct and unmistakable" admission that the Volstead act "can never be enforced." He added that the proposed amendments to that act indirected encourage law violations.

Senator Means expects to call up the bill in the near future, but the wets predict it will not be passed at this session. They plan to offer as amendments the bills which they have introduced for modification of the Volstead law.

While the senate was receiving the administration measure, the house passed and sent to the senate a bill authorizing an appropriation of $9,000,000 to be used in the construction of ten cutters for the coast guard, which is charged with controlling liquor smuggling from the sea.

In recommending the new enforcement measure urged by Assistant Secretary Andrews, in charge of dry law enforcement, Senator Means said it was not intended to interfere with legitimate business, but was intended to aid the government in its attempt to eliminate illegal manufacture, use an dsale of intoxicants.

Referring to the section of the bill permitting the search of dwellings where liquor is manufactured for commercial purposes, Senator Means said it was not intended that the homes of private citizens should be invaded. He added the object was to reach only those dwellings which had been converted into distilleries.

"The source of supply of the liquor traffic being more and more limited by enforcement officials, the traffic is being forced to manufacture its own product," Senator Means said. "They have ingeniously taken advantage of the protection which the law affords private dwellings by securing such a dwelling, placing a family therein as residents and employing the head of the family at a salary as watchman."

Adverting to this section of the measure, Senator Edge in his statement said it was his understanding that this would in effect grant immunity for the home production of any beverage no matter what the strength.

"In fact it invites citizens to engage in home production," he added. "Only when 'evidence' is produced that such manufacture is for the purpose of 'barter or exchange' is there to be any investigation or protest.

"I suppose this new dry policy will aid enforcement. But what does it contribute in the interest of real temperance?

"Other suggested changes seem to be practically meaningless unless the provision increasing penalties for smuggling is considered important. From the testimony of General Andrews, smuggling contributes a very small portion of the present inexhaustible supply. Home stills and denatured alcohol produces more than the market can absorb and at much less cost so no one will worry much about increasing the penalty for smuggling."

The bill as reported by the senate committee was introduced in the house by Chairman Graham of the judiciary committee.

HOUSE VOTES $9,000,000 FOR NEW RUM SHIP CHASERS

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP)—A bill to authorize an appropriation of $9,000,000 for ten new coast guard cutters was passed today by the house without a record vote. The vessels would be used against rum smugglers and for other duties of the coast guard.

The house also approved in the senate bill to increase the commissioned personnel of the coast guard from 270 to 350 officers, the increase being deemed necessary to fully man the recent additions made in the enlisted and warrant officer strength. Neither of the bills has been acted upon by the senate.

While the house was approving the two bills, bids for the construction of 35 new patrol boats were opened for by the coast guard. They will be 125 feet in length as compared with the 75 foot length of present patrol boats. The new squadron, expected to be completed by late fall, will be used against rum smugglers.

CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION SEEKS USE OF SCHOOLS

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP)—The Civil Liberties union today pressed its fight to have access to the public schools for meetings with the filing of an application for the use of Stuyvesant High school May 21. Arthur Garfield Hays, counsel for the organization, charged yesterday that the board of education maintained a "black list", of organizations and individuals not permitted use of the schools.

Miss Lucille D. Miner, field secretary of the union, who filed the application today, said it was planned to discuss "old fashioned free speech," with Rev. Dr. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Community church, presiding.

The object of the meeting, Miss Milner said, "is to test the validity of the 'black list' the Civil Liberties union alleges the board as maintaining."

Legal action may be resorted to Miss Milner said, in event the board refuses this application, as she said it had others where speakers for the Civil Liberties union wishes to address public gatherings in schools.

Speakers at the proposed meeting were announced as Mr. Hays, James Weldon Johnson, director of the national association for the Advancement of Colored People, and John Nevin Sayre, a member of the union's national executive board.

TROLLEYMEN ACCEPT TWO CENT HOUR WAGE INCREASE

NEW HAVEN, May 17.—(AP) — A vote in favor of accepting the two cents an hour wage increase offered by the Connecticut company was cast by the New Haven trolleymen today, it was reported tonight. While no official announcement was made, it was said that the vote was about two to one in favor of acceptance of the new wage scale and working conditions proposed by the company.

A referendum vote was taken throughout the state today, ballot boxes being placed wherever the company has car barns.

The state board of the trolleymen will meet here Thursday morning to canvass the state vote. If it is found that a majority of the motormen, conductors and shop hands throughout the state are in favor of accepting the company's proposals, a new contract will be signed with the Connecticut company at once. If, however, the company's proposal is voted down, the state board will reopen negotiations with the company officials.

Under the new terms proposed by the company the men operating the two crew cars would be paid a maximum of 62 cents an hour and the one-man car operators 69 cents.

DISCUSSING DETAILS IN BRITISH MINE CONTROVERSY

LONDON, May 17.—(AP)—The mine owners have not yet indicated whether they are disposed to accept Premier Baldwin's plan for the rehabilitation of the mining industry.

Both miners and mine owners are still considering its bearings and discussing details, and probably little will be definitely known before Friday, when the prime minister is expected to inform parliament how matters stand.

There is much interest in the offer of the Russian miners' congress sitting at Moscow of the money refused by the traders union congress during the general strike to the miners' federation to assist the wives and families of the British miners. It is not known if this money will be accepted, but A. J. Cook, secretary of the federation, favors acceptance, and the question will be discussed by the delegate conference on Thursday. The miners' federation funds are very low, and Secretary Cook's idea is to welcome funds from any source.

There is delay at some of the ports in getting the dockers back to work but the position improves daily. Most of the other industries are operating normally, and the only apparent difference in the railway world is curtailment of some the Whitsuntide holiday trains on account of the dislocation caused by the strike.

The financial situation continues embarrassing for the recent strikers, and the Transport Workers' union has issued an appeal that all who have resumed work should contribute, sixpence a weekly, in addition to the ordinary trade union contributions, the easier in financing those whose return to statement has been delayed.

After shooting Haag, who was standing at the door of the Green Mill, the robbers shoved the body outside and rifled the pockets, taking a diamond ring and other jewelry rejecting a wrist watch and a small amount of money.

Haag was accompanied by a young woman. Although unharmed she was so hysterical she was unable to give an accurate description of the robbers.

OFFICER PLAYS ROLE OF WOLF IN SHEEP'S CLOTHING

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 17—Striking up the acquaintance of two thirsty college boys at the Junior Prom at Bowley Armory, Storrs, last Friday night, State Policeman Henry Heinold of the Stafford Springs barracks was told where to buy liquor. He went to the place, made the purchase and notified Peter Offray of Mansfield Four Corners who had sold him the stuff to appear in court. Offray was before the Mansfield town court this morning charged with having liquor in his possession with intent to sell and with actual sale. He pleaded guilty. Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews imposed a fine of $75 and costs on the one charge and $25 for possession, the total being $108.55 which Offray paid. The man was also given a 30-day suspended jail sentence, the period of suspension being for one year. It was Offray's first offense.

Officer Heinold, working incognito, prowled about in the vicinity of the Bowley armory where the Junior Prom of the Connecticut Agricultural college was being held. The good reputation of the state institution was not to be broken that night, apparently, for the student with whom the Officer struck up a friendship said that the dance was as dry as Sahara. They remarked, however, that they knew where liquor could be purchased and hinting that he was "no camel himself" the officer horned in on the party. He followed directions to Offray's place and came out with a gallon of hard cider and a quart of wine. For a time it looked as if a good party was at hand but the officer merely notified his two friends that he would take charge of the liquor and "see them later."

BOYS HAVE HARROWING TIME WHEN LOST IN WOODS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 17—Becoming lost in deep woods and being thoroughly soaked in a rain storm which also brought on darkness and added to their helplessness for over two hours, were the unpleasant experiences of John, 14, and Walter, 8, sons of Nicholas Blesz of Brick Top Road, Sunday evening. The boys had started out about five o'clock to round up a couple of stray cows which had left the pasture near Phelp's Crossing. The youngsters finally got into the woods between Phelp's Crossing and the old clambake grove east of the Natchaug river. They wandered about until they had about opposite the pumping station bordering on the river. Their cries and shouts were at last heard by three young men proceeding along the Mansfield highway. The rives could not be crossed afoot on account of the high water and a boat was secured from Superintendent Willard N. Bowen of the pumping station. After another half hour of search the boys were located. They were drenched to the skin and almost at the point of collapse from exhaustion and fright. They were taken to the home of Superintendent Bowen from where their parents were notified.

Moran, secretary of the general committee, has received word that many visiting knights will be on hand for the opening.

An ancient automobile, believed by mechanics to be a 1916 Hudson touring car, was abandoned beside the highway a few days ago when it gave up the ghost. The machine was exhausted from age, apparent hard usage and lack of care. The engine bearings had started to melt from lack of oil. Two men in the car asked William Cunningham if they could leave the car in his yard on the state road in Columbia. They said that they very likely would never return for the machine. It was a good chance to get an automobile as a gift, but, after looking it over, Cunningham said that he was not operating a junk yard. The men drove the car a short distance further and left it off the road on land owned by the state. The state police barracks at Stafford Springs were given notice and Officer Walter Hardisty detailed to investigate. The car bore the Massachusetts markers number 284,702. It was hauled to Leonard's garage here where it is awaiting its owner.

Arthur Gaudreault of 187 Main street was charged with reputation of selling liquor in police court Monday morning. Through his attorney he entered a demurrer to the charge which was overruled by Judge Foss. The man was then fined $200 and costs, and given a jail sentence of ten days which was suspended for six months. It was Gaudreault's second conviction since he came to this city and opened up a store on lower Main street about one year ago. He was warned that a third conviction would mean a jail sentence. His place was raided on the evening of May 11 by police officers who found a small quantity of alcohol splits.

Louis Arthus, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis L. Guay of Chaplin, died from infantile trouble at the home of his parents Sunday night. Funeral was held Monday afternoon with burial in the Bedlam cemetery, Chaplin.

The interesting number of lost articles brought to police headquarters has given that sanctum the reputation of a clearing house. There are "runs" on various types of articles following the experiences of any clearing house. For a few days pocketbooks will pile up in a corner. Then will come automobile tires to be followed by dog collars. Then there are runs on wives and children. In the early fall its straw hats and in the winter, tire chains. At this time of the year it is invariably automobile markers, which were put on sometime since January in a careless manner. Just now the following is the list of 1926 Connecticut markers which the police would like the owners to claim: pleasure cars, K-1937; Z-2734; 30-159; and 26-153; commercial, 34-462; and 29,604.

JEWETT CITY

DANGER THAT DOGS WERE EXPOSED TO THE RABIES

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, May 17—Howard Elliott, chief special deputy commissioner of Hartford was in town Sunday, and with Dog Warden W. H. Palmer, went to the home of William J. Potts, Jr., and placed his Scotch collie in quarantine. Mr. Potts owned another dog, a fox terrier, which April 20 was found in Southbridge, Mass., having been proven by the state laboratory to have the rabies. As it is not known whether the fox terrier bit the Scotch collie before he ran away, it was deemed wise to quarantine the latter dog. The officials are also desirous that every dog owner keep an eye on their dogs, for they may have been bitten. They state that within a few days they intend to visit Jewett City and take in every dog that is not wearing a collar and tag. Wardens Palmer and Geary stated Monday that they are receiving complaints from all over the town of damage dogs are doing to gardens and lawns. One woman has been bitten recently. Certain dogs are allowed to run at large, with utter disregard to the fact that the owner can be arrested if damage is done to property.

Warden Geary stated that he had taked Warden Palmer to take the matter up with Hartford in order to protect people and their property, as there are people in town who care for their dogs properly but evidently there are plenty who do not.

Speeding the Sale of Automobile Tires

WITHOUT rubber tires, there would not be twenty million automobiles speeding over the nation's highways. In tire manufacturing, as in other businesses today, there is need for speed, and economy of time, which promote business efficiency.

The Norwalk Tire and Rubber Company recognizes this need—and how to meet it. Mr. John Young, of the Sales Department, says: "Toll telephone service has become the means of increasing the personal contact between buyer and seller, and has made possible the transacting of business within a few minutes which otherwise would have taken days by correspondence."

Many other businesses are awake to the advantages of toll service. Are you still using the typewriter, and perhaps the best portion of a week, to arrange the details of an order, when a toll call would complete all arrangements in a few minutes?

Our Commercial Service Department will gladly assist you in developing a Telephone Sales Plan adapted to your individual requirements. Ask our local Exchange Manager, if you are interested.

NORWICH MAN'S CASE IS CONTINUED BY PUTNAM COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 17.—A continuance of a week was asked for and obtained in the town court Monday morning when the case of Wilfred Parr of Norwich came up for a hearing. Parr is charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, but it is understood, will contest the case. He is at liberty under bonds. Parr was taken into custody Sunday night after he and a woman companion had started away from a restaurant in town and he had failed to stop when Night Officer John Gebert had whistled to him to do so.

A report of the recent continental congress in Washington will be presented to the members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., next Thursday afternoon when a meeting is to be held with Miss Marion D. Chollar of Broad street. This is to be one of the important meetings of the spring season.

So many are the machines and so restricted, of necessity, the parking arrangements in the center of Danielson that some motorists have taken to parking their machines, without permission, on private property. This is a practice that is causing some complaint, as driveways so used are more or less blockaded to machines that rightfully have a use of such properties.

Another week of work on the additions to Killingly high school was undertaken Monday. From now on a more rapid development of the building operations is to be looked for, as the slow drudging work of excavating and building foundations is well out of the way. Quantities of building materials are on hand at the school.

This is not an amazing May in Danielson as to the number of May basket parties being held. While this pretty old custom still holds its appeal for a few, it is not followed to the extent that was the rule each year up to a decade ago. It appears that modern young people have many other ways of entertaining themselves nowadays.

The Teacher Training class held a meeting at the Methodist parsonage Monday evening and continued their review of a book that has been studied the past ten weeks.

Platt of aHrtford, state commissioner of agriculture, is scheduled for an address, as is also James Whittlesey, Hartford, commissioner of domestic spimals. The field meeting of Quinebaug Pomona is to be held at Roseland park, Woodstock, on August 26.

Once again one hears the age old complaint that bicyclists are going about after dark without any lights on their machines, a violation of the law and an extremely dangerous practice. The complaints about these lightless riders comes largely from operators of automobiles. These operators are fearsome of running down a bicyclist and of the serious predicament that such affairs involve a driver in. Boys are the chief offenders in riding bycycles without lights at night, though some adults also are guilty of the practice.

Down at Bishop's crossing in the town of Plainfield, preliminary work has been undertaken leading to the accomplishment of a contract that will eliminate a grade crossing at which fatal accidents have occurred. A special effort will be made this year to have as large a representation as possible of veterans of the World war in the Memorial day parade, for which arrangements are now progressing. The Service battery will, as usual, participate in the parade, and there will be members of various patriotic organizations in line.

It has been suggested to the chamber of commerce that a retail credit association be formed here to protect business men from losses through transactions with dead beats. Under such a plan as has been proposed, any merchant who was beaten out of money by a customer might pass the information along, this automatically blocking the extension of credit to such persons from any business house.

Today (Tuesday) and Wednesday from 10:30 a. m. to 4 p. m., including the noon hour, Collector James R. Walsh will be at his office in the town hall building to receive taxes due the town of Killingly. The taxes are due not later than Wednesday, May 19.—adv.

The old Quinebaug baseball grounds are to be used for games by the Twilight league this season, if the organization it is hoped to have is perfected and goes into action. This field is convenient of access from the larger part of the borough.

PLENTY OF SPEED LEFT IN THIRTY-FIVE YEAR OLD "BABY"

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 17.—Up at King George Jacques in East Killingly is as remarkable a horse as is to be found in eastern Connecticut. Baby, a Morgan bred mare, is 35 years of age, yet as gimpy and lively as many a horse of half her age. The horse is in practically daily use on short trips in and about the East Killingly territory. Baby is a comparatively small horse. She is an especially intelligent animal and in her earlier days was capable of fine bursts of speed. She is able to go along at a good clip yet, if occasion warrants, but seldom does any speeding nowadays.

Goodyear is one of the mill villages in this section of the county that is not worrying about short time for its several hundred textile workers. The plant is running on a full time schedule and also keeps some departments going at night. The entire output of this mill goes to the parent company, the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company of Akron, O., which is having a wonderfully successful year of business.

Attorney E. L. Darbie, recently elected grand high priest of the Connecticut Grand chapter, Royal Arch Masons, is in Concord, N. H., today, attending the convocation of the New Hampshire Grand chapter, R. A. M.

No serious motoring accidents were reported in this immediate vicinity over the week end, though a New Bedford machine had a rear wheel smashed when it skidded and went into an embankment near Attawaugan.

Home gardeners went to work by the dozen in this territory Monday, taking advantage of the improved condition of the soil for planting following the heavy rain.

Profiting by their experiences of the past, many householders in Danielson are protecting themselves against coal shortages next winter by obtaining a season's supply at this time.

Some of the highways in outlying sections of the town were considerably washed out by the heavy rains of Saturday and Sunday.

ERA OF LITERARY MOVIE IS FORESEEN BY PRODUCER

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 17 (AP)—Screen theaters displaying pictures produced especially for intellectual audiences, distinguished by an utter disregard for the conventional happy ending and with closer regard for the realities of life, will dot the principal cities within the next few years, in the belief of B. P. Schulberg, associate Paramount producer.

"The movement is not entirely new," he says. The International Screen Guild already has undertaken the work with a selection of artistic films.

"When the move toward specialized films takes more definite shape, large producers will say to their pioneering directors: 'Here, go to this, or that studio, dream your dreams, and make the pictures into which you like to make, pictures into which you put all the sincerity of your art.'

"Such films will not make the gross revenues that the present popular pictures do. Neither will they be produced at such expense, but directors and actors probably will be willing to labor for less in order to make the films they like, and build themselves lasting reputations as great artists."

"Selective anarchists" was the name given those persons who obey other laws but who disobey the 18th amendment by Carlton M. Sherwood executive, secretary of the Citizens committee of one thousand, while describing "America's new crusade" before the 31st Connecticut Christian Endeavor convention at the Central Baptist church at Hartford.

AMUNDSEN'S VICTORY

Much remains to be learned in regard to the flight which Amundsen and party made over the north pole and over that hitherto unexplored territory between Alaska and the pole. Its success is assured, the dirigible has accomplished what was expected of it and the honors that go with the accomplishment will not be withheld in any degree because it was not the first instance of getting to the pole.

Considering what might be anticipated the conditions encountered were for the most part favorable. There was fog and some snow but there was no serious storm encountered. The chief handicap came from trouble which had not been anticipated. When ice forming on the propeller blades was thrown against the skin of the dirigible it raised havoc. It was impossible to repair the damage as rapidly as it was caused and disclosed a state of affairs which will have to receive consideration before another flight of that character is undertaken.

It is decidedly interesting to note that open water, thin ice and ten degrees above zero were found at the pole and it must have been a bit disappointing that no land was sighted after leaving the pole until the mainland was seen. There will nevertheless be an interesting story for the party to tell concerning their experiences and whatever information of a scientific nature which they are able to bring back.

Amundsen has been able to confirm his belief in the value of the facilities furnished by an airship in becoming acquainted with the polar regions, but it was an interesting development in connection therewith that an airplane, carrying Commander Byrd, should have been made to circle the pole before he got there, since it was an airplane which Amundsen tried last year and declared unfit for such operations.

The rediscovery of the pole by Messrs. Byrd and Amundsen isn't going to mean that others will have no interest in such trips, any more than it did after Peary made the initial discovery. By means of flying machines or one kind or another much more is certain to be learned of this hotherto isolated region.

COAL LEGISLATION

Great Britain has been feeling the effects of a coal strike and a general strike called as the result thereof. It was not so long ago that this country was experiencing certain hardships because of a coal strike, although the conditions in the respective strikes are decidedly different.

But the strike at home and the strike abroad cannot fail to emphasize anew the fact that this country has provided nothing in the way of legislation to deal with the situation should it arise here again. There is an agreement which it is expected will deal with the situation for some time, but there's no telling when the country may be forced to face just the same situation as it did last year.

The need for legislation has been repeatedly urged. There was reason enough before the last strike. During that the public was able to obtain substitute fuel and thus could give some protection to itself, but as far as legislation was concerned it was helpless and it continues to be.

The Copeland bill is before congress and an effort is being made to get action upon it in its original or amended form at this session. No one claims that it is a perfect measure but there is recognition of the need of doing something and there is a desire to get that something started. The bill would provide for an adjustment of differences between miners and operators in much the same way that has been provided for the adjustment of rail disputes. The important thing is that it establishes certain machinery for avoiding strikes. The claim is made that there is no provision for the enforcement of the awards and that stubborn refusal would be sufficient to prevent settlements, but certainly that would be no worse than prevailing conditions and there is a chance of agreement. The need prevails of giving authority to the president in case of an emergency to act for the public welfare and there should be a desire on the part of congress to see that this is provided for before the present session adjourns.

VERMONT'S SENATOR

Much was expected of the service in Washington which Porter H. Dale would render as a member of the United States senate from Vermont. He had served ten years in the house and was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Dillingham.

Coming from the president's native state it was to be expected that he would be an ardent supporter of his policies. But such has not proved to be the case. Not only has he failed to support certain of them but he has been found in opposition. It has been a bit embarrassing to the people of Vermont to think that one of their representatives in the senate should be antagonizing the nation's leader. They have in fact resented it for Vermont is strong for President Coolidge and heartily endorses his excellent policies.

In view of this situation it is not surprising that former Governor William W. Stickney has declared his candidacy for senator from Vermont in opposition to Senator Dale. It is highly probable that the former governor would not be seeking the nomination but for the disappointment that prevails over the Dale conduct. Vermont feels that it is being misrepresented, and when such a man as William W. Stickney offers himself for service in the United States senate it will be a great surprise if the people of that state do not jump at the chance to make the change, get rid of the senator who has been tried and found wanting and replace him with a staunch Coolidge man. Certainly no state went to the Cleveland convention more enthusiastic for President Coolidge than did Vermont. Naturally it dislikes being double-crossed by its senator.

The attitude taken by Senator Dale while serving the unexpired term of Senator Dillingham has indicated that he could expect a contest if he sought to succeed himself. That there is such an able and popular opponent as the former governor makes it evident that Vermont is prepared with real senatorial material and it will not be surprising if it insists upon sending Mr. Stickney to Washington.

STANDING FIRM

This country has indicated no change in its attitude relative to recognition of soviet Russia. It has set forth its position and it can be expected to adhere to it. When Russia gets to the point of desiring recognition so much that it is willing to meet the requirements then it can be expected that something will be done. Otherwise the situation will continue as it is.

Demands have been made for recognition for business reasons, but perhaps as effective an answer to that as could be desired is furnished by the action of the board of directors of the United States chamber of commerce in adopting a resolution in support of the government in its refusal to extend recognition.

There are business possibilities but they do not hinge upon recognition. Already it is known that soviet Russia did a business of $54,000,000 with this country last year, which was nearly twice as much as it did with Germany and $15,000,000 more than it did with Great Britain, which could have been giving all kinds of encouragements for trade development.

It is apparent from the trade that has been going on that soviet Russia will buy here if it is necessary whether there is recognition or not, and there is no reason to anticipate that such business would increase just because of the resumption of diplomatic relations. Certainly it has not worked out in connection with other countries and there is no reason to expect that it would with this. We have stated our requirements for recognition and there has been no reason thus far for changing them.

MEETING BIG ICE

With the reports which have been made to the effect that there is much ice in the north Atlantic warning is given to navigators to govern themselves and their ships accordingly. Warnings are given by those who are on patrol in that region for the purpose of disclosing the danger and through such timely advice prevent serious injury to shipping.

Advices from the steamship California to the effect that it struck an iceberg off Newfoundland barks while steaming slowly through a fog, which resulted in breaking the berg and not the ship, indicates the menace which big ice is to ocean transportation in that region. Each season there are those vessels which have narrow escapes and occasionally there are those which strike, but not always with results which can be said to be as slight as those in the case of the California.

Maintenance of patrolling ships to report the location of big ice does not mean the prevention of collisions. It furnishes the navigators of ships with information which they should highly prize and which if they follow should aid them in escaping from perilous encounters. They are in a position to be on the watch for danger in definite localities, to change their course if necessary to get away from trouble and to move cautiously when other indications tell them that ice may be expected. Plunging through without regard for what may be ahead and taking wide open chances in the face of known danger is more than those who have in charge large human cargoes should be willing to take. Danger signs in the ocean must be heeded as well as those on land if safety is to be obtained.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 15—Political Washington is getting more and more excited as the open season for primaries approaches. It is a battle for the senate control that is the absorbing topic, after "when will congress adjourn" is out of the way. In fact, the two questions are spoken in the same breath for senators who are standing for reelection find themselves at a great disadvantage by being kept here while their opponents are at home making hay and mending political fences.

As usual, the president isn't making open comments on the outlook, though someone recently quoted him as saying "things might be worse, yet they might be better".

The Pennsylvania primaries on Tuesday are uppermost in the mind of those watching the senatorial battles of 1928. Predictions are now useless, but it's a certainty that the administration, the senate itself and all followers of the regulars are extremely anxious that Senator Pepper should win the nomination tomorrow.

The interest in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts seems paramount to all others out here at this moment. With Senator William M. Butler standing for reelection in Massachusetts, any set back to his candidacy would be regarded as a set back for the presidential policies. Butler, chairman of the national republican committee, as spokesman and close personal friend of Coolidge, as the Coolidge campaign manager in 1924 holds a unique place in the senate. Butler has insisted that he win or lose on his own merit, and not as a "me too" of the president. He came to the senate with tremendous prestige, but utterly refused favors on that account. He took his seat with far more modesty than is shown by the average senator unknown to fame.

He asked nor would he accept any special courtesies on account of his national chairmanship or his Coolidge friendship. He took his seat in the back row of the senate, just as is the custom of newly elected senators to do. He took his committee assignments without expression of preference, and went to work merely as a senator from Massachusetts. He proceeded to work his way up, just as a lesser political light would have been compelled to do. That has given Butler strong influence in the senate, and he is consulted on every big measure, is one of the "working" senators and is holding his own in spite of what some regard as a handicap of "too much national prestige."

Butler is the target at which swift and sharp opposition arrows will be aimed, but the opinion here today is that he will pull a big vote and win when the election comes. It is now pretty well assured that he will have no opposition in the primary from members of his own party. In this the unspoken approval of Mr. Butler by President Coolidge, will have a tremendous influence, and Massachusetts men of opposite faction or opposite party, who endorse Coolidge, will not make the vigorous fight against Butler that would ordinarily be the case.

Of other New England senators certain of meeting contests at the primary are Moses of New Hampshire and Dale of Vermont as candidates against them are already announced. In New Hampshire it is former Gov. Bass a Roosevelt follower, a league of nations Wilson sympathiser who will oppose Moses, who is staunchly "regular." In Vermont John Barrett, of Pan American fame, and well known to every member of the congressional, diplomatic and other social sets, who will fight Dale, who suffers from the handicap of often failing to support Coolidge.

The Connecticut delegation has been up to its ears in committee work and steering certain measures on their assigned course in congress. Freeman is ranking member of the rivers and harbors committee and so is active in behalf of the Cape Cod Canal bill, which has been near the passing point a half dizen times since it came up for action in the Wilson administration; McLean is carrying on whatever comes up in the senate on banking and currency, as he is chairman of that committee; Bingham, as a member of the military committee has been active and prominent in aviation measures, as has also Mr. Merritt in the house, thus giving Connecticut great prestige in commercial aviation as pending or as passed congress this session. Col. Tilson, as one of the most tactful and efficient floor leaders the house has ever known, is busy straightening out tangles, securing recornitions for measures of national or state interest, is the busiest man in congress; the other Connecticut representatives are taking part in legislation as befits them as chairmen or members of important committees, and they all join with the rest of New England in safeguarding, or at least in attempting to safeguard New Englands industrial interests, against the onslaughts of the south and west, clamoring for added recognition of those sections of the country.

When the National League of Girl Scouts held its convention here the past week, New England senatorial women took an active part in their entertainment. One of the social features of the convention was a reception given in their honor by Mrs. Butler, of Massachusetts, Mrs. McLean and Mrs. Bingham of Connecticut, and Mrs. Dale and Mrs. Greene of Vermont.

President Coolidge led a conference as to the proper and nation wide observance of a national festival to be known as Independence week, to mark the sesquicentennial of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. The conference was held at the white house by a commission recently appointed by the government and it was presided over by the president as honorary chairman.

The plan for concerted observance is to make the week of June 28th one of similar patriotic observance throughout this country. At the same hour each state is to observe a ceremony along prescribed lines including the ringing of bells, salute to the flag and a recital of America's creed as a renewed pledge of faith. Representing New England on the commission are Senator McLean and Floor Leader Tilson of Connecticut.

In addition to the prescribed program practically every state will add special features especially commemorative of local incidents in the early history of the nation.

Uncle Sam is taking a hand in the affair by special minting of souvenir coins. Those of silver will be of the 50 cent denomination and will sell for $1 each, so it is said. Gold coins of $2.50 will be sold for $3.50. There will also be a "sesqui" postage stamp, which will be a 2 cent stamp with the principal design of a Liberty Bell. It will be the same size as special delivery stamps. Plans have been made to put in immediate circulation, as fast as production permits, 300,000,000 of the special postage stamp issue.

In his series of senatorial breakfasts President Coolidge has played no political favorites, so far as factions are concerned. He invites senators whether they agree with him in national policies or not.

For instance, Senator Johnson of California and Couzens of Michigan two of the men most bitterly opposed to practically every Coolidge policy, were included among the breakfast guests at a recent 8 o'clock get-together at the white house.

This was the first time, by the way, that Hiram Johnson had stepped into the white house since the republicans came back into power after the Wilson administration, and which event marked the defeat of Johnson as a republican presidential candidate.

President Coolidge takes it for granted that they all like "New England flap-jacks with plenty of Vermont maple sirup". And that's exactly what they get at these semi-official breakfasts.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

One of the men brought into the limelight by Great Britain's general strike is Arthur Pugh who, as chairman of the General Council of the Trades Union congress has been in actual control of the plans of the labor organizations. In comparison with Ben Tillett and other veterans of the labor leaders he began work at 14, a parative newcomer. Like most of the labor leaders he began work at 14. Within a short time he became prominent as an advocate for organization among the iron and steel workers and took part in the formation of the Iron and Steel trades confederations, of which he later became the general secretary. As a result of his work in this position he was elected to the General Council of the Trades Union congress and eventually was made its chairman. When important issues have been at stake Mr. Pugh has usually lined up with Ramsay McDonald and other conservative leaders of the labor party.

ABSENT MINDED

"It's awful to be absent-minded," remarked the girl in the blue silk ensemble.

"Sure sign you're in love," her escort answered with an anxious glance as he piloted her across Michigan avenue so that they might be free of the crowds on the west side of the street. "Are you in love, Corella?"

"I are not!" The girl in the blue silk ensemble shook her head most emphatically. "Only—I've been doing so many absent-minded things lately that I suppose I might just as well be. Now last week," she went on, "I pulled an awful one, honestly.

"There was a big sale of slippers at one of the stores and, of course, yours truly had to go shopping. I had a number of things to buy and I took my Boston bag with me because I needed some of the things that night and they don't deliver the same day.

"The slippers were a big bargain and every pair was so good that I couldn't decide which one to take out of three that the clerk brought me. He was called away for a few minutes, so I thought I'd stroll over to look at some other shoes on a counter close by. There were at least ten counters covered with shoes.

"Well, my clerk didn't return and there was such an enormous crowd that I didn't wait to get another clerk. I just decided that I wouldn't buy any slippers after all. So I strolled down the steps to the main floor. It seemed to me that a lot of people were eying me queerly, but I wasn't actually annoyed until I became aware of a big man who was following me around from counter to counter. I did give him a few mean looks, but they didn't trouble him any.

"He stepped up to me just as I was getting ready to leave the store, but before he spoke I happened to glance down suddenly and there were those three pairs of shoes strapped to my arm!

"Believe me, I quick jerked them off and threw them at that store detective, and then I flew. Do you suppose I'd have been arrested if he'd caught me before I had a chance to discover those shoes?"

"Sure would, Corella. I hope you'd have had presence of mind enough to call on me to bail you out," laughed her escort. "Don't ever let your absent-mindedness get so far that you lose sight of the fact that I'm always ready to—"

"Then yesterday I went to visit Arabella in that cunning little bungalow of hers out in Evaston, you know."

"Do you like that cunning little bungalow of hers out in Evaston, you know."

"Do you like that house? There's one just like it next door, Corella. It's still vacant. If you—"

"There are three just alike in that block," hurried the girl in blue. "Arabella's is in the middle and the one on the other side is occupied by an elderly couple. Anyway, the first time I was out there I went with you—"

"I remember."

"And so I didn't pay any attention to the number. But yesterday I went alone. It wasn't until I got there that I discovered I didn't know which of the two occupied houses it was—"

"You certainly are absent-minded Corella," her escort broke in. "After I had remarked about 50 times that you'd be living next door to Arabella if we—if you— if we took that vacant one on the south side of her house—"

"So of course I guessed the wrong one. Only I was sure it was the right one at the time. The front door was open and it occurred to me that I'd run up to Arabella's bedroom and get my things off and then march into the kitchen and surprise her."

"My sainted uncle! Did they call the police?"

"Almost. The elderly lady of the house came up just as I was taking off my coat. I can still hear the yell she gave. I had a terrible time making her believe me. She wanted to look me in her room and call the police."

"Couldn't you reach Arabella?"

"Not for a while. She was out doing her marketing. However, she came back just as I was beginning to resign myself to a ride in a patrol wagon—"

"Corella," solemnly stated her escort as they stopped in the shadow of the Art ingtitute, "you are too absent-minded to be left without a guardian. Say 'yes' this minute to my 14th proposal or I'll have that store detective to swear you're a kleptomaniac. Will you marry me?"

"Yes," hurriedly agreed the girl in blue. "I—I guess I'd better, Dudley."

From Small Beginnings

Malcolm Cameron, the Brewery Clerk, a Great Canadian

Among the great men in the history of Canada, Malcolm Cameron is especially worthy of note, not only because, through his efforts, the old divisions of Canada were brought together and a firm union established, nor because in a period of many years of active political work, he stood for good causes and the advancement of the land in which he lived, but more particularly because he rose from the depths of poverty to a place of great influence.

One day in his early manhood he sat alone in the little wayside store where he worked. The store was one of those curious little places that sell everything, a small place with a warm stove, around which were set several chairs for the farmers who stopped to rest and to gossip. As usual, Malcolm Cameron was deep in the pages of a book—for here were many moments when no customers appeared. One man alone sat by the great stove. He had watched the boy for some time without speaking.

"Malcolm," he said at last, "why do you stick to that book so?"

The boy laughed. "Never had a chance at school," he said, "always had to work. Now I'm trying to make up."

"You're a good worker, Malcolm. I used to watch you taking care of horses." He had to work in those days, the boy said. "I didn't get much time to study at all until I worked in the brewery. That gave me a little time. Back on the farm, and taking care of the horses here, I had to work most of the time."

"Book-learning is good," the farmer meditated, "maybe you'll be in parliament some day."

That chance prophecy made in the little store came true. The boy kept on his studies, making up for the time when he had had no chance to go to school. He grew into full manhood, and at the age of 28 was elected to represent the people of his neighborhood. He had learned the value of hard work, and he had read only good books. He had formed a staunch character and so he spoke boldly for what he believed to be right. Inevitably he rose to prominence, became a leader in legislation, a maker of Canadian union, minister of agriculture, postmaster general, and a man whom everyone respected highly. For many years he led in the political life of Canada.

In all those years of active leadership he remained at heart as simple, as honest, as he had been in the days when he was only a brewer's clerk or a country storekeeper, and he was always as hard working as he had been in the days when he fought to obtain education. He died at 68, still in the harness, still a leader in the political life of Canada.

Stories That Recall Others

Time to Leave

Patrons of a grocery had a good laugh. One woman started with her daughter for several Saturday evening duties included the ordering of groceries for the next few days. She recalled she needed lard so hastened into the kitchen, where she grasped two lard pails and off to the store she went with her daughter.

As the mother was giving her order smiles of other customers and whisperings disconcerted her until she heard her daughter fairly scream:

"Mother, you've brought the alarm clock."

The German and Polish socialists in Kattowitz, Upper Silesia have passed resolutions agreeing to act in cooperation, in case a call comes for action in the present Polish disturbances, which is interpreted as indicating that they will support Marshal Pilsudski.

The Merry Little Breezes Help Johnny

The Merry Little Breezes say:
"Be helpful even in your play."

Old Mother West Wind had just told Johnny Chuck that he was in the Old Pasture. Never had Johnny had a greater surprise. You see, the Old Pasture hadn't once entered Johnny's head. He never had been up there to the Old Pasture, and although he knew much about it from what Peter Rabbit had told him, he hadn't recognized it when Farmer Brown's Boy had set him free from the box trap. You remember that Farmer Brown's Boy had taken Johnny up there because Johnny had been in mischief in the Old Orchard.

Johnny forgot his bad temper. Yes, sir, he did so. Johnny forgot his bad temper because he was interested. He wanted to know what the Old Pasture was like. He had dug himself a house and he felt quite safe, although he was hungry and didn't know just which way to turn to get something to eat. But to learn that he was in the Old Pasture was rather exciting. He knew that Reddy Fox lived up here somewhere. He suspected that Old Man Coyote also lived here. He knew that sometimes in the berry season Buster Bear came to the Old Pasture. So he had a great curiosity to see the Old Pasture and become acquainted with it. Instead of kicking angrily at his pile of sand, as he had been doing, he sat up and sighed.

"What are you sighing for Johnny Chuck?" Old Mother West Wind asked.

"I'm sighing," said Johnny, and stopped to sigh right in the middle of what he was saying, "because there is so much I want to see and I know no one up here to ask the way. I don't feel at all safe wandering about, not knowing whom I may meet around the next turn, or where there is a hiding place should I need it. No, sir, I don't feel at all safe. Here I am up in the Old Pasture and I suppose I won't see it at all, because I have no one to show me about. If I should undertake to go about by myself I am afraid I would run my head right into the jaws of Old Man Coyote, or do something else equally bad. That's the worst of being in a place of which you know nothing."

Old Mother West Wind looked thoughtful. Then she opened her big bag and emptied out of it her children—the Merry Little Breezes. "Play with Johnny Chuck," said she, "while I go about my day's work. And if you can help Johnny, do it."

Then Old Mother West Wind started off about her day's work. She had windmills to turn; she had rain clouds to blow where they were needed; she had ships to sail across the great ocean; she had many, many things to do, for Old Mother West Wind is a very busy person.

The Merry Little Breezes had nothing to do but play. So they danced about Johnny Chuck. They rumpled his hair and tickled his whiskers. And as they danced they sang softly:

"It helps to pass the time away
To aid your neighbors by the way.
Yip, skip, skip, hop,
You'll never miss it 'fo we stop."

Then they all urged Johnny Chuck to take a walk and told him they would go with him. So some danced ahead and some stayed behind. Some did merry little whirls on each side of him. And whenever one found an interesting little odor, he hurried right back with it to Johnny Chuck. And so it was that Johnny's little black nose was kept busy every minute, and Johnny knew before he got there just what he would find around each turn and bend in the little path. The Merry Little Breezes were playing, but they were also helping Johnny Chuck; and they were happy; very happy, for there is nothing the Merry Little Breezes delight in more than in helping others.

So instead of kicking angrily at his pile of sand, as he had been doing, he sat up and sighed

DEMOCRATIC WATERS IS RENOMINATED; FITZGERALD DEFEATS CORKERY

The democratic party at its city caucus Monday evening in the town hall unanimously renominated Hon. Milo R. Waters as its candidate for mayor at the June election. John J. Corkery, for years a member of the water board, lost the renomination to Jeremiah A. Fitzgerald, well known local plumber, by a vote of 246 to 158. This was the only contest at the caucus. Approximately 400 democratic men and women attended the caucus which was called to order at 8 o'clock, daylight time, by William H. Callahan, chairman of the democratic town committee. Henry Gebrath nominated William H. Shields, Jr., as chairman of the caucus and he was unanimously chosen.

Mr. Shields, on taking the chair, thanked the caucus for the honor of being called to preside over the meeting. He said that for the past four years the city has had a successful democratic administration and predicted that the democratic ticket will be elected at the city election next month.

Earl Matthewson nominated Cornelius J. Downes for clerk of the caucus and Mr. Downes was chosen. After the clerk had read the warning Chairman Shields announced that the caucus was open for nominations for mayor. In renominating Mayor Milo R. Waters, Thomas H. Shields said that the election, only three weeks away, will probably be one of the most important elections in years. He said the city will undertake during the next two years probably the largest single undertaking that has ever confronted it, having reference to the building of the new Deep River brook reservoir. This will require the best judgment and deepest knowledge of administration affairs. A great deal of it will fall on the mayor's shoulders. He spoke of Mayor Waters as a man who has judgment and a deep knowledge of administration affairs. This is an important election, he said, not only to those present here tonight but to those not here, irrespective of party. I take great pleasure in nominating Milo R. Waters for mayor. (Applause)

Mayor Waters was unanimously nominated by acclamation. The next business before the caucus was the choice of two candidates for aldermen. H. F. Parker said he had in mind a man who has served the city well in this capacity for years. He agreed with what Mr. Shields said in regard to the nomination of a man for mayor and said this applied as well in naming the candidate for alderman. We need men of business ability and good judgment. I want to place the name of Henry Gebrath for nomination for first alderman. (Applause) Mr. Gebrath was unanimously chosen as the party's candidate.

For second alderman Edward G. McKay said he took great pleasure in presenting the name of a man who has served the city in that capacity for four years. He spoke of his service as a police commissioner and of what he has accomplished in solving the local traffic problem. He named Patrick F. Sweeney for renomination. The nomination was greeted with applause and was unanimous.

Nominations for four councilmen were then in order and were made as follows:

Charles S. Avery was nominated for city treasurer by Edward G. McKay and city sheriffs were named as follows: William J. Carroll nominated by Martin Keough; John M. Hoelck, nominated by Henry Gebrath.

The only contest at the caucus occurred in the choice for water commissioner. John M. Lee in placing before the caucus the name of John J. Corkery for renomination said: I think this large meeting of democrats is to be congratulated on its ticket. He spoke of Mayor Waters' record during the past four years and said it should be the duty of the party to see that the ticket is strengthened in naming the party's member of the water board. He said that the water department is strictly a business proposition and an important thing to be considered. The water supply of the city, he said, has a business valuation of over a million dollars. It returns annually to the city $60,000 or $80,000 in revenue and this money is used to pay the bills of the city, thus reducing the taxes. The city of Norwich is now engaged in the development of a new water supply. This will call for another million dollars, and we ought to safeguard this investment. Mr. Lee said the man he was going to name for water commissioner has had great experience in the water department. He then presented the name of John J Corkery and the nomination was greeted with cheers and applause.

James P. Sheridan quickly took the floor. I wish to place in nomination a young man, born and raised in Norwich and a graduate of the local schools. He is a man who has made a success of his business. He is in the plumbing and heating business. He is the unanimous choice of the democratic town committee for this office. I have all respect for the outgoing incumbent. I know him personally and he is a wonderful man. But this is a young man. None of us is going to stay here forever and someone is going to take our places. Mr. Sheridan then presented the name of Jeremiah A. Fitzgerald, applause greeting the nomination.

Gilbert S. Raymond in seconding the nomination of Mr. Corkery said he is familiar with the water department and is a man Norwich can ill afford to lose.

As there were no other candidates named for the office, Chairman Shields named Earl Matthewson and Edward G. McKay as tellers and the voting was started, the voters passing from left to right in front of the chairman's desk and registering their votes with the tellers. The result was announced as follows by Chairman Shields:

Total votes cast—402
Necessary for choice—202
For Mr. Fitzgerald—246
For Mr Corkery—156

After the result had been read by the chair John M. Lee moved that the nomination of Mr. Fitzgerald be made unanimous and the motion prevailed. Henry Gebrath moved that the democratic town committee be empowered to fill any vacancies that may occur on the ticket and the motion was carried, after which the caucus adjourned, having been in session 45 minutes.

Great enthusiasm is being manifested by Catholics of Norwich and vicinity in the three-days' retreat in honor of St. Therese, "the Little Flower of Jesus", which is to open in St. Mary's Memorial church this (Tuesday) evening at 7:30.

About 500 children of St. Mary's parish are receiving communion at the 8 o'clock mass, with the first communion class of 50, this (Tuesday) morning.

The beautiful statue of St. Therese donated to the parish has been decorated with flowers and made very attractive. Tonight at 7:30, Rev. Father Lucien, one of the most eloquent of the members of the Passionist Order of Preachers is to bless and unveil this statue and deliver the sermon. This will be followed by benediction of the blessed sacrament.

The pastor of St. Mary's, Rev. William A. Keefe has secured the aid of several visiting priests for the accommodation of the large number who desire to go to confession immediately after the evening exercises. A special choir will render an attractive program and an extra corps of ushers will attend to the seating of the large congregation expected.

Father Keefe has arranged a special parking plan for the many automobiles by directing that all cars be parked in the extensive school and church grounds on Convent avenue, in the rear of St. Mary's Memorial church.

SELLAS SPA PUTTING IN REFRIGERATION SYSTEM

Peter Sellas, proprietor of Sellas Spa on Franklin square, is about to have installed in his building a mechanical refrigerating equipment of the most approved type as a solution of his ice and refrigeration problem. This work is to be completed and in running order by the 15th of June and is being done by the Polley Refrigerating and Supply Co., of South Norwalk, whose engineers are men of wide experience and authorities on mechanical refrigeration. This is the fourth plant installed by them in Norwich, the previous ones being for C. C. Tradt, Norwich Provision Co., and Felix Burzycki at 235 West Thames St.

This improvement by Mr. Sellas is in line with the demands of modern sanitation that perishable food products be kept at an even temperature in a pure dry atmosphere. Mr. Sellas will now have the satisfaction of knowing that his products are handled and kept under the most ideal of modern sanitary conditions in refrigeration, which will do away with the dampness caused by the melting of ice, this resulting in the deterioration of food products.

Irving R. Polley, consulting engineer, who today is considered an authority on refrigeration, is a comparatively young man, who started a few years ago in a small way and by making a special study of mechanical refrigeration, had worked up one of the most efficient organizations of its kind. His engineers have recently made installations of mechanical refrigeration for some of the largest concerns of their kind in this state. In addition to the ice cream, dairy, hotel and restaurants, and meat industries they have recently made very successful installations in this state for apple cold storage, parafine cardboard industry, cotton industry, fish cold storage, fur cold storage, drinking water systems, etc.

One of Mr. Polley's lieutenants tells of a most extraordinary use to which artificial refrigeration was put during the gold rush in the Nome, Alaska district. A group of miners endeavored to extract gold which they knew to be in a certain soft beach ground, but the constant digging caused the ground to sink. This lieutenant suggested freezing the ground sufficiently to keep it hard enough to work, and installed a small ammonia p[lant] which proved successful, and as a consequence $30,000 worth of gold was extracted from the spot.

TWO FINED IN COURT FOR SUNDAY DISTURBANCE

John Johnson, 19, and Walter Sawicki, 20, both of Jewett City, who created a Sunday night disturbance on North Main street, paid $76.40 in the city court Monday morning in order to regain their liberty. They were before Judge Arthur F. Libby on charges of intoxication and breach of the peace. Sawicki also faced a charge of resisting an officer. Johnson drew a fine of $20 and costs and Sawicki was fined $10 for intoxication, $10 for breach of the peace and $10 for resisting an officer, with costs added.

According to the testimony the accused tried to gain an entrance to the home of Charles Yells, No. 72 North Main street, and when they were refused entrance tried to break in the door. It is claimed Sawicki threw a pan at Mrs. Yells, the pan striking her in the arm and the head. Mr. Yells went for help and found Officer Peter Vuono who, although off duty and in citizen's clothes, responded. Sawicki struck him in the face and then started to run away. The officer collared him near Burnham square and the two were hustled to police headquarters in a machine owned and driven by George Hollingsworth.

The prisoners claimed they were looking for someone and picked out the wrong house. They were given a severe reprimand by Judge Libby who told them Norwich was no place for Jewett City young men to come to for a drunk.

Joseph Langlois of Taftville was in court on a breach of the peace charge in striking James J Troland, manager of the Hillcrest theatre in Taftville. His case was adjusted in payment of actual costs, $7. The trouble started when Mr. Troland was opening the theatre for business Sunday night. He pushed one of Langlois' children away from the front of the door. The boy went home and told his father about it and Langlois hustled down to the theatre and engaged in a verbal tilt with the manager. It was testified that Langlois hit the theatre man under the chin. Langlois refused to reason with Troland and as a result was summoned to court. Mr. Troland stated to the court that he did not wish to see Langlois penalized as he is a poor man with seven children. So the court allowed Langlois to settle on payment of the costs of the case.

Four men were fined for intoxication and an intoxication case against another man was continued until May 19th. John Whallen, transient, charged with resistance and begging, was given 30 days in jail, suspended provided he leaves town.

DOCTORS AMAZED AT NEW TREATMENT FOR HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Favorable Result in 92 Per Cent of Cases Treated

At a recent discourse on high blood pressure a group of prominent physicians were amazed at results obtained by a wonderful new treatment called Tenso.

In 92% of the cases the average reduction was found to be at least 40%. Dizziness, nose-bleed, hot flashes, moodiness—all the typical symptoms—were reduced quickly to a minimum.

Tenso is not a new discovery. It is the private formula of a specialist used and perfected over a period of many years. Restores elasticity to hardened arteries. Tenso contains no narcotics or harmful drugs. Safe to take.

Sufferers from high blood pressure should try a two weeks' treatment. Money back if it does not bring satisfactory results.

Tenso can be bought at the following druggists: G. G. Engler, Lee & Osgood Co., G. M. Rathbone, Chas. C. Treat.

Better than Soda

A spoonful of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any druggistore.

Danger Signals of High Blood Pressure

"Dizzy spells, hot flashes, pains in the head, shortness of breath, sleeplessness, and nervousness usually indicate high blood pressure," warns physician who found treatment to reduce it.

These are symptoms which show an accumulation of poisonous waste matter in the system or that one or more of your organs has weakened and caused the heart to be overtaxed. Check it at once for it is known high blood pressure brings on hardening of the arteries, apoplexy, Bright's disease, and often sudden death.

Norma, a harmless purely vegetable medicine and a physician's prescription, reduces blood pressure so surely it is regarded as a great medical success. Often one bottle brings prompt relief. Ask for Norma for high blood pressure. For sale by Lee & Osgood Drug Store and all other good druggists.

SUSIE AND BOY FRIEND FOLLOW HAGEN AROUND AT NORWICH GOLF CLUB MATCH

Susie and the boy friend were numbered among the throng of golf enthusiasts that braved the driving rain of Sunday to see Walter Hagen and Johnny Farrell play their exhibition at the Norwich Golf club. Susie was apparently impressed with golf from the letter she writes telling of her experiences. Her letter follows:

Dear Sports Ed:

Say whatcha think about that games that they call golfs? Ain't it some game, I'll say it am. I ain't never been but one matches but that was enough to make me think its gotta gotta games beat a mile. Any game what will keep 200 people chasin' round a golf linx in a driving rain and make 'em like it must have some attraction that ain't visible from the side-lines. Can you imagine a crowd of 200 peoples standin' out in the rain watchin' a baseball game? Well, neither can I, nor nobody else. I'll bet a lotta them folks what slipped, slid and splashed around after that feller Hagen on Sunday wouldn't walk no two blocks for a loaf of bread if they was starvin' say nothin' about hoofin' it four miles.

They say folks gets crazy about golf and I says they is crazy if they do, if they hafta play it on days like Sunday. 'Course I can see how it would be nice on a bright sunshiny day but darned if I wanta play in a lake, specially if you ain't got no canoe. Well these remarks ain't gettin' me no where in describin' the match the way I saw it nor my feelin's in seein' four big huskies slam a little white ball all over them East Great Plane pastures.

Well, when the boy friend tells me he's blowed in three bucks for a coupla pasteboards what entitles us to gase upon what is rated as the country's best golfers I near keeled over. The boy ain't in no habit of throwin' his money away unless he gets something for it, so I thinks it was goin' to be good. But I don't bargain for no wet weather, which, by the way, has set me back about fifty bucks in wearin' apparel, to say nothin' about havin' a nasty cold and the rpomatism

Me and the boy drives to the golf ling about 2:30 and then stands 'round givin' the other dames the once over while we is waitin' for the golfers to appear. Everybody is remarkin' what a shame its rainin' but I don't notice none of 'em goin' home. They all sticks, for which I give 'em credit for havin' more courage than brains. Bime bye a feller all dolled up in trick sweater and knickers appears and with him is a feller carryin' a bag. Somebody says in a whisper 'that's Johnny Farrell and I says "Hello Johnny," like you do to the baseball players, but I don't get no tumble. The boy friend says there's Johnny's caddy and I looks around but I don't see no auto and I says, "Where?" and the boy says "That feller carrying the bag." Gosh, I must be dumb about golfs.

This Farrell baby hits a coupla balls effa bump in fronta the grandstand, (I mean club house). Speakin' of grandstands, Ed., wouldn't it be a great idea if somebody should invent some portable grandstands for a golf match? Maybe that Farrell kid didn't sock them little balls a awful wallop. Too bad them Academy boys can't hit a baseball like that when they play against Bulkeley. Maybe they could if you teed 'em up instead of throwin' 'em at 'em. Well pretty soon Wally Hagen appears, I call him Wally cause he give me a smile and I could see a lotta them other dames was jealous.

Wally don't take no practice licks but he's already to play just the same. The college lads appear and the match is on. A college kid takes the first crack at the ball and does pretty good seein' he's no fat like a match. Then comes Wally. When he gets to crack that ball I just yelled out, "Atta boy, Wally, sock that old pill a mile." My, don't I collect a lotta dirty looks from the crowd besides a nasty kick in the shins from the boy friend, "Whatcha kickin' me for?" I asks the boy. He says, "Listen kid, this ain't no ball game and this ain't no time to cheer 'cause golf ettiket demands that the crowd keep quiet while a feller is tryin' to sock the ball." Gosh, I don't get it but he's seen more matches as I have so I pipes down. Seems like there ain't no pep in that crowd a tall and the only cheerin' done is a mild flutter of hand-clappin'. If Babe Ruth can hit a ball whats heaved at him like a bullet with 50,000 fans hollerin' "Hit it, you big bum," I don't see why a golfer should get peeved at one lone fan encouragin' him. The ball ain't movin' and it seems as though he oughta be able to sock it inta the next county

Well, Wally gets off a sweet wallop and everybody says "Wonderful," "What a beautiful drive," "Isn't that magnificant" and a lotta soft stuff like that, Ostermoor bunk I calls it. All I says is nothin' seein' how's it against the rules to express yourself in good American English. Them players gets honeys of wallops and then the crowd chases on after them players, all the young flappers tryin' get as close to Wally and Johany as possible but they don't get no tumbles either. The big babies is usets that stuff and them flappers don't register no more'n any other part of the scenery. Well, we mushes on along with the crowd and them boys is takin' another wallop at the ball, only this time they don't sell it up on no pimple of earth, they hits it where it lies. Most of 'em use iron bats or clubs and I guess them balls must be pretty tough to stand a smack with iron. They is tryin' to get the ball to a flat piece of ground that was smooth like a table. When they gets on this piece of turf they tries to push their ball in a hole in the ground. Kinda makes me think of a pool game, outdoor pool as it was. Well, we tags on after the gang, getting wetter and wetter but nobody don't seem to mind it, only me. The boy friend has got them northern boots on, arctics I mean, and everybody give him the laugh but before that matches was over he was gettin' quite a laugh on them. Me, I don't have no boots nor yet even rubbers and by the time I gets a coupla miles walked outa me my shoes is soakin' and I is wet from head to foots. I ain't the only one either, 'cause a lotta them dames ain't got rubbers and neither raincoats, you can hear their feets go squosh, squosh, squosh, every time they walks but they sticks to it and I sure admires their courage

Well, we follows on and at one hole I makes a mother break. The boy friend says that Hagan got a birdie and I says, "The mean thing, a sparrow or robin?" thinkin' he'd bit a bird with his ball. "I sees plainly that you don't no nothin' about golfs," says the boy. I says, "Kid, you said a buckeeful". Somebody gives me a nasty laugh but they was a lotta them folks followin' that match that didn't no no more about golfs then I did. Well, everything goes fine except the rain, and that's gettin' thicker and thicker and goes down your neck. If I been in swimmin' I could get no wetter.

The matches is good but the walkin's bum and I falls down only a coupla times which is "pretty good seemin' hows a lotta folks ain't havin' no such luz. We is goin' along from one tea to a nother when the boy friend says, "Gosh ain't that hard luck, Johnny just drove inta a trap. I looks around and the only trap I sees is one for catchin' moles and I asks to the boy does he mean that. He don't say nothin', he don't have to, his looks is enough and right there I says to myself I ain't goin' to say nothin' more till I learn that game of golfs.

Say Ed. we followed that match around and I just been figuring up what it cost outside the three bucks for admission. Its like this: one pair of shoes 9 bucks, one pair silk hoses 2 bucks, one good spring hat 10 bucks, one spring coat what shrunk to a jacket 40 bucks, medicine a buck and a half. Total $62.50. Some expensive for one golfs matches. No wonder they says golfs is expensive. I don't no what the boy friend's bill is but I know he's gotta have his Sunday suit pressed.

Well Ed. here's hopin' you didn't get no newmonia.

Yours as Ever,

SUSIE.

DAN O'NEIL NOT EXPECTED TO LIVE THE NIGHT OUT

HOLYOKE, Mass., May 17—(AP)—Dan O'Neil, president of the Eastern Baseball League, a member of the national board of arbitration for the sport, and for many years a picturesque figure in baseball, politics and light harness racing is not expected to live through the night. The baseball mogul has been seriously ill for more than a week and his physicians reported him as failing rapidly tonight.

Dan O'Neil, who is credited with being the cause of the writing into the baseball books of more rules than any other figure in the game, moved to national prominence from player to captain, manager, owner and finally president of the league he founded. Admired for his resourcefulness and tenacity, once in a desperate fight to win a pennant he forced his club to play four games in one day, resulting in another rule.

He came with his parents from Ireland in the 60s and moved from Unionville, Conn., to Holyoke about 1870, where his interest in baseball was born.

In 1907 he caused a furore in organized baseball by importing players from Cuba.

He became president of the Eastern league in 1915, and has made it one of the most successful class A leagues in the country. As a member of the national board of arbitration, he was known throughout the country to baseball men who held him in high esteem.

McGRAW AND LOAYZA FIGHT FAST 10-ROUND DRAW

NEW YORK, May 17—(AP)—Phil McGraw, rugged Detroit lightweight and Stanislaus Loayza, of Chile, battled fiercely to a sensational draw tonight in the final of three ten round bouts on a charity show at Madison Square Garden.

The wind-up bout, a slashing, bruising fight from start to finish, provided a sensational climax to a card that brought together title contenders in four divisions.

In the previous two ten-round features, Willie Harmon, of New York, and Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh leading welterweights, also battled to a draw, while Bushey Graham of Utica, N. Y., bantamweight contender, jabbed and hooked his way to the judges' decision over Frankie Genaro of New York, former American flyweight champion.

The card, was witnessed by a capacity crowd of 18,000, numbering leaders in various walks of life and political figures such as Mayor Walker and U. S. Senator Wadsworth. Fashionably gowned society women occupied ringside seats and society girls sold programs.

The gate receipts were $120,000 of which $70,000, it was announced, will go to aid the work of the Catholic Big Sisters. The charity budget reached $90,000 altogether through the sale of autographed programs and other contributions.

KEARNS ARRIVES FOR LATSO-WALKER BOUT

"Mickey is in the best shape of his entire career," Kearns declared. "If I don't miss my guess he'll knock the coal miner out in five rounds."

Walker will come here Wednesday afternoon from his training camp at Red Bank, N. J., he will be accompanied by Teddy Hayes, veteran trainer.

Twelve thousand fans, the largest crowd that has ever witnessed a boxing contest in Northeastern Pennsylvania will pack the armory to capacity, nearly every available seat already having been sold.

YANKS REGISTER THEIR SIXTH STRAIGHT WIN

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP)—The Yanks clicked off their sixth straight victory today, beating the White Sox 5 to 2, in the second of the series.

Ruth failed to get a homer, crossing the opposition with a bunt, which he laid down in the sixth. Ted Blankenship was so amazed at this he forgot himself and grooved one for the next batter, Bob Meusel, and Bob converted it into his fifth homer of the season. Urban Shocker kept ten hits well enough scattered to chalk up his fifth victory of the year.

COMPLETE SHAKE-UP IN YALE FRESHMAN CREW

NEW HAVEN, May 17.—(AP)—A complete shake-up in the Yale freshman crew in preparation for Saturday's race with Princeton and Cornell freshmen at Ithaca, was announced tonight by Coach Mike Murphy. Only two men, Morris at bow and Burling in No. 3 remain in the positions they held in last Saturday's race. The rest of the men were shifted about and Cookman was shoved down to the second boat by the return of Paine who was a measles victim.

The varsity and junior varsity crews have been rowing without changes for the past week and are nearing midseason form.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL LEAGUE

Broadway captured the lead in the grammar school baseball league yesterday afternoon when they defeated the Elizabeth Streeters on the Academy field by the score of 23 to 10. ACADEMY CLOSES WITH PLAINFIELD HIGH AT CAMPUS THIS AFTERNOON

Today's Lineups

Academy	Plainfield
Cimikouski, 2b	3b, Stevens
Sadinsky, lf	cf, Tetreault
Jarvis, cf	rf, Gilbert
Goldblatt, c	ss, French
Burns, 1b	2b, Peterson
Yerrington, 3b	c, Misura
Tsumburi, ss	lf, Garvey
Brewer, rf	1b, Burton
Greene, p	p, Williams

Stung by their defeat of Saturday at the hands of their most hated rival, Bulkeley, the Academy team will be out for Plainfield's scalp today in the second game of the season between these two clubs. The game will be played at the Campus and Johnny Greene will be sent in to pitch against the boys from up state.

Greene beat the Plainfield team 5 to 4 in a close game at Plainfield earlier in the season getting 11 strikeouts and having complete control over the Plainfield hits. With Goldblatt catching him in today's game Greene should go as well if not better than in the previous game. If Greene is to win the Academy must hit behind him and not do as they did with Bulkeley on Saturday.

Plainfield will use either Baker or Williams, probably Williams who made the best showing against the Academy in the previous game. Plainfield is out to erase the beating earlier in the season and will bring the full strength to bat today. The little school from upstate considers the Academy game one of the big games of the season and to win it fills their cup of happiness to overflowing. Plainfield should not be underrated because it is a small school for it has turned out some mighty fine baseball teams.

Today's game is the first of three this week for the Academy. Westerly will be played here on Thursday and Bulkeley invades the Campus on Saturday. None of these teams is a setup for the local school boys who will go at top speed in all contests. The Academy has somewhat recovered from the stage-fright they suffered Saturday and from now on should play ball.

FINAL BOXING SHOW AT LORRAINE CLUB TONIGHT

For the final boxing show of the season at the Lorraine Community club, Westerly, tonight, Matchmaker Phil Fortin has rounded up a crowd of mittsters that according to their past records can well be classed as all stars. In the main bout of six rounds, Mickey Furey, the light heavyweight from the sub-basin will mix with Tom Hartley the Watch Hill Coast Guard. Both Tom and Mickey are shining lights in the eyes of the club fans as their previous meeting back in February is gone but far from forgotten. They supplied all present with six rounds of the type of boxing action that all lovers of the game crave. Both boys are well prepared and a still faster pace is expected.

The semi-final is also booked for six rounds between the Westerly boy Walter Main and Young Griffith of Providence. These two boys met in the big town a few weeks ago and set a pace for six rounds that has not been duplicated for some time to a draw at the final bell.

Hookie Jackson, the youngster that is climbing the ladder of fame by leaps and bounds, will tackle Young DeBattelo in the top preliminary of four rounds.

Jackie Rose will mix with Young Bruno; Kid Trapp with Joe Meringolo. These boys have won their popularity a long time ago for always making it interesting for one another. The curtain raiser of four rounds will bring on a 115 pound leather pusher from Norwich and Kid Lawrence of Westerly.

HARFORD, May 17.—(AP)—John Sobiral, 14 years old, of South Manchester, was the winner in three events at the fourth annual athletic contest and track meet of the Connecticut School for the Blind, on Holcomb street this afternoon. TWILIGHT LEAGUE MEETING SCHEDULED FOR TONIGHT

There will be another meeting of the managers of the teams now entered in the Norwich Twilight league this evening at the rooms of the Duwell club to make final arrangements for the opening of the league. The Thermos team is expected to enter the league in place of the Centrals who resigned from the league following the first meeting.

Red Tops Win

The Taftville Redtops defeated the Versailles Cubs Sunday afternoon by the score of 11 to 5.

The game was played under a continuous drizzle of rain. The hitting of the following helped a great deal in winning the game: "Ted" Pepin and "Titus" Pepin each getting four hits out of five times at bat and "Bill" Peltier getting five hits and one walk in six times up.

The Redtops challenge any teams in the vicinity under 16 years of age.

Webster Team After Games

Intervale Mills A. A., would like to book games in and around Norwich for any Saturday or Sunday games and will give them a return game later in the season.

Are willing to go for a reasonable guarantee and would give them a good clean game as we have a very fast baseball team around Worcester county. Archie Walker Mgr. Intervale Mills A. A. 23 Whitcomb street, Webster, Mass.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week there was a steady increase in the building in Norwich and vicinity as is attested by the number of building permits issued by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton during the past week. The work called for in the permits is largely for garages and alterations to present buildings the two largest contracts being for the alterations to the old Chelsea boat house and a new dwelling house on Hammond avenue for Earl Galkins.

The old boathouse now owned by Alex M. Pasnik is to be remodeled into a garage which will be occupied by Fontaine Bros. The second story is to be cut off the present building and a ramp built leading to West Main street level. Show windows are also to be built into the building. The work will be started within a short time.

The house to be built by Healey and Washburn for Earl Galkins is to be of the semi-bungalow type and will be of frame construction with concrete foundation.

The permits issued by Fire Marshal Stanton are as follows:

To Frank Gaska to erect a frame barn at 79 Elliah street for Albert Koladsing. The barn will be of frame construction, 20x24 feet

To Charles A. Yerrington to erect a frame gas station on Laurel Hill avenue. The station will be 12x20 feet.

To Mrs. Minnie L. Allen to add a frame veranda to present house at 76 Church street. The veranda will be 6x48 feet.

To Stanley Baranowski to erect a frame garage at 159 Hickory street. The garage will be 10x12 feet.

To Alex M. Pasnik to alter two buildings at 36 West Main street. The old Chelsea boat club house to be remodeled into a garage with entrance from West Main street. The second story of the building is to be removed and a ramp leading from building to street to be erected. The garage will be occupied by Fontaine Bros.

To Fannie Sechester to erect a frame and stone stock shed at 81 Spring street. The shed will be 15x15 feet.

To Mathon Belt to erect a frame garage 20x45 feet on Stockwell place.

To Fannie Broncerwina to erect a frame and stone stock shed at 91 Spring

To Healey and Washburn to erect a frame house on Hammond avenue for Earl Galkins. The house will be 22x24 feet and two stories high. The foundation will be of stone and concrete. The exterior finish will be of clapboards and shingles. The interior finish will be in hardwood and plaster.

John A. Tracy to add to present frame building on Union street for Dr. A. C. Freeman.

To Augustus Vera to add a bay window to present house on Mt. Pleasant street. The window will be 4x12 feet.

To Wladyslaw Ryndak to alter present frame building on Central avenue. The building when completed will be 26x30 feet.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were 10 sales of real estate, 13 less than for the same week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $41,600 and $82,640.

In New London during the past week there were 13 sales of real estate and increase of four sales over the same week in the preceding year. The mortgage loans for the respective week were $97,700 and $53,750.

Building Permits in State

The number of building permits issued in the cities and towns covered by The Commercial Record during the past week was greater than the total for the corresponding week in both 1925 and 1924. A total of 469 permits was issued last week, against 451 for a year ago and 379 for the same week in 1924. The total estimated cost of construction work permitted for during the past week, however, was more than a million dollars less than the building costs recorded for the like week in 1924.

Increase in Building

The building construction industry has again done the unexpected and, after lagging somewhat in the first quarter, has with the coming of better weather, leaped to new high levels. The April totals in the principal Connecticut building centers were equal to, if not ahead of last year and with the present rate of activity there are indications that the totals for the first half year will break all previous records. While residential building has slackened perceptibly there has been a new birth of industrial and commercial building construction activity. Any prediction for the year as a whole can be merely a guess. Still it seems likely in the light of past experiences that the oft-heralded building slump will not develop this year. And according to G. L. Miller & Co.'s Builder-Economist, the national construction outlook to date is better than that of a year ago.

New London

The return of the carpenters with their requested increase of 15 cents an hour granted resulted in the building activities of the city going forward with renewed impetus during the week.

The strike of the carpenters lasted but one week and ended contrary to expectations but to the general satisfaction of all concerned. Contractors are usually busy and although the increase will cut into their margin on figures given before the strike, most of them are anxious to carry on their work at full speed.

Slight delay was occasioned by the strike at the new Garde theater and business building in State street and also at the new construction of the Connecticut Power Co. in Water street where extensive alterations and additions are being made by Oliver Woodworth Co.

There was a slight slump in the number and nature of building permits issued by the council during the week. Eleven were issued, all of which were of minor significance. Plans are in the hands of architects for several new cottages in the Pequot section and contractors are expecting the contracts to be awarded soon.

Work is progressing of the alterations and remodeling of the one-family dwelling owned by Elmer Kenerson at 28 Rosemary street. Work at the house was delayed temporarily by a small fire there recently. A new front porch on the house has been completed. Interior remodeling plans call for the rearranging of the rooms and the installing of modern conveniences.

The two-story cottage being built for Freeman Kenerson at Grove street and Rolles avenue is nearing completion. The exterior has been completed and workmen are now engaged in finishing the interior. The dwelling is of one and a half story design with large dormer windows in the front and rear. The sides are shingled with deep green painted shingle, greatly enhancing the appearance.

The brick and steel work on the addition to the Mercer building at State and Meridian streets was being completed during the past week. The new addition will provide a new store in State street and also in Meridian street. Offices will be contained in the upper floors of the addition. The exterior plans call for construction similar to that of the present Mercer building.

The frame work has been completed on the addition to the garage of Leon Padoelski at 69 Harrison street. The exterior of the new addition 10 by 18 is now being shingled.

Considerable progress was noted on the construction of the twin cottage being built for Mary E. Hillar at 234 Crystal avenue. The roof has been shingled and Colonial clapboard laid on the upper half of the exterior. Specifications call for a structure 26 by 25 with a front porch.

Plans are being prepared for a new printing shop to be erected for the Sullivan Printing Co. in the rear of 17 Masonic street. The new structure will be of brick construction, 40 by 45 and one story high. A wood floor will be laid over a concrete floor.

Plans for alterations to the F. Z. Hankey residence at 891 Montauk avenue have been completed by a local architect and work is expected to begin soon. The plans call for a new staircase and an addition in the rear to contain a pantry and kitchen.

The framework is nearly completed on the house for Norris Treadway in Sonder street. The new house will contain six rooms and will be of the cottage type.

Stonington

Bids are being submitted by local contractors for a new residence to be erected for Peter Marcus of New York at Stonington. Specifications call for a structure 35 by 50, with two wings. The structure will be of brick, fireproof construction, with cement floors and slate or asphalt roofing. The house will contain eight rooms in the main structure with four tile bathrooms. One wing will contain a studio and the other the kitchen and servants quarters. A local architect prepared the plans.

Westerly

Lack of seasonable weather in Westerly, undoubtedly, has been the reason for the application for so few zoning permits during the past week. Westerly Zoning Building Inspector Louis J. Rossi has issued the following permits:

May 11. Bradford Dyeing Association by Mark Pearson, master mechanic. A residence 63 by 30 feet for general manager, on Lot No. 126, south side of Bowling Lane.

May 12. Salvatore Fiore, 51 Pierce street. Three-car garage, 20 by 30 feet at 51 Pierce street.

maybe you've been missing something //

SOME chaps are satisfied with their home-made radio set . . . until they hear a bigger and better set at their neighbor's. It's much the same with tobacco. You may think your present brand is the last word. But, until you smoke Prince Albert, you don't know how good that pipe can taste!

Among the biggest boosters this grand old tobacco has are the converts who figured: "Maybe I'm not getting all my pipe can give me in deep-down smoke-satisfaction. I'm going to try P. A." They did try Prince Albert and they've stuck. Tear a leaf out of their book.

No other tobacco is like Prince Albert. Buy a tidy red tin, throw back the hinged lid and breathe deeply of its wonderful fragrance. That's real tobacco! Cool when you smoke it . . . cool and sweet and fragrant as the breeze from an old-fashioned garden.

Why be satisfied with less than perfection! Go now to that nearby smoke-shop and get a tidy red tin of P. A.—the tobacco that has brought pleasure to so many men that it is known as the National Joy Smoke. Lead up and light up. Your face will light up with the smile that P. A. regulars know so well.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

WESTERLY

PROVIDENCE MAN FOUND GUILTY OF SPEEDING CHARGE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 17—W. J. Laclance of Lowell street, Providence, was arraigned before Judge William A. Wilcox on Monday morning in a session of the Stonington town court on a complaint of "speeding". The complaint was brought by Stonington Town Solicitor George R. McKenna and resulted from a collision on April 29th between a sedan driven by Laclance and occupied by Clifton D. Hall of Pawcatuck and Max Raithe of Westerly and a Mack truck. The collision occurred on Wilcox curve, Quinnbaug, and, as a result of which Laclance suffered broken ribs and the auto reduced to junk, the work of destruction being completed by the wreckage taking fire and burning. Raithe was unconscious when dragged from the wreckage before it caught fire and assistance was rendered by Westerly Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi, who was passing the point soon after the collision.

Laclance's attorney entered a demurrer to the complaint but Judge Wilcox overruled it and found the respondent guilty, sentencing him to pay a fine of $10 and costs of $15.06. A complaint brought against Hall was dolled as it developed that Laclance was the operator of the auto and not Hall as first reported.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appear the following transfers:

May 17. George A. Stoddard and wife, Sophie E. Stoddard to Oliver Ward Stoddard, all of Hopkinton, R. I., a certain lot or parcel of land at Pleasant View Beach on easterly side of Crandall avenue and south of land of J. Daniel Davis.

How Rinso saves my clothes —and saves me hours of work on washday

EVERY washday I used to scrub the clothes almost threadbare to get them clean. How I hated it!

Then I tried Rinso. I just put the clothes in the rich, creamy Rinso suds—it's granulated and dissolves at once—and let them soak over night.

The next morning my wash had been soaked snowy white! Even the most soiled parts became spotless with just a tiny rub or two.

No more washboards for me—no more hours of exhausting work—I always use Rinso now. And my hands are grateful, too. With Rinso they never get a bit red.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Doings at the meeting of the Norwich court of common council and the story of the opening of the Erie railroad were of great interest to Norwich readers of the Norwich Courier in 1851.

Some of the items of the week as taken in part from the files of the Norwich Courier of 75 years ago are as follows:

Tuesday, May 13, 1851—The Savannah, Ga., papers report that the seizure of the Cleopatra was the cause of the breaking up of the Cuban expedition.

Many Norwich people are planning to enjoy the excursion to New York this week. While there many of them will listen to the addresses to be delivered in that city by the president of the United States, Mr. Webster, and several other distinguished members of congress.

The South Carolina convention has come to a close with a resolution adopted asking the people of the state to vote for secession from the union. South Carolina now intends to secede from the Union whether or not she is supported by the other southern states. Just when this action will take place is not known but the convention insisted on early action on the matter.

The death of Uriah Corning, 93, occurred on the 5th inst. at his home in Preston. Mr. Corning was a soldier of the Revolution, having served in the ranks, through the whole seven years struggle. Of recent years he has been receiving a pension.

Thursday, May 15, 1851—Mayor Buckingham presided at the meeting of the court of common council, held May 7th, and it was voted that the consideration of the report of the committee on public grounds, respecting lands of Mrs. Lucy Ferry on Union street, be postponed for the present.

Report of select committee to whom was referred the petition of R. W. Roath and others, for privilege of erecting gas works, in favor of granting the prayer of the petitions, report accepted and resolution adopted.

The report of the committee on streets for the rebuilding of the wall on the south side of Main street on Wharf Bridge accepted and resolution adopted.

It was reported that the Stephen Rathbone lime kiln in West Chelsea was a nuisance and that it should be abated. Attorney was authorized to prosecute. Henry Allen was allowed to boil varnish within the city limits, a vote to reconsider previous vote be against the resolution.

The city attorney was given power to start proceedings against anyone engaged in boiling soap within the limits of the city, without having a license to do so.

The mail stage between Norwich and Colchester, which has now been running for about three weeks, reports a fair patronage. Stages leave the Merchant's Hotel and American House every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 8:30 o'clock in the morning.

Saturday, May 17, 1851—One of those beautiful Aeolian piano fortes is now on exhibition at the store of Mr. R. W Roath and is attracting great attention. The inventor of the Aeolian attachment, Mr. Coleman, has done a wonderful thing. The instrument is really a triple one, first, it is a piano forte proper; second, a most sweet toned organ; third, a combination of the two making something altogether different than either one. The piano part of the instrument is entirely distinct and cannot be put out of order or tune by use of the other.

The Erie railroad was opened May 14th and the first train, the Presidential train started over the road at 3 o'clock. The next two started seven minutes later. At Port Jarvis was a big sign reading The Banks of the Delaware welcome the Iron Horse from the Hudson.

At Dunkirk the trip ended after 440 miles of riding through a beautiful section of the country. Cannon roared out salutes throughout the trip, cities and towns were gaily decorated and thousands of people watched the presidential train as it passed over the road. It was an eventful trip.

It is expected that Rt. Rev. Dr. Brownell, Bishop of Connecticut will administer the rite of confirmation in Christ church on Sunday morning.

Ross and Sheldon are advertising the richest lawns to be had at from 12 1-2 to 50 cents.

Lasting pride of ownership comes from masterful performance, ease of operation and maintenance, from reliability and economy.

These qualities cannot be revealed by any other test than actual performance over long periods of time and in the hands of every type of user.

Hudson holds first advantage because of its patented Super-Six—the world's most famous motor. More than 800,000 have been built by Hudson under its exclusive principle. For 11 years it has been outstanding because of distinctive smoothness, wide flexibility, power, speed, and reliability.

Hudson is easy to steer. Its power range is so great that gear shifting is lessened, and the riding action is so well arranged that long hours at the wheel are not tiring.

Economy is found in low operating and maintenance cost.

These are the qualities that make genuine satisfaction. Upon such a chassis is mounted the coach. It gives all closed car comforts. It is sturdy, beautiful in line, and complete in every practical detail. Its sale has exceeded that of any closed car priced above $1,000. That production has led to greater economy and much lower prices. It has permitted many improvements in chassis and body.

So today's Hudson Coach is not only the best ever built. It also is priced lower than ever before.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, May 17.—Arthur Page, the man who was operating the truck with which the car of Fire Chief Charles Rose collided a fortnight ago, when the chief suffered a broken leg, was presented in the police court this morning. He was charged with violation of the rules of the road in not giving way to the car of the fire chief when that officer was in the performance of his duties in responding to an alarm, also with not having registration for the ice cream truck he was operating. The injury sustained by Chief Rose sent him to the hospital and he is unable to leave there, so the hearing of evidence was deferred till the 21st inst. Page gave a bond of $200 to appear when wanted. The case is to be contested.

Miss Edith Bolles, 33, residing at 33 Gorton street, teacher at the Waller school, corner of Riverview avenue and Aigir street, dropped dead Sunday at her home. Miss Bolles had been in poor health some time, but her death was unexpected. She arose from bed during the day and went to the bath room, apparently having become nauseated. A few seconds after an unusual sound was heard and a member of the household going to the bathroom found the teacher lying on the floor, lifeless. Medical Examiner Charles Kautman was notified and pronounced death caused by heart disease. The flag on the school where Miss Bolles had been a teacher several years, is flying at half mast, as a tribute of respect to Miss Bolles.

A score of cases were heard in the police court this morning. In William Timmons, a fellow whom the police thought was intent on highway robbery when arrested, the officers had only a drunk. He came here from Willimantic where he represented he was laid off after long employment, and secured work at the Whiton machine shop. Then he proceeded to load up with liquor or wine, so that in the afternoon he hailed George B. McGowan, asking for a ride as far as Summer street. Mr. McGowan was accommodating and gave Timmons a lift. At Summer street Timmons refused to leave the car and his actions in placing his hand at his hip pocket led McGowan to believe the Taccaville man was after a gun. McGowan dumped him out as soon as he could. Then the police were notified and they gave Timmons a ride to the police station. He said he was so happy when he secured work that he started to pop up some liquor, with the result that he became intoxicated. He was fined $20. Some friend at Willimantic came to the aid of Timmons and kept him out of jail by telegraphing the funds he needed. The police represented that Timmons has a record of having "rolled" and robbed a man at Willimantic.

John Sefone was fined $20 for operating an automobile without having obtained a license and for failing to reduce the speed of his car when passing intersecting streets. The accused said he was driving at a speed not greater than 15 miles an hour, but Policeman Batey, who chased him, declared that John was hitting a pace of 40 miles. He has owned the car but three weeks so his experience was costly for the fun he had.

Ernest M. Morris, a youthful sailor, received a car he owned from Massachusetts. He attempted to drive it, but did not secure a license. He said he intended to get the papers to permit him to drive but he had been in possession of the car a single day and he had not the opportunity to secure a license. Judgment was suspended that he might get the license he should have.

A dozen or more drunks pleaded guilty when arraigned. One fellow said he was just plainly drunk, a statement that amused all who heard it made. The others accused had more or less "frills" to their offenses. Two brothers from Chesterfield were among the accused. They had been arraigned before but they had kept away from the court a long time. In fact there was an absence of old offenders and habitual drunks.

A couple of vagrants were found roaming about, but they set up that they had worked within a couple of days and said they would be employed as soon as they had the opportunity. They were allowed to get work or get out of town.

Two accused men who provided bonds for appearance in court when they were arrested failed to show up and their bonds were called.

Mrs. Hansigne D. Wilson, about 80, died Sunday at Home Memorial hospital, where she had been under treatment but a short time. Mrs. Wilson, who was born in Denmark, is survived by two sons, Oscar P. Wilson, of this city, and Morris Wilson, Miantic.

The New London police have been requested by the authorities of West Hartford to maintain a lookout for a young girl who disappeared from her home in West Hartford a few days ago and who is supposed to be residing with a sailor here.

Edward C. Bergevini, submarine base, was adjudged blameless for the death of a four-year old youth who was struck by Bergevini's automobile in Norwich recently, the child dying from the injuries he received. The motorist was granted the privilege of driving again, as he was considered blameless for the fatality.

Jacob M. Linicus, Glenwood park, applied for a return of his license, but decision was reserved by Commissioner Devnew. Linicus' car struck Miss Agnes Svanberg, of Evergreen avenue, several months ago when the young woman was alighting from a trolley car on Montauk avenue. She sustained a fractured leg, which kept her a patient at Lawrence hospital several weeks.

Joseph Garlepy, Taftville, driving while under influence; Samuel A. Rice, Ansonia, driving while under influence; Guiseppe Conrino, Clark lane, Waterford, operating under influence, and Louis Lavoie, Danielson, conference, were given the privilege of submitting to examination for new license, or to have their former licenses returned to them.

Operations tending to raise the submarine, S-51, which was sunk off Block Island sound after being rammed by the Savannah liner City of Rome, with a loss of 33 lives, were resumed this morning. The fleet of wreckers had been forced to abandon work several days because of adverse weather conditions. If favorable weather continues a week, it is believed that the submarine will have been brought to the water's surface, if such a thing is possible.

In default of a surety on his bond of $100 for his appearance in court at Montville tomorrow morning, Fitzgerald was brought to the New London police station and made a prisoner for the night. Fitzgerald, it is alleged, went to his home about 7 o'clock and intoxicated. He engaged in an altercation with his wife and finally struck her.

Joseph Setaro and William Arnone, both of Shaw street, father-in-law and son-in-law, respectively, were arrested this evening by Patrolmen Frank Philopena and Braxton, Hill charged with breach of the peace. She then declared that both Setaro and Arnone beat her and her husband.

CITY COUNCIL HOLDS UP PETITION OF E. C. BLACK CO.

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 17—A 30-minute session this evening sufficed to transact all the business the city council had before it. There was but one moot question before the body, that being the petition of E. C. Black & Co. of Groton for permission to erect a stone shop on Fitch avenue. The petition came in irregularly, but City Manager Holt presented it with a statement that the building inspector had not attached approval to the map showing what was to be erected and what was to be done. Councilor Scott favored granting the petition, subject to the approval of the building inspector, but the city manager asked that the petition be held in abeyance till the regular course of procedure could be followed. This course was followed. Then when the petitions, or remonstrances, of citizens were offered for consideration the reason for the withholding of approval developed. Nearly all the residents of Fitch avenue protested against granting the petition. The Black company desires to erect a building which shall be used for the preparation of potato chips, sliced beef, etc., and this business is designated as a nuisance by residents and real estate owners in the vicinity, it is understood, on the ground that the business will create odors that are offensive and because the erection of the building and the establishment of the business will interfere with the sale of building lots and the development of the section as a residential part of the city. The petition was held up until another meeting is held, that the city manager can investigate and report on the matter.

The Spanish War veterans were given permission to sell poppies on the streets, from May 29 to 31.

The removal of a lien of $108.37 placed by the sewer board on land dedicated to the city for highway purposes was approved of when the city manager explained that the land was by agreement to be deeded to the city when the sewer assessment was made, and that its collection was then deferre d that the land might be deeded as stated to the city. The sewer department filed the land to protect the city. That is the lien which it is sought to remove. The council approved that action and the lien will come off. The lien is against the New London Real Estate and Improvement association, of which B. L. Armstrong is head.

Councilor Streeter suggested that the city and the state get together and cement Ocean avenue. His idea was that the state should take care of that section south of Willettes avenue and the city to attend to that section north of the avenue to Bank street. The matter was referred to the committees on public works and finance.

Only five permits for building construction or alteration were presented to the council. All were granted and included two two-story cottages. The rest of the work is to be repairs and alterations.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Far up in the white monotony of the north, where the silences and solitudes drive men mad, there are those who can see The Ship of Souls which drifts above the north clouds.

And when The Ship of Souls appears to men, they answer the call of the crew and go—never to return.

This is the theme around which is woven the powerful plot of The Ship of Souls, the dramatic picturization of Emerson Hough's last and greatest novel of the same name and showing today and Wednesday at the Broadway theater.

It is an original and striking plot, carefully engineered through all the shoals of filming by the skillful direction of Charles Miller.

Lillian Rich deserves no little credit for the success of the picture for her part as Christine was the most dominant role, equally with that of Lytell, and required emotional acting of a high order. Miss Rich exercised excellent taste in her interpretation of the unsophisticated northern girl.

The supporting cast carries an imposing list of names, with Russell Simpson, Cyril Chadwick, Gertrude Astor, Inez Seabury, Earl Metcalf, Jean Perry, Pete Mauer, W. J. Miller, and Captain Jack Irwin, U. S. A.

Several short subjects are added attractions.

Palace Theater

The perfection of underworld detail in Harold Lloyd's initial Paramount release, For Heaven's Sake!, is one of the outstanding features of this new comedy which is being hailed as another genuine achievement for the bespectacled comedian.

When Lloyd was in New York last year, he spent a great deal of his time in the lower Bowery. As a result of his observations and intensive study of this picturesque atmosphere, he had a thorough knowledge of the conditions under which his characters were to come to life on the screen, when he started filming For Heaven's Sake!

The slum set in the picture is a faithful reproduction of a section of a big city tenement district, and while New Yorkers will assert it is part of their own Bowery, there are other cities that might claim it as a faithful portrayal of part of their territory.

For Heaven's Sake! presents Lloyd in an entirely new and original characterization—that of a millionaire clubman whose attempt to uplift the hardboiled inhabitants of the underworld involves him in a series of exciting and laugh-provoking adventures.

Jobyna Ralston heads the competent supporting cast, and the production was directed by Sam Taylor.

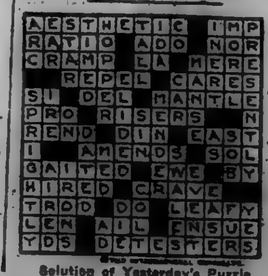
OLD COSTUMES OF TURKEY DISAPPEARING FROM USE

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 17 (AP)—Through government taboos and the pressure of public opinion, Turkey's national costumes are disappearing from use.

The minister of education has sent an order to the governor of each province, requiring specimens of the costumes peculiar to each section and class of people to be preserved.



Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

POETRY

The Brave Old Oak

A song to the oak, the brave old oak,
Who hath ruled in the greenwood long;
Here's health and renown to his broad green crown,
And his fifty arms so strong.
There's fear in his frown when the sun goes down,
And the fire in the west fades out;
And he showeth his might on a wild midnight,
When the storms through his branches shout.

Then here's to the oak, the brave old oak,
Who stands in his pride alone;
And still flourish he, a hale green tree,
When a hundred years are gone!

In the days of old, when the spring with cold
Had brightened his branches gray,
Through the grass at his feet crept maidens sweet,
To gather the dew of May.
And on that day to the rebeck gay
They frolicked with lovesome swains;
They are gone, they are dead, in the churchyard laid,
But the tree, it still remains.

He saw rare times when the Christmas chimes
Were a merry sound to hear,
When the squires' wide hall and the cottage small
Were filled with good English cheer.
Now gold hath sway we all obey,
And a ruthless king is he;
But he never shall send our ancient friend
To be tossed on the stormy sea.

—Henry Fothergill Chorley (1808-1872).

A Woodland Thought

I wandered in a woodland fair
With trees and blossoms filled;
I listened to the wild birds there,
That gaily piped and trilled.
The laughing light, it slanting sped,
Through swaying boughs, like golden thread,
And dappled me from foot to head—
My every pulse was thrilled.

Anon—a shadow touched my heart,
A shadow thought to blight:
Flowers, birds, and I—must soon depart
And leave the lovely light;
Yes, mortal frail, and bird, and flower,
All, all were creatures of an hour:—
Strange—I, of all, alone would cower
When came the last Goodnight.

And then—the shadow fled; and sweet
I heard a whisper nigh;
Since all you love is likewise fleet,
Why should, why should you sigh?
Though great the beauty on earth to see,
What matter to eyes that cannot see?
If all you love so soon must flee—
'Twill be no long parting.

—Samuel Minturn Peck in Boston Transcript.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Your husband, madam, is suffering from voluntary inertia.

Poor dear Robert! And I accused him all along of being lazy.—Exchange.

Sani—I'm not myself today, old man.

Pack—Well, whoever you are, I'd say you got the better part of the bargain.—Middlebury Blue Baboon.

Customer—Have you any pillow cases?

Clerk—Yes, sir. What size?

Customer—I really don't know, but I wear a size seven hat.—Good Hardware.

"England has already won the test matches—on paper," says a writer. A lot of our experts are mightier with the pen than on the sward.—Humorist.

Mistress—Thursday is my at-home day.

New Cook—Good. It's mine, too. Perhaps we can arrange to receive together.—Boston Transcript.

Now, can any one tell me what a myth is? asked the teacher.

A solitary hand was raised, and a voice exclaimed.

Please, miss; it's a female moth.—Pittsburgh Sun.

It was a cold day and as a pretty girl entered the crowded street car a man rose from his seat.

"No, you must not give up your seat. I insist" said the young woman.

You may insist as much as you want to, replied the man, starting for the door, "I'm getting off here.—Washington Star.

To achieve elegance, madam ordered a pair of smart boots from an expensive shop. Some days after delivery she returned them.

"Your boots don't fit well. I can't walk in them.

Madam, replied the dignified shopkeeper, people who have to walk don't shop here.—Detroit News.

Perfumes are four times as strong as toilet waters.

Remains of a city that flourished about 500 B. C. have been discovered near Moscow, Russia.

Japanese novelties suct as porcelain, lacquer, mattings and paper articles, make up less than 3 per cent of Japan's export trade.

The practice among Indian mothers of drugging babies with opium to keep them quiet while the mothers work in factories is so prevalent in Bombay that legislation to prevent it is being discussed.

Scarcity of unshorn maidens has threatened the continuity of 60-year-old May festivals of Knutsford, the most picturesque in England, for the May queen must have long hair. All but one of the aspirants for the honor appeared with either bobbed or shingled locks. The throne will go to the girl whose tresses never have been touched by scissors.

Boxing is slowly replacing student duels with sabres as a major sport in German universities and high schools. The first intercholastic boxing matches ever held in Berlin recently took place between pugilists of the University of Goettingen and Hannover school of Technology. Educational authorities in many states, including Prussia, have sanctioned boxing and its popularity is becoming widespread. The lower house of the Baden legislature has passed a bill prescribing the same punishment for student duelists with sharpened sabres as that meted out to those who attempt to settle affairs of honor with weapons.

By means of new inventions air pilots are able to steer safely to a given point in the thickets fog. Flight Lieutenant H. Cooch has informed the Royal Aeronautical society of England. By means of delicate instruments in the cockpit a pilot is kept automatically informed when he is within 1,500 feet of the ground, and the loss of every foot of height as he descends is also indicated. Other instruments show the aviator just what part of the aerodrome he is over, after he has arrived in the vicinity of his destination, so that he may land in safety, though he may not be able to see the ground until he has actually alighted.

Masts and rigging spars on the historic frigate Constitution which is being rebuilt at the navy yard at Boston, are to be of Douglas fir grown in the Pacific northwest. The United States navy accepted an offer of the West Coast Lumbermen's association to give the Constitution's masts and spars from a new forest which was seeded half a century after the frigate fought her last engagement in 1812. A part of the fir will come from Bainbridge island. Puget sound was named in honor of Commodore William Bainbridge who commanded the Constitution in all of her important engagements except that with the British frigate Guerriere.

RALLY IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, May 17—(AP)—Stock prices rallied briskly this afternoon after an earlier period of heaviness, both the rail and industrial averages closing higher on the day. Trading continued to be largely of a professional character, the day's sales barely exceeding 1,000,000 shares.

Chief financial interests of the day centered in the renewed weakness of French francs, which broke below 3 cents for the first time in history.

In the stock market, bear traders endeavored to unsettle the general list by hammering the motor, rubber, merchandising and motion picture shares. Several of these crumbled to new low levels for the year, but the standard industrials and rails offered good resistance to pressure and steady accumulation was noted throughout the day in the oil groups, presumably in response to the recent stiffening of commodity prices.

Hudson again bore the brunt of the selling in the motor group, being depressed to a new low for the year at 55 1-2. Shorts scrambled to cover during the late rally, however the price being run up to 58. Other automotive issues to touch new low levels were American Bosch Magneto, Chandler-Cleveland preferred, Continental motors, Dodge Brothers A and the preferred Eaton Axle, Hayes Wheel, Jordan, Motor Wheel, Stewart Warner, Stromberg Carburetor Studebaker, and Willys Overland common, but some of these closed at net gains of a point or more.

Further reports of backward retail trade probably accounted for the liquidation of the merchandising issues. Woolworth was hammered down nearly 4 points to a new low for the year at 136 3-4 and then rallied to 138 1-2. Montgomery Ward also touched a new low. Rubbers were sold on the theory that the reported slowing up of automobile sales were affecting the tire trade and that some of the rubber companies were stocked up with the crude product at prices substantially above current levels.

Failure of the directors of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey to increase the regular dividend was a disappointment to speculative cliques operating in the oil group. However Atlantic Refining was bid up 1 3-4 to 117 3-4: Lago touched 21, the highest price since it was listed last week, and most of the others showed fractional improvement.

The declaration of an extra cash dividend of $4 on Dupont apparently has been discounted as trading in that issue was quiet, the stock closing 1 3-8 higher at 208. Allied Chemical, American Sugar Refining, General Electric, General Motors, and International Paper were among the score or so of issues to close a point or more higher on the day. Rails were rather quiet with a point gain in Erie 1st preferred as one of the few features. One of the interesting trade developments of the day was the report of increased inquiries for railroad equipment.

The principal commodity markets lost ground. Wheat futures pointed upward during the morning but sold off sharply after noon, closing 1 to 2 cents a bushel net lower. Cotton yielded 8 to 16 points on favorable weather reports with trading restricted pending the balloting on the proposal to limit speculative activity. Raw sugar was unchanged but futures displayed an easier tone. Coffee eased 2 to 16 points.

Call money held at 3 3-4 per cent all day despite the calling of about $40,000,000 in loans. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.86 3-16. Belgian francs broke below 3 cents in sympathy with the weakness of the French rate but Italian lire rallied 13 points to around 3.6c cents.

CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, May 17—(AP)—Acute weakness of the baking shares, based on unfavorable dividend rumors, featured today's irregular curb market. Continental Baking A broke 16 points to 6 1-2 and then rallied to 62 and the B stock touched a new low for the year at 9 3-4, closing slightly above that figure for a net loss of nearly 1 point on the day. General Baking A yielded 1 5-8 points to 48 3-4 and then rallied feebly.

Oils displayed a relatively firm undertone in reflection of higher crude and gasoline prices. Venezuela Petroleum was the most active issue, climbing to within a fraction of the year's high on the discovery of a big oil well on its property at Lagunillas.

TAFTVILLE

About 200 people attended the Interchurch Girls social, the opening event of Norwich Girls week, in the church parlors of the Taftville Congregational church, Friday evening. A basket supper was enjoyed by the visitors, at which fruit punch was served by a committee consisting of Mrs. John Volkman, Mrs. Allan Bogle, Mrs. Charles T. Webster, Miss Hilda Troeger, Miss Eleanor Heinrich, Miss Bertha Monty, Miss Isabel Barritt, Miss Elizabeth Houston, Miss Mary Greenhalgh, Miss Sadie Newton and Miss Mary Taggart.

Following the supper the program began with a violin duet by Marjorie McNally and Edith Heap. The roll call was answered by songs and cheers by groups from the following churches, Greeneville Congregational, Christ Episcopal, West Side Baptist, Central Baptist, Trinity Methodist, Universalist, United Congregational, Grace Episcopal and Taftville Congregational.

During the contest for the cup, which was won by Taftville last year, many unusual and pleasing features were presented by the different groups. The cup was again awarded to the Taftville girls who presented an original sketch by Mrs. Albert J. Aberg, entitled, "A Year-Around Basket of Flowers." The girls representing the months were as follows:

January (Evergreen) Miss Selena Adams; February (Pussy Willow) Miss Margaret Sticht; March (Crocus) Miss Gladys Kinder; April (daffodil) Miss Edna Krodel; May (violet) Miss Mildred Dunlop; June (rose) Miss Elizabeth Newton; July (daisy) Miss Mary Alice Watts; August (poppy) Miss Melba Monty; September (gentian) Miss Louie Unsworth; October (cosmos) Miss Mary Martin; November (chrysanthemum) Miss Dorothy M. Aberg; December (poinsettia) Miss Freida Sarnoki.

The fairy who brought the flowers to life with a magic wand, was Miss Ruby Houston. The two curtain girls were Dorothy Hunt and Mildred Yerrington. The poems for each month, also composed by Mrs. Aberg, were read by Edith Heap.

The committee for the stunt and cheer were Mrs. Albert J. Aberg, Miss Gertrude M. Young, Mrs. Harold E. Linderson, Miss Mildred C. Kloss, Miss Dorothy Campbell and Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis.

The Hospitality committee were Miss Flossie M. Meyer, Miss Elsie Heap and Mrs. Harold E. Linderson. The decoration committee were Mrs Albert J. Aberg, Miss Mary Taggart, Miss Selena Adams and Mrs. Edwin G Crowdis. The judges for the stunts were Mrs. J. Beveridge Lee, Mrs. Edward Eggleston and Mrs. James Spiers, all of New London.

Mrs. Lillian Luramie has returned to her home on North B street after spending the past week in Woonsocket, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Thibeault and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Kellner and children William and Virginia of Preston spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Axel L. Aberg and family of North Third avenue.

George H. Young of North Third avenue and Harry E. Prentice of Norwich were Monday visitors in Boston, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Heseltine and children Kendall and Ravella of North B street have returned from a weeks stay with relatives in Baltouville.

Earle M. Wood of North Third avenue, and Henry D. Johnson and Morris L. Bergstresser of Norwich, have been recent visitors in Shelton, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Marion and family of South Third avenue moved Monday to Bristol, where Mr Marion has accepted a position.

Mr. and Mrs. James Copeland and Master Wilson Copeland of Newport, R. I., were weekend guests of Hugh Copeland of Norwich avenue.

WILL HAVE ELEVATOR FOR MAJESTIC GARAGE

An elevator for automobiles is to be put into the Majestic building at the corner of Water and Shetucket streets where C. V. Pendleton's Monday took over the Majestic garage which is on the main floor of the building and has also leased the top floor where there is space for 150 automobiles. The owner of the building, Mrs. Valerie Shannon Foran of New London, will have the elevator installed, providing very commodious accommodations for Mr. Pendleton, who has his sales rooms in the corner store, adjoining the space at present occupied by the Majestic garage.

SHOT WILDCAT THAT WAS HUNTING CHICKENS IN YARD NEAR VELVET MILL

While delivering bread for the Bond Bread company Monday morning about 11 o'clock Albert A. Burdick of Norwich bagged a wildcat weighing about 15 pounds on the Jewett City river road a short distance from the J. B. Martin Co. velvet mill. Mr. Burdick's attention was attracted to a large sized cat prowling about a chicken yard there and on closer observation he was hardly able to believe his eyes when he saw that it was a wildcat. Procuring a shot gun Mr. Burdick shot the cat the full charge going into its head.

Wildcats in this part of the country are very scarce, but to see one wandering about in the daytime and in so thickly a populated place is a very rare occurrence. It has been many years since a wildcat has been shot in the heart of a settled district and in broad daylight. This cat had evidently had a sweet tooth for chicken meat and could not resist the temptation to hunt for it in the daytime.

THOMAS F. SHEA'S MEMORY TO BE HONORED BY MEN

At the request of White Cross council, Knights of Columbus, the sterling Christian virtues of the late Grand Knight Thomas Francis Shea, will be commemorated in St. Patrick's church on Sunday, May 28, at the 7.3 o'clock mass. The members of the council recently voted to receive holy communion in a body at that mass as a spiritual tribute to the deceased, and it is expected that they will be joined at the altar rail by other societies with which Mr. Shea was affiliated.

The sermon will be preached by Rev. John X. Pyne, a distinguished educator of the Jesuit order, who was one of Mr. Shea's professors at Holy Cross, and one of his very dear personal friends. Father Pyne is an alumnus of Holy Cross and is at present a member of the faculty of Fordham university graduate school.

Since the death of Mr. Shea several weeks ago, very many beautiful tributes have been voiced in his memory. Only a few days ago Rev. Joseph N. Dinaud, S. J., a president of Holy Cross college wrote as follows to the committee in charge of the arrangements:

"Tom was indeed a truly noble character and a son of whom Holy Cross was justly proud; the many words of appreciation we have heard of his work in Norwich, may his alma mater cherish his memory all the more. He evidently had won his way into the hearts of his brother knights and had given a shining example of those qualities which were very evident in his college days and which foretold the usefulness and success which were to come to him in later life.

"Our sorrow is mingled with the bereavement felt by all his relatives and brother knights and I can assure you that the announcement of his death brought to me a sense of personal loss, for I knew Tom very intimately and always had the warmest affection and highest admiration for him.

"When such men as Tom Shea depart this life, leaving behind them the memory of noble qualities and wonderful deeds achieved, Holy Cross feels encouraged to go on with her great mission in forming the generations that are to follow in their footsteps and who are to build up the cause of the faith in the hearts of their fellowmen."

The officers of White Cross council have invited the members of other organizations of which Mr. Shea was a member, or for which he was a worker—the Holy Name society, Total Abstinence & Benevolent society and the Boy Scouts—to join with the K. of C. in receiving communion the morning of the 28rd. the societies marching from the K. of C. home, to occupy specially reserved pews. The parish priests have suggested that all the parish men unite in this tribute to Mr. Shea.

UNWED MOTHERS LARGELY BELOW NORMAL MENTALITY

What chance in life has the child who is born out of wedlock in Connecticut? The answer was indicated at the state conference of social work held recently in this city, when the Connecticut Child Welfare association made a preliminary report on the survey they have undertaken of the circumstances and fate of those children.

The report covered the life histories of 560 illegitimate children, obtained through the cooperation of social agencies all over the state. The report showed that welfare agencies receive under their care somewhat less than half of the illegitimate children born in the state, that 57 per cent. of these come to the attention of the society before they are one year old, and 24 per cent. before they are one month old.

Many of the parents of these children are very young, 5 per cent. of the mothers being less than 16 years old, and 40 per cent. of the mothers and 15 per cent of the fathers are less than 21. It was found also that 71 per cent. of the mothers for whom information could be secured are in all probability below normal mentality.

In about 30 per cent. of the cases known, the acquaintance between the parents of the child began casually the boy often "picking up" the girl on street corners or in moving picture houses. About 23 per cent. of the mothers were reported to have married later, about one third of them marrying the fathers of the baby.

PROVIDENCE MAN FINED IN STONINGTON COURT

Joseph A. Lachansky of Providence, R. I., was fined $10 and costs, or a total of $25.06 Monday morning by Judge William A. Wilcox in Stonington town court when he was found guilty of speeding.

Clifford D. Hall of Pawcatuck was found not guilty of reckless driving on charges lodged against him after an automobile accident on the Stonington-Mystic road in which Lachansky was also involved. Both men were riding in the sedan. Hall was at first thought to be the driver.

The accident occurred on April 22, when a sedan, operated by Lachansky, collided with a large truck owned by a Rhode Island ice cream concern. As a result of the accident the sedan was destroyed by fire.

POLICE SEARCHING FOR MISSING OCCUM WOMAN

The state police throughout the state were searching Monday for Mrs. Emma Sullivan, 40, wife of Patrick Sullivan of Occum, who has been missing from her home since April 22.

The woman was in deep mourning at the time of her disappearance and is believed to have become slightly deranged for that reason. She is described as being five feet five inches in height weighs 145 pounds, has light brown bobbed hair, dark complexion and wore a long dark coat with a small fur collar, black shoes and tortoise shell glasses when last seen.

Sergt. Clifford N. Gorgas of the Groton barracks state police, was requested to aid in the search Sunday.

OLD STONINGTON CHURCH PROPERTY IS SOLD

In accordance with an order issued by the superior court the property known as the Third Baptist church in Stonington was sold at public auction Saturday afternoon. Judge William A. Wilcox, was the auctioneer. The parsonage in Trumbull avenue, occupied by Charles H. Garlty, went for $2,250, and was bid in by William Wood for Capt. Frank Johnsen.

The church and lot was purchased by Silas R. Wheeler of Old Mystic for $2,375, for Harry W. Babcock.

Both sales must meet with approval of the superior court. The pews of the church were sold to the Jewish Synagogue of Westerly for $360, and the remaining fixtures were sold to various people.

With the appointment of a receiver by the superior court in the dissolution of the Church society and the sale of its property at public auction, a religious body will vanish from the borough after 80 years of activity. The appointment of a receiver came at the request of the surviving members.

Oct. 14, 1846, an ecclesiastical council convened at Stonington at the call of the Third Baptist church of Stonington to take into consideration the advisability of organizing a third church as a regular Baptist church.

Representatives from the following Baptist churches were present: First Baptist church of Stonington, the Rev. A. G. Palmer, the Rev. Elihu Chesbro and Daniel Spalding; Anguilla Baptist church, the Rev. Harlem Wedden, Deacon Charles Davis; First Baptist church of Westerly, the Rev. E. S. Hiscox, Deacon Joseph Vincent; Meeting Street Baptist church of Providence, the Rev Jeremiah Asher, William J. Brown; Abyssinian Baptist church of New York city, the Rev. Sampson White.

The council voted to have the Rev. O. C. Wheeler, of Greenwich, R. I., sit with it, and proceeded to read the doings of the church. After which it was resolved unanimously that the church be reorganized as a regular Baptist church and that "we prepare to arrange parts of the public service of the evening, as follows: Reading of scriptures, the Rev. E. J. Nissop; prayer, the Rev. O. C. Wheeler; sermon, the Rev. Sampson White; Hands of Fellowship, the Rev. A. G. Palmer; address to the church, the Rev. Elihu Chesebro.

The founders were Horace Ross, Alfred Ross, Enoch Ross, Fanny Ross, Sarah Ross, Betsey Ross, Clark Gardiner, Clarrissa Gardiner, and at one time the membership numbered 144.

The pastors were the Rev. Joseph Lewis, 1846-1848; the Rev. Leonard Black, 1848-1850; the Rev. William Spellman, 1851-1855; the Rev. Erastus Denison, the Rev. William Smith, the Rev. D. B Pailey, the Rev. Solomon Gale, the Rev. William L. Transier, the Rev. Justin Wattes, the Rev. Daniel Davis, the Rev. Frederick D. Thomas, the Rev. Pleasant D. Braxton.

The deacon board has consisted of the following: Horace Ross, Abraham Harrison, B. F. Ross, Sr., Herman C. Ross, Stiles F. Ross.

Three clerks have served the church during its life, Alfred Ross, Abraham Harrison and Stiles N. F. Ross. The church was always self supporting. Of the few members who took their letters when they moved from Stonington only three are living. The majority of the members are now sleeping in the 28 lots in the Stonington cemetery. The court has been asked, after the expense of closing up the affairs that the remainder be presented to the Stonington Cemetery association for repairing and perpetual care of these lots and to be known as the Third Baptist Trust fund.

At this time only eight members are living, five in Stonington, one in Worcester one in Chicago and one in Corona, N. Y. The receiver appointed by the court is Henry Harris. The closing of the affairs of the society, ends a long church life, which in former days was prosperous and healthy.

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE EDWARD A. BOWEN

Concerning Edward A. Bowen whose death occurred last week at Woodstock the Brooklyn Eagle made the following editorial reference:

"The death of Edward A. Bowen, aged 79, at Woodstock, Connecticut, stirs many Brooklyn memories. It is now fifty-six years since he became a partner with his father, Henry C. Bowen, owner of the Independent, in the purchase of the Brooklyn Union, established seven years before that by A. A. Low, S. B. Chittenden and a number of other aggressive party men as a republican organ. The Bowens made General Stewart L. Woodford, later minister to Spain, the editor. In a few months he gave up the job to Theodore Tilton, the assailant of Henry Ward Beecher. But in 1873 the newspaper property was bought by the Tracy-Schroeder Republican syndicate and for a time William Burch was the Union's editor.

"Of the family that grew up on Brooklyn Heights in the Henry C. Bowen home, Edward was perhaps the most effective money getter. He is credited with making a large fortune in Wall street before he was 30 years old. Franklin G. Bowen has led always a quiet life in Woodstock. Herbert Walcott Bowen, diplomatist, made a reputation in Madrid and Teheran before he became minister to Venezuela. Clarence Winthrop Bowen, author historian and publicist, published the Independent till 1912. The brothers were all actively interested in everything that concerned America. Three nephews of Edward A. Bowen, who survive him, as Henry C. Holt, banker; Gardner Richardson, a commercial agent at Athens and Hamilton Holt, who was the last candidate of the democracy in Connecticut for United States senator, defeated by Hiram Bingham.

"Yankee in its every fiber, the Bowen family of Brooklyn and of Woodstock was never unprogressive. The mansion here, 90 Willow street, was long a social center. It is closely associated with the past of this city and borough."

When a man feels mean it's his cue to keep silent.

AWARDS COMPENSATION TO PAPER MILL EMPLOYE

In the workman's compensation claim of Joseph Kearney of 98 School street against the Uncas Paper Board Co., an award of $73.90 has been made by Commissioner J. J. Donohue.

Kearney sustained an injury while lifting a roll of paper to a truck on March 3, which was subsequently diagnosed as a hernia. He continued at his work for several days but when he reported the accident to his employer it was suggested that he go to a doctor for examination, the doctor being specified by the employer. This the claimant did but not being satisfied with the diagnosis made he sought medical advice from two other physicians of his own choice later, and was finally operated on for hernia.

It is found, Commissioner Donohue says, that in view of the evidence, claimant is entitled to compensation during the six weeks' period evident to a hernia operation, but as he left the medical services furnished by his employer, he is liable for the services rendered later by the physicians and surgeons of his own choice. Under the act he is privileged to choose his own physicians but he is also obligated by the act to assume payment of such services himself.

TRIED DAMAGE SUIT FOR COLCHESTER FIGHT

Judge C. B. Waller heard trial of the suit of Ludwig Gaiefski against Fred Fedus for $500 damages in the common pleas court here Saturday and reserved decision. Both plaintiff and defendant are residents in Colchester where, it is claimed, that Gaiefski had procured evidence against Fedus for Constable Labinski, bringing about the arrest of Fedus on a liquor charge. Following this there was a fight on the street on July 11, 1921, in which it was claimed Fedus caused the plaintiff the loss of teeth in his upper jaw and "publicly humiliated Gaiefski."

The defense by Fedus was that he was attacked by two men, one of whom was Gaiefski, and that he acted in self deefnse.

Attorney Thomas M. Shields was counsel for Gaiefski and also for Michael Zenowitch who had brought a $500 suit against Fedus. But Zenowitch did not appear in court for the trial and Judge Waller allowed a non-suit in the case.

GOOD HEALTH NECESSARY

Many Busy Women Owe Their Health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fifty years ago there were few occupations for women. Some taught school, some did housework, some found work to do at home and a few took up nursing.

Today there are very few occupations not open to women. Today they work in great factories with hundreds of other women and girls. There are also women architects, lawyers, dentists, executives, and legislators. But all too often a woman wins her economic independence at the cost of her health.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlain who works in the Uniondl factory making overalls writes that she got "wonderful results" from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Chamberlain lives at 500 Monmouth St., Trenton, N. J. She recommends the Vegetable Compound to her friends in the factory and will gladly answer any letters she gets from women asking about it.

CLOUD DIGGER SAYS PREDICTION NOT CHANCE

(Special to the Bulletin)

ONECO, May 17.—The Cloud Digger being overwhelmed with letters, telephone calls and in various ways from the many Bulletin readers, requests the newspaper to say: "Please quit fooling".

The fact that the Cloud Digger boldly and gratuitiously informed President C. Royce Boss of the Norwich Golf club some weeks ago that Herbert Janvrin Browne, the ocean meterologist, was wrong when he said "Chances were three out of four that May 16 will be a fair day," has led to much comment both favorable and peculiar. One Norwich lady says, "A fool for luck, you struck it this time." Another Norwich resident says, "I knew it would rain because you said so but what in the dickens made you dig out the hail?"

These are only small samples. The facts are that the Cloud Digger does not guess at the weather in any manner or form, but follows rules that have been wonderfully successful for 117 1-2 years to his knowledge, 50 before he started and 67 1-2 since. It was a very easy matter to go back to those rules, then study the position of the planets at the date required and be absolutely sure of what the weather was to be at that date. The Cloud Digger said to Mr. Boss, "There will be three or four days of rainy weather about that time and it will positively rain May 16." The same Cloud Digger gave the exact date of the New England earthquake, had it on the press wire two hours ahead of anyone in Connecticut. Came within 1½ hours of the exact time of the Japanese earthquake, and has time after time stated months in advance the exact dates of big storms of various kinds. There is no need, says the Cloud Digger, to waste time sending to Washington or any where else for predictions on weather at an exact date ahead. Just ask the Bulletin to hit up the Cloud Digger, or better yet consult the Cloud Digger through the mail. Don't do this when you want to go shopping or joy riding but when you have a big game on like Mr. Boss, when he consulted Herbert Janvrin Browne.

Pansies at Their Best.

The rain of Saturday and Sunday, followed by the warm sunshine of Monday, promise to bring the pansies in the beds at the court house to their best within the next two days. Superintendent Joseph J. Fields has two unusually fine beds of pansies this year, one by the side of the police headquarters window and the other in the circular bed on the Broadway side near the common pleas court windows. Some of the plants have from 15 to 18 blossoms on them at once, all in beautiful colorings.

During the evening Miss Goldberg was pleasantly surprised by telegrams and telephone calls. The bride-to-be was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. She is soon to be united in marriage with Dr. Abraham Kahn of New York city.

VARE, WET CANDIDATE, LEADS IN EARLY RETURNS FROM PENNSYLVANIA PRIMARY

In Contest For Republican Senatorial Nomination, With Returns From 3,145 Districts Out of 8,281, Vare's Plurality Over Senator Pepper Was 86,029—Pinchot, Bone Dry Opponent, Was Hopelessly in the Rear—National Attention Was Drawn to the Contest Because of the Prohibition and Party Control Issues.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—(AP)—Congressman William S. Vare, running on a platform of prohibition law modification led his opponents for the republican nomination for United States senator from Pennsylvania in returns tonight from 3145 districts out of 8,281 in the state in today's primary election.

Senator George Wharton Pepper, candidate for the forces led by Secretary of Treasury Mellon, and classed as a dry was running second with Governor Pinchot, independent, third. Representative Vare's plurality over Senator Pepper was 86,029.

This vote included more than half of Philadelphia, the Vare stronghold which was conceded by the other candidates to give the congressman a substantial plurality. Senator Pepper based his hopes on Allegheny county and western Pennsylvania while the governor looked for his greatest strength in the rural counties and the mining regions.

Today's battle entered in republican fights for the senatorial and gubernatorial nominations. Two issues attracting national attention, prohibition and party control, predominated in the contests.

Three candidates, Governor Gifford Pinchot, Representative William S. Vare and Senator George Wharton Pepper each pledged to support for President Coolidge and his administration, sought the senatorial nomination.

While the president remained silent on his attitude toward each, secretary of the Treasury Mellon entered the contest as a supporter of Senator Pepper, speaking with James J. Davis, secretary of labor, at a political meeting in Pittsburgh.

The prohibition issue was stressed by Representative Vare and Governor Pinchot, the former as an advocate of modification of the Volstead act and the latter as a supporter of even stricter enforcement laws. Senator Pepper, while classed as a dry, declared it was not the paramount issue of the campaign and asked support on the basis of his record in the senate.

Senator Pepper declared Representative Vare had injected the liquor issue in an effort to extend his control of the party into the state outside of the city of Philadelphia.

The campaign was one of the most active in the state's varied political history. Each senatorial and gubernatorial candidate carried his campaign into many counties, speaking at rallies and public gatherings. The radio was used by all the candidates, and many of the speakers in their behalf.

Returns from 2,700 districts out of 8,281 in the state for republican candidates for United States senator gave Vare 267,169; Pepper 159,793; Pinchot 93,629. These included 535 of the 1,492 districts in Philadelphia and 264 of the 1,465 in Allegheny county.

Returns from 2,653 districts for republican governor: Beidleman 557,714; Fisher 172,502; Phillips 20,059; Tener 11,889.

THREE WOMEN SHOT IN FAMILY ROW IN PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 18.—(AP)—Three women were shot one fatally in a family row here tonight by Tom Lamastro, 24, who attempted suicide by shooting himself in a hospital ambulance.

Tom's bride of three weeks ago, Etta Lamastro, was struck between the eyes by one of the bullets and died at a hospital.

The other women shot are, Jennie Lamastro, 18, Tom's brother's wife, and Nellie Lamastro, 18, Tom's sister. The latter may die.

Early reports of the police investigation of the shooting are to the effect that Tom and Etta although married three weeks ago, have not lived together because of ill-feeling between the bride and Tom's sister-in-law, Jennie Lamastro.

Frank Lemastro with Jennie, his wife, and several other women went to Tom's house tonight, the police are informed, to patch up the quarrel with Etta. Etta was not at home, and the peace delegation left the house, only to meet her on her way there. Witnesses said that a spirited quarrel followed the meeting, with the brothers taking an active part. Tom Lamastro whipped out a revolver and fired at Frank, who dogged behind a building and escaped injury. Tom continued to fire until he had shot three of the women, and then tried to kill himself.

He is under police guard at the hospital.

ILL. PRISON EXECUTIVES WITNESSES AT INVESTIGATION

CHICAGO, May 18.—(AP)—The executives of Illinois' prison system have become the star witnesses in special grand jury investigations in Cook and Will counties.

The grand jury investigating Chicago's gang warfare which culminated three weeks ago in the slaying of an assistant state's attorney, today subpoenaed Will Colvin and Chauncey L. Jenkins, of the department of public welfare to appear before it Thursday.

At the same time, Warden John L. Whitman, who testified before the Cook county jury yesterday, hastened back to Joliet to take the stand before the Will county grand jury, whose inquiry began after seven convicts escaped and killed Deputy Warden Peter Klein in making their get-away.

Thus the two grand juries, working from dissociated episodes, are engaged in hearing almost identical evidence—in Chicago to throw light on the hundred gang slayings which have occurred since bootlegging became a crowded profession, and in Joliet to determine what conditions made possible the wholesale jail break.

Colvin, supervisor of paroles and Jenkins, chairman of the welfare board are wanted at Joliet on Thursday to appear before the grand jury there, and whether they will testify on that date on Joliet or Chicago is undetermined.

WOOD CUTTERS PROBABLY VICTIMS OF FOREST FIRES

WARREN, Pa., May 18.—(AP)—Forest fires raging uncontrolled in Elk and McKean counties were believed by forestry officials today to have caused the death of two unidentified woodcutters, who were aiding in fighting the flames. Reports to the forestry office here were that the men were burned to death after having been encircled by flames in the Bear Creek district.

The fire which is sweeping through the Allegheny national forest, started several days ago and has burned over 7,000 acres of second growth timber and has destroyed a number of lumber camps. Approximately five thousand men are fighting the fire.

COMMUNISTS AND ANARCHISTS RAIDED IN BUENOS AIRES

BUENOS AIRES, May 18.—(AP)—More than 80 persons of alleged radical leanings are reported to have been detained by the police in raids on communist and anarchist centers.

The raids were a direct consequence of the bomb explosion outside the American embassy Sunday night.

Pepper A. Jay, the American ambassador, received today scores of telephone messages and numerous visits from persons who wished to express their regrets over the outrage.

NORGE WAS A WRECK WHEN SHE LANDED AT TELLER

NOME, Alaska, May 18.—(AP)—While word came from Seattle today that the first steamship of the season to navigate Bering Sea will come north a week earlier than usual, dismantling of the Dirigible Norge was reported proceeding a pace at Teller, 75 miles from this city.

The Norge, persons visiting Teller said, was so badly damaged in landing there, after she arrived Thursday from a trip over the North Pole, that some of her crew declared she had been wrecked.

The dirigible, these informants declared, had left her way when she sighted Port Clarence, on which Teller is situated.

A wind, called a funnal formation, caught her and she was carried toward the mountains. Some gas was released and as the dirigible settled some of the crew slid down ropes to the ice of Grantley harbor, and arm be Point Clarence, and held her.

Most of the damage done, it was stated, was caused by a gust that caught her just as she was beginning to rest upon the ice.

The radio, which the airship carried was coated with ice and did not work for some time after the Norge was brought down.

The Norge carried about a ton of ice when she reached Teller, more than a hundred pounds of this weight, caught from the arctic atmosphere, clinging to the antennae of her wireless.

The ice of Port Clarence, just beginning to let go for the summer, was pushed and bumped by the wind for 350 feet, it was said. This occurred after declation was well advanced and while the men were hanging as heavily as they could to the ropes.

The snow on the beach hard by was eight feet deep.

Predictions that the Norge would be shipped to the states within a fortnight were heard today.

NO SEANCES HAVE BEEN HELD AT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP)—A round-about story "table-tipping seances" at the white house was told today before a house committee, and promptly denied.

The story was a part of a hearing on a bill to regulate clairvoyants in the District of Columbia. Rose Mackenberg, an investigator for Harry Houdini, testified that a Washington fortune-teller named Mrs. Jane Coates had told her she had definite information that seances were held in the executive mansion with President Coolidge present. Mrs. Coates also was quoted by the witness as saying that other prominent officials had consulted her.

While Miss Mackenberg was testifying Mrs. Coates was shouting denials from her place among the spectators. She declared the witness' testimony in regard to her was entirely false.

Later it was stated at the White House that no seances had been held there during the Coolidge administration.

COMPLETING CONSIDERATION OF HAUGEN FARM RELIEF BILL

WASHINGTON, May 18.—(AP)—House consideration of the Haugen farm relief bill for amendment neared completion today, with the most controversial sections approved, including the provision for an equalization fee on the sales of basic crops.

Without a record vote, the House rejected a motion by Representative Newton, republican, Minnesota, to strike out the clause authorizing the equalization fee to raise funs for stabilizing prices during seasons of surplus.

It agreed, however, to an amendment by Representative Jones, democrat, Texas, to require the proposed federal farm board to advertise for forty days its intention to levy the fee, which could not be assessed if a majority of the farm organizations opposed it. The fee would be authorized immediately on wheat, corn, cattle, hogs and butter and after two years could be placed on cotton.

With the house taking up other business tomorrow, farm relief will be resumed Thursday. A vote on the three pending bills is expected before the week end.

DEATH ENDS PROCEEDINGS IN OBSCENE MATTER CASE

SUPERIOR, Wis., May 18.—(AP)—Death today ended efforts of John L. Morrison to escape service of a Minnesota warrant charging publication of obscene matter in his Duluth rip-saw, a semi-month periodical.

For several days Morrison lay seriously ill in his Duluth hotel and the condition caused officers to postpone service of a warrant issued in Minneapolis on complaint of Mayor George E. Leach, who charged violation of a city ordinance after an attack had been made upon him.

Then early today, without the knowledge of his physician, Morrison had left his bedside called from superior to his hotel, and he was brought to St. Francis hospital here. His condition was then reported grave.

While authorities in Duluth debated the next move to bring Morrison within the jurisdiction of the Minnesota warrant the published died shortly before noon. The coroner announced no inquest would be held.

His death ends the Minneapolis action, against him but it will not affect the suit to suppress the rip-saw brought on behalf of W. F. Tischer, city commissioner of Duluth, the latter's counsel said late today.

STAY IN EXTRADITION OF VON WALDEN TO MICHIGAN

HARTFORD, May 18.—(AP)—A stay of 48 hours on the extradition of Edwin Von Walden to Michigan was allowed today by Acting Governor Brainard after he had signed the extradition request, to allow counsel time to secure a writ of habeas corpus and bring the matter before the courts. A hearing was held on the case of Von Walden who is wanted in Michigan on a charge of being an escaped prisoner. Governor Trumbull had previously refused the extradition request because of obvious technical errors.

George H. Cohen, of this city, representing Von Walden, raised a number of technical objections to the new set of papers. There were errors in spelling he said, affidavits needed were missing and in addition California still had a claim on Von Walden who was paroled from prison there, which would interefre with the Michigan request.

In reply to the latter objection an affidavit was presented which showed that California waived its claims in favor of Michigan. The other technical objections were over-ruled. It is expected that Von Walden's case will be heard in New Haven Thursday morning when he will be represented by Walter Walsh, of that city.

Fall of French Franc May React on Cabinet

Financiers Believe It is Bearing the Brunt of Derangement in European Finances.

PARIS, May 18.—(AP)—The French franc, which has been falling steadily, slumped to a new low today and brought with it the prospect of a vigorous attack on the Briand cabinet when parliament reconvenes on May 31.

The franc, it is felt in financial circles, is bearing the brunt of the general derangement of European finances, and is being affected by the uncertain political situation everywhere. The return of Finance Minister Peret from London tomorrow, when he had been expected to remain until Thursday, also had a discouraging effect since it was taken as indicating that nothing serious has been accomplished toward a debt settlement with Great Britain.

After the close of the Bourse, the franc was quoted at 25.35 to the dollar, a new low. The official quotation at the closing of the Bourse had been 24.70 to the dollar. The slump has caused a sensation since the French people feel that there is no real reason for the decline.

The record slump of the franc, however, was not accompanied by signs of panic, since most brokers and financiers still cling to the belief that the franc will react.

"The franc must react, not only for our interest but in the interest of those to whom we owe money," a leading banker said. "There is no possibility of France paying off any war debts on the basis of 25 francs to the dollar of 123 to the pound. Perhaps the sooner Washington and London understands that unquestionable fact, the sooner will the franc get back to something like its real value."

The reaction in parliamentary circles is decidedly menacing to the Briand government. The socialists and radicals, always lukewarm to the present ministry, are loud in their criticisms of the Washington settlement and declare that negotiations for payments of war debts with the franc at its present low rate is stupid.

ANNUAL SESSION GRAND LODGE, I. O. O. F., IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, May 18.—(AP) — Two thousand Odd Fellows from all parts of the state as well as many high officials of Connecticut and other jurisdictions witnessed the exemplification of the first degree on a class of 200 candidates at Foot Guard hall when the annual session of the grand lodge I. O. O. F. of Connecticut formally opened. Sessions will open today at Odd Fellows' temple.

Preceding tonight's ceremonial, the annual banquet for the Past Representative Association was held at the Hotel Bond. Vice President Fred S. Bushnell, P. G. P., of New Haven, was elected president of the association. Charles R. Hathaway, P. G. M., of Manchester, was elected vice president; and William S. Hutchison, of New Haven, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

CAUSES OF THE DECLINE OF FRENCH AND BELGIAN FRANCS

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP) — The plunge of French and Belgian francs to the lowest prices in history around 3.73 cents today was attributed by American bankers to the continued flight of capital from these countries combined with heavy speculative selling of the exchanges in foreign capitals.

Explaining the loss of confidence in the French financial situation at home, bankers who have handled exchange transactions for the bank of France asserted that the franc was the victim of a "vicious circle," resulting partly from uneasiness over the outcome of the debt funding agreement.

Fears that the debt settlement would fail of approval contributed to the steady depression of the franc, it was said, while the currency's continued drift to new low levels made it increasingly difficult to reconcile the French to the debt funding proposal.

PARISIANS DESERTING SALOONS FOR MOVIES

PARIS, May 18.—(AP)—The movies and improved housing conditions in the opinion of Professor Labbe, of the Academy of Medicine, have done more to decrease alcoholism among French workmen than any other agencies.

The professor speaking before the academy today, declared young workmen drink less than older craftsmen because they have formed the habit of spending their evenings in movie houses instead of saloons.

INCAPABILITY BASED ON HER LIKING FOR DOGS

NEW YORK, May 18.—(AP)—An extreme liking for dogs, which caused her to have clothes made for them and keep them always with her will be offered as evidence that Miss Ella B. Greenwood is mentally capable when she argue a will disposing of her million dollar estate, it was indicated today by attorneys for the contestants. They also charged that Miss Rogers used narcotics and liquor. The case was brought before the jury in Surrogate's court today.

The contest was brought by several cousins who were mentioned in the will and involves 69 individuals, several hospitals, and charitable institutions and 16 law firms. The contestants expect to prove that the aged woman was incompetent and not testamentarily capable when she made the will three years prior to her death last January.

FASCISM'S SYSTEM FOR THE SOLUTION OF CLASS WAR

Approved Yesterday by the Italian Cabinet After Nearly a Year of Study—Designed to End Strike and Lockout—Gives the Government Control of the Entire Productive Life of the Nation—Intellectual and Manual Laborers Must Belong to Separate Organizations.

ROME, May 18.—(AP)—Fascism's system for the solution of class war, which is intended to sound the death knell of the strike and lockout, and which Premier Mussolini considers one of the most important of his government's contributions to modern statecraft, was approved today by the cabinet after nearly a year of intense study.

The basic principle of the tremendously complicated system is the right and power of the government to control directly through the new ministry of corporations and the elaborate machinery of subsidiary organizations, the entire productive life of the nation.

The instruments capital and labor, both manual and intellectual," the cabinet's decision avers, "are no longer opposed to the state and its essential organs, but are inserted vitally into the state organism."

The document explaining the new system which is to be applied to the industrial problem contains about 15,000 words. Its general outline may be summed up as follows:

First, anti-fascist labor employers, unions and organizations will be deprived of their powers.

Second, thirteen national associations, supplanting the old unions, including all classes of workers and employers, will be created.

Third, three national confederations will be created for liaison purposes.

Fourth, an undetermined number of corporations are to be created as instruments of control by the ministry of corporations over the association of confederations.

Fifth, state and public service workers will be banded in special types of associations.

Sixth, all labor disputes must be submitted to compulsory arbitration.

Seventh, special courts for the settlement of labor disputes will be created, with an entirely new labor code added to other legal codes providing for penalties, appeals, methods of handling jurors, qualifications of jurors and other matters.

Eighth, while setting up new machinery, for its purposes, the government reserves the absolute right to step in at any time for any purpose "for the protection of national interests."

Explaining the system, spokesmen of the government pointed out that fascism considered the nation's productivity an essential part of its patrimony; hence control over productivity should be exercised by the government alone, a liberal trade union system creating a state within a state, which was intolerable.

Membership in the new national associations will be restricted to Italians, male and female, over 21 years of age, and "of good moral and political conduct from a national viewpoint."

Non-Italians will not be permitted membership, but will profit by collective labor contracts and pay duty. Special associations, with more restricted liberties, are provided for employes of the state administrative services, savings banks, national banks, railways, and postal and telegraphic services.

Since the system intends to control the relations between labor and capital, all associations of non-producers will be dissolved; only laborers and employers will be permitted to belong to the fascist associations, but intermediary classes, like small land holders, or farmers, shopkeepers and still persons who work or employ labor, even for short periods annually, will be given places in the associations.

Intellectual and manual laborers must belong to separate associations. The three national confederations are for workers, employers and professional people. The workers and employers confederations each include associations for industry, agriculture, commerce, banking and transport. That of the professionals includes associations for artists, artisans and the various professions, medicine, law, journalism and so forth, but professors and teachers will be included in the special state associations.

The confederations are restricted to controlling mutual aid, instruction and education.

New corporations acting directly under cabinet guidance will be empowered to co-ordinate and harmonize all the powers of production, each corporation handling a group of associations. The news associations will be created under governmental supervision.

The initial duty of the labor council will be to attempt to settle a dispute amicably by discussion and negotiation exerting their pressure only when absolutely necessary.

In general, prison terms for infringement of these regulations are provided only for strikes and lockouts which are not sanctioned and not justified and are contrary to the efforts of the courts, or when accompanied by violence.

VERDICT OF $15,000 AWARDED BRIDGEPORT POLICEMAN

BRIDGEPORT, May 18.—(AP) — A verdict of $15,000 was awarded by a jury in superior court this afternoon to Charles T. Fitzgerald, a motorcycle policeman attached to the Bridgeport hospital, who said injuries suffered to his left leg in an automobile accident has affected his ability as a policeman.

Policeman Fitzgerald was patrolling Washington avenue near Congress street on September 27, 1924, when an automobile owned by Francis R. Hoffman, of Bridgeport, and driven by William Klahr, collided with his motorcycle.

Fitzgerald brought an action for damages of $25,000, naming as defendants Klahr, Hoffman and Samuel Klahr, formerly associated with his brother in the Klahr Plate Glass company. Non-suits were granted by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin declaring Samuel Klahr and Hoffman were not liable. The $15,000 verdict was returned against William Klahr by default.

MESSAGE FROM AMERICA TO DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE

GENEVA, May 18.—Nations will fear to disarm, because other nations actually weaker but potentially stronger, can in the long run conquer them—that is the supreme stumbling block to disarmament which loomed today at the opening session of the preparatory commission.

France mentioned it; Belgium, overwhelmed in the great war, emphasized it anxiously, and Premier Mussolini's spokesman, even declared: "If you do not take account of every kind of potential military strength in a country, then you show a desire to weaken a weak state and strengthen a strong one."

From the United States came a message which evoked considerable favorable comment as manifesting sincere American determination to co-operate in the large problem of disarmament, and as showing sympathetic knowledge of the complicated questions facing other nations, which make the limitation of armaments difficult, though not impossible.

In the first place, as its meeting in advance any luke warmness on the part of the others or any disposition to temporise with o rpostpone definite action. Hugh S Gibson, chairman of the American delegation, urged all to devote their "earnest and continuous attention" to the work undertaken. He expressed the opinion that constructive achievement in the limitation of land armaments lies in the conclusion of regional agreements, rather than in an effort to work out a plan applicable to the whole world.

This seemed to be interpreted tonight as meaning that the United States does not wish to intervene, except helpfully, in any Europe arrangement for land armament reduction, special attention was paid to Mr. Gibson's words that America would welcome steps tending to a further limitation of competitive naval construction. As a supplement to the Washington conference. Some Europeans see in these words an American desire to secure a reduction in submarines, which question was not treated in Washington.

CHICAGO, May 18.—(AP)—Ross Kilpatrick, 30-year-old aviator of the freighter "Maiden Dearborn" of the Ford Motor Company air service, was killed at Summit, on the southern city limits during a storm tonight which caused a forced landing.

His plane, on landing, struck soft ground, causing it to nose into the earth. Damage estimated from $150,000 to $200,000 was caused by the storm which extended east from Summit to Harvey, where more than 200 homes were wrecked.

PILSUDSKI'S STAR IS WANING IN POLAND AS MILITARY HERO WEAKENS AFTER COUP

WARSAW, Poland, May 18.—(AP)—Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, who overthrew the Witos government, ousted the president of the republic after a military rising and took control of the power, is suffering from exhaustion. Those close to him declare that all he needs is rest, and he himself, after several sleepless days and nights while fighting was going on in the streets of the capital, rather pathetically on Monday said that he could sleep and sleep.

Pilsudski's star, for the moment at least, appears to be waning. The military hero, who by a swift stroke overthrew the government and captured the city, is too modest to allow his name to stand as candidate for the presidency, to say nothing of listening to the demands of his friends and supporters that he declare himself dictator.

The socialists and radicals have deserted Poland's idol because their appeals for the dissolution of parliament and the establishment of Pilsudski in a dictatorship have failed. By reason of this failure to display the iron hand, the socialists and radicals are denouncing the revolution as a needless shedding of blood, something which Pilsudski endeavored to avoid and over which he is most regretful.

They argue that leadership from him can no longer be expected, and it is becoming apparent that he has no political or economic program prepared.

After an all-day conference between Acting President Rataj and the party leaders of the various factions, Cracow seems to have the best chance as the seat of the national assembly, to meet May 28 as tentatively agreed. A meeting at Cracow of the populist piast party, of which M. Witos is chairman, decided to join the opponents of Warsaw as the seat of the assembly, and M. Rataj, who is also leader of this party is inclined to keep the wish of the majority of the deputies and senators.

The choice of Cracow represents a compromise between Warsaw and Posen, but it is thought to indicate that Pilsudski's position has not improved. It is the national assembly which will elect the new president.

Noc has any programme been devised by those opposing Marshal Pilsudski. The whole country is waiting for something to happen.

Should M. Rataj, who alone has the power to fix the place and date of the national assembly meeting, decide against Warsaw, it is possible the radical group will seek a free hand for the future so that they may be able to say that the president was not their choice and that they had nothing to do with the appointment.

M. Trompczynski, speaker of the senate and M. Dmowski are negotiating at Posen for a political truce or reconciliation of the warring parties.

RIGHT OF WAY CASE NOW BEFORE SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 13—Upon the opening of the superior court here this morning with Judge Christopher L. Avery of Groton on the bench, the first business taken up was the calling of the docket. The number of cases called by attorneys were unusually large. Continuances for one week were ordered on the short calendar in the cases of the Willimantic Lumber & Coal company vs. Rohde & Stanek, Inc., and Jessie M. Hopton vs. C. L. Lapalice. The same was also allowed in the cases of Prudence Israel, Calla Israel and Florence Horwitz vs. Irving R. Trink. In the case of Wilfrid Magnon vs. August Anderson, the attorney for the plaintiff stated that some payments on an agreed settlement of damages had been made but that they were not completed and that judgment would be asked for.

In the case of Dwight T. Phillips vs. Arthur Maynard, judgment on a note against the defendant was asked for by the plaintiff's attorney. The note presented by Phillips was for $427.33. The court rendered judgment to recover for that amount.

Only two of the four cases on the list for jury were claimed in the assignments for next week: Hester Howell et al vs. George F. Taylor, George Spaulding vs. C. F. Colcord. Both cases were set down for Tuesday May 26 and Judge Avery gave orders to summon the jury for that date.

The five assignment of cases for this Wednesday stand. Four of the cases will be heard at the same time as the defendant in each instance is the same person. The plaintiffs are Elsear Gaumond, administrator, Yvonne Gaumond by her next friend, Elsear Gaumond, Elsear Gaumond and Zelda Gaumond. The defendant is Joseph Gagner. The fifth case is that of the Interstate Busses corporation vs. Richard T. Higgins et als, public utilities commission.

The case of Jacob and Bernard Schultz of Worcester, Mass., manufacturers of ladies' dresses vs. Shaheen Haddad of this city was taken up, and in conclusion Judge Avery upheld the decision of the lower court in finding for the plaintiffs to recover the sum of $93 with interest since July of last year. The Schultzs claimed that in July 1924 they sold dresses to Haddad, which were later returned to them with the exception of a few of the dresses which Haddad had sold and for which a check was enclosed. Claiming that this action of Haddad was not according to contract the plaintiffs refused to accept either the check or the dresses. The defendant alleged that he was following an agreement.

The case of Frank A. Phillips vs. James W. Baker, one of the three cases scheduled for Tuesday, was settled out of court. The case of Jackson & Sumner vs. Frank Brown will be taken up this Wednesday upon the conclusion of the case of Eleanor T. Ford vs. the Community Hotel Corporation, Inc., which was started on Tuesday. The case was a special assignment for the day and started just before noon. It is a suit for damages of $1,500 over an alleged right of way between Main street and Meadow street. The right of way bordered on the Johnson House property, formerly the Youngs Hotel. The building was torn down and the site as well as the land of the right of way is now blocked with the new Nathan Hale hotel under construction. Attorney S. B. Harvey for the plaintiff outlined the case and said that the damages primarily asked for were $200 but the amount had been raised to $1,500. Attorneys W. A. King and T. H. Fyler represent the defendant.

City Engineer Robert E. Mitchell exhibited a map of the right of way showing the surrounding buildings and streets. The original way was from Main to Meadow street. From a point just south of property owned by Mrs. Ford the driveway was known as Meadow Lane. In order that the mental picture of the disputed land might be more accurate Judge Avery ordered a twenty minute recess and with the attorneys he visited the location.

Deeds of transfers of the land in question dating back for many years were submitted to the court. Many witnesses who were familiar with the property and the use of the right of way when it existed were heard. They included Ellery Weeks, Rabbi Max Lefkowitz, Judge Albert M. Gilman, Mrs. Rose Harris, Frank R. Jackson, James W. Stimpson, Edwin O. Summer, Chauncey E. Macfarlane, Philip S. Hills, Constable Joseph Peck, Frank L. Ford, husband of Mrs. Eleanor T. Ford, and William E. Taylor. All testified that the right of way had been virtually in constant use. Messrs. Hills and Peck were to testify to the value of the Ford property with and without a right of way, but it was found that they had appraised the wrong buildings.

Past records show that the property was conveyed to Henry Kenyon in 1877. Upon his death it came into the ownership of Kelina Kimball and Mrs. Arnold, both sisters. Mr. Ford bought his buildings on Meadow Lane in 1901, at that time transferring the property to his first wife, Mary Ford. Since then it has been placed in the name of his second wife, Mrs. Eleanor T. Ford. In searching the records of the transactions the attorneys for the defense sought to establish that in the deed of the transfer from Frank to Eleanor Ford the right of way was not included. Mr. Ford testified that before the closing of the right of way, he valued the property affected consisting of two residential buildings, at $6,000. He asserted that the value had now dropped to $3,500.

Court adjourned at 5 o'clock daylight time, until this Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock standard time.

"Making Good" was the subject of an interesting and inspirational talk given at the meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club Tuesday noon in the Y. M. C. A. by Rev. David Winslow Lovett, pastor of the First Baptist church. Rev. Mr. Lovett was introduced by Charles B. Pomeroy, chairman of the program committee. The session was largely attended. The guests were First Selectman Ernest F. Chesbro of this city, Edward E. Farrington of the Mansfield State Training school, Fred Rossbrooks of this city and State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford, president of the Putnam Rotary club.

President James P. Bath had charge of the meeting. He appointed Professor R. E. Dodge and Charles B. Pomeroy as an Ox to Amherst, Mass., committee for the charter night meeting of that new club on the evening of June 8th. A hurried check-up showed that about one dozen members planned to make the trip. For the special benefit of State's Attorney Bradford, as well as for personal exhilaration, special singing was called for by the song leaders for the day, John F. Ahern and Dr. R. Bullock Jones. John T. Quinlan was at the piano. Old Black Joe was delightfully rendered in a remarkable symphony of bases and tenors by Dr. M. D. Riordan, Ellison S. Smith, Harry W. Standish, Raymond A. Parker, Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, Albert [illegible], John R. Pickett and Albert B. Smith. Mayor John C. Tracy spoke for the city, stating this Wednesday night's meeting that he hoped for a large attendance. Secretary Loisell announced that Harry A. Blanchette would be the editor of The Cox for next week. Adjournment was taken at 1:30 o'clock.

With appropriations amounting to $123,000 to be asked for there is unusually active interest in the special city meeting which will be held at the town hall this Wednesday evening. The bulk of the business is the request for an appropriation of $100,000 for improvements and extensions to the municipal water system. For those who are not fully acquainted with the conditions of the system, its needs and what is proposed to be done with the money, Henry W. Taylor of New London, consulting engineer, will be on hand to give a detailed explanation of the situation. Engineer Taylor drafted the plans for the improvements to the system.

Mayor John C. Tracy has made a personal as well as official appeal to the citizens to attend the meeting and listen to remarks made so that whether the vote is for or against the proposition it will be at least an intelligent one. The voting of the appropriation would not affect the tax rate as feared by many, as the water system is self supporting.

In other matters to be brought for a vote are included an appropriation of $1,000 for parks or playgrounds, an appropriation of $20,000 for sewers on Ann and Hope streets and an appropriation of $2,000 for the Visiting Nurse association, also the fixing of the tax levy on the city grand list.

WILLIMANTIC, May 13—During the session of superior court in this city Tuesday, Judge C. L. Avery issued a peremptor ywrit against Judge of Probate Davis Flagg of Putnam, citing him to hasten the compiling of records of his office. On May 11, an alternative writ was issued by the court at the request of State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford and served by Deputy Sheriff Charles I. Ayer of Danielson, following the appearance of the applicant and respondent through his attorney, John M. Carpenter of Putnam. Joseph Dellen of North Coventry pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication in police court Tuesday morning. Dellen attracted the attention of residents of the road between Windham Center and North Windham when he started to drive his horse and wagon on and off the road. Motorcycle Officer Arthur Hurley answered the complaint. Dellen was "sitting pretty" in the gutter with a bottle of booteh lying beside him. He said that he was a suffering man and he used the liquor for his ailment. Judge Foss felt convinced that the man had taken too much of his medicine. He imposed a fine of $5 and costs, amounting to $12.15.

THINKS MOVIE THEATER IS BEST FUTURE FOR ORGANISTS

NEW YORK, May 13 (AP)—Modern organists have found their greatest opportunity for development in a place where a few years ago it was least expected to exist—the American motion picture theater—says Dr. Melchiorre Mauro-Cottone, concert organist and composer.

Dr. Cottone lately was decorated with the Cross of the Chevalier of the crown by the king of Italy, and was presented by the National Association of Organists at their recent convention.

Many of the finest organs in the world are in the cinema palaces and the men who play them, in Dr. Cottone's opinion, reach larger audiences than they have ever had before.

"There was a time," he said, "when it was thought the organ was not very adaptable to the motion picture theater. But we now know how false this opinion was. The organ is most elastic, even more so than the orchestra, and in playing for the screen we can switch instantly from one theme to another.

"Nothing more develops the improvisation of an organist. Here we also play all types of music. In the church, our range is narrow and there is little need of improvisation."

Before becoming chief organist at the Capitol theater here, Dr. Cottone presided at the organs of several of New York's largest churches. When only 12, he was assistant professor to his father in the Royal Conservatory at Palermo, Italy.

Many of the greatest musicians have sat in Dr. Cottone's pit and watched him while he played, among them being the late Enrico Bossi, Lemare, Farnam, Noble, Toscanini, Rachmaninoff and Paderewski.

Blessed are the innocent, for they have a lot to learn.

FORD SENDS HEAVY TRUCK TO GROUND FOR THE COUNT

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 13—A closed body truck of the Ward Baking company was bowled over on its side during the noon hour today when it swung across Main street on the West Side, to go into Elm street, as a Ford driven by James Moran, employed at the Paco Mfg. company office, came along. The truck, a high structured arrangement, just flopped over under the impact of the lighter machine and lay on its side in the highway for a couple of hours before it was righted and proceeded on its way, practically undamaged. The front end of the Ford was crushed. No one was injured in the accident.

On a call from Box 312, one heard so seldom that numbers had difficulty in counting it, the firemen were called out at 4:10 Tuesday afternoon for a run to Connecticut Mills village, and were back at quarters again in ten minutes. A three-burner oil stove in the home of Arthur LaFlamme at 9 Francis street started the commotion when the affair began to smoke while members of the household were out in the yard, giving an impression the house was afire. The apartment was filled with smoke, which caused all the damage that occurred. The firemen had no work to do.

There will be few wild flowers for Memorial day this year. The season has been so slow in developing that only a few of the many flowers that usually enter into the making of bouquets and other floral decorations for Memorial day uses will be available, unless there is an amazingly swift development of these blooms within the next ten days. Shortage of these flowers will mean in all probability a larger business for the florists.

GILPATRIC'S POSITION IS QUESTION BEFORE COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 13.—Whether G. Harold Gilpatrick, former state treasurer and cashier of the First National bank of Putnam was acting in his capacity as trustee of the estate of Joseph W. Cutler of Putnam, at the time his defalcations were made known, as the point held to be the factor controlling liability of the insurers of the separate bonds given to cover each capacity, in the appeal to the supreme court of errors recently of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company and the Royal Indemnity company from the decision of Judge Simpson in the superior court.

In December, 1924, the state of Connecticut, in relation to the Hartford Trust company, trustee of the estate of Annie G. Cutler, brought suit against the two insurers of the bonds for damages of $34,756.06 being the amount unaccounted for in the proceeds of the Cutler estate.

The United States Fidelity and Guaranty company was found liable for $21,657.56 and the Royal Indemnity company for $13,924.53.

DECORATION DAY WILL SEE MANY MEMORIABLE FOR DEAD

CHICAGO, May 13 (AP)—America, in the "carry on" spirit of Flanders Field and the Argonne, is keeping alive the memory of her World war dead.

The pinnacle of tribute to the heroes of Decoration day this year will have been raised to new heights as states in the Union add to memorials which already are represented in millions of dollars.

Even while these stately piles of masonry take form in statues, stadiums and buildings, green parks hold open invitations and tree bordered highways stretch far into the country, still other memories are being planned.

St. Louis is constructing a memorial plaza and building group at a cost of $15,000,000. Nebraska's new capitol, on which $8,000,000 was expended, has been dedicated to the state's fallen sons. Indianapolis will have a ten million dollar group of memorial structures.

In Chicago, approximately $10,000,000 has been put into beautiful memorials, one of which is the horse-shoe stadium at Grant Park. "Liberty Memorial," a 217 foot grey stone shaft, topped with a bowl in which fire will burn continuously, is nearing completion at Kansas City.

The University of Texas' Million Dollar Memorial Stadium soon will be completed. Equally impressive memorials are in Michigan, Wisconsin and other states of the Middle and North West.

A million dollar building in which is Patriotic Hall, in Los Angeles' outstanding recognition of service. Memorial Highway, lined with one hundred trees, runs from Seattle to Tacoma. In San Francisco, friends of veterans have contracted, for a group of buildings, in civic center to cost $2,000,000.

An area of several acres in City Creek Canyon, within the shadow of Utah's state capitol, has been transformed into a Memorial park. Alumni of the University of Oregon plan a million dollar court on the campus.

Hawaii's principal tribute, now under construction, will house a swimming pool and provide for other recreations dear to island residents.

In the south, Tennessee has an imposing memorial in the annex building to the state capitol. Vanderbilt university has the Alumni Memorial hall, which stands in honor of the institution's war dead.

The Campanile" has been erected at Louisiana state university to memorialize its heroes. Florida has appropriated $3,500 annually to add to a fund of $85,000 for use in connection with a department of Americanism at the university of Florida.

Montgomery, Ala., has a $500,000 hospital in memory of former service men. A new bridge, constructed at a cost of $500,000, spans the Alabama river on the Birmingham and Montgomery highway, and probably will be known as Memorial Bridge.

One of Connecticut's principal memorials is a large hospital at Manchester, dedicated to veterans. Numerous memorials are in Massachusetts, among them being buildings in Athol and Lowell. There is a bridge at Portsmouth, connecting Maine and New Hampshire. One of Vermont's tributes is a building at Brattleboro, in which bronze tablets carry the names of 536 veterans.

Delaware, one of the smallest states has two of the most impressive memorials. Wilmington contributed a bridge at a cost of $1,000,000, while the state university established a large library.

Many small memorials are in New York city, but definite action on $600,000, provided by the municipal government two years ago for a suitable tribute, yet is to be taken. Other memorials to cost upwards of $15,000,000 also are in the planning stage.

Binghampton, N. Y., has erected a bridge over the Chenango river, while Penn Yan is the site of a soldiers and sailors hospital.

Pennsylvania plans to extend its memorials to France, where tributes will be erected at five places at which troops from the state saw action.

Pittsburgh has dedicated its Memorial Building to the veterans of all wars. Philadelphia has appropriated $5,000,000 for a suitable memorial.

These and many other huge memorials exist but the greatest of them all and the one upon which center the thoughts of those who remember the heroism of America's men is the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Washington.

"DESERT STATES" SHOWN TO HOLD VAST TIMBER AREAS

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., May 13 (AP)—Mention of New Mexico and Arizona as forests would get a laugh out of the average person, because the popular fancy is that this section is part of the "Great American Desert," sprinkled with cacti and yucca.

Yet figures of the logging division of the U. S. Forestry service disclose the fact that 1-5 of the total area of these states is timber, chiefly yellow pine. The total timbered area comprises 24,560,000 acres, estimated to contain 37,000,000,000 feet of saw timber and 23,000,000,000 cords of wood.

An unbroken stretch of yellow pine extends from the country west of the Elephant Butte dam in New Mexico to the rim of the Grand Canyon and across into the Kaibab national forest.

STRIVING FOR DISARMAMENT

As the conference assembles at Geneva to talk about disarmament, at which representatives of this country are present, there is no little concern as to just what heed will be given to the expression put forth by our state department some days ago to the effect that the plans should be so shaped that something can be accomplished rather than inviting a failure by undertaking too much.

There is such a thing as providing a discouraging outlook by including in the program for the subsequent conference those things which it is known cannot be accomplished at this time. On the other hand it is known, in spite of the existing conditions that most of the nations would be interested in extending the disarmament agreement that prevails at the present time. The time may not be ripe to go in too deep, but from the good effects of the Washington conference it is possible to interest the leaders at least in protecting themselves against the unwarranted outlays which formerly existed in connection with naval construction by applying similar terms to smaller vessels than are now included.

There is no desire for a return to the old days of naval competition. A race of that kind is endless and involves huge sums of money. The money in fact can be put to much better use in other ways, after allowance is made for the maintenance of adequate navies with the same relative basis of strength.

Restrictions on capital ships might well be applied to vessels of other classes under some agreement that may be worked out. Whether they can be applied to submarines and airplanes at this time is a question. There are indications that European nations are not ready to go in for restrictions of land armaments, and it is Europe where the decision to do anything in that direction must rest. As time goes on and the good effects of disarmament gradually applied are brought out sentiment there may change.

The aim at Geneva at this conference must be to accomplish something rather than to block action by undertaking too much. Progress, even though it is small is preferable to standing still.

ANTI-LYNCHING EFFORTS

Whenever anti-lynching legislation has been urged upon congress it has always encountered strong opposition There are states to which it is particularly disquieting and there are always those in congress who believe such matters should be dealt with by the states and not the federal government.

Thus when the senate judiciary committee refuses to report the McKinley anti-lynching bill it represents the opposition of these two influences and the refusal of the committee to give it endorsement probably ends the efforts in its behalf at this session. It is of course not the first time that such a measure has failed, although the Dyer bill received the favorable vote of the house but was killed by a filibuster in the senate.

Much more disappointment might be felt over the refusal of the senate committee to report on the McKinley bill, but for the fact that the states which it is intended to affect have displayed a decidedly different attitude toward lynching since the efforts to obtain a federal law were made. They have apparently begun to realize that a federal law is being sought because of their failure to deal properly with such lawlessness and if they expect to escape the undesirable federal law it is time to enforce law and order.

It is much more desirable that the respective states should deal with this problem. They never should have tolerated the laxness in this respect that has prevailed for years and thereby brought discredit upon their laws and authorities and disgrace upon the good name of the commonwealths.

The change in attitude that has been manifested in certain of the southern states, the reduction of lynching and the efforts to bring to justice those who have participated in lynchings indicate that the south has recognized the need of doing some housecleaning on its own initiative. It is certainly time, and in the efforts put forth there can be seen the effects of the endeavors to bring about federal legislation, even though those steps have not been successful.

WILKINS TO CARRY ON

The season of fogs is at hand for the polar regions and fogs are just as big handicaps there as elsewhere. They are a particular menace to aviation, and it is aviation upon which dependence is being placed now for the gaining of increased knowledge concerning the unknown recesses of that region.

Because two of the seekers for the pole and fame have succeeded does not mean that the others are discouraged and will abandon their efforts. On the contrary they are going to make use of the information that has been obtained and apply as much of it as possible in the furtherance of their quest. That at least is to be inferred from the instructions which have been given to Captain Wilkins who is at Point Barrow, Alaska, waiting for favorable conditions for plunging into the unknown area in search of land.

Wilkins has experienced a series of handicaps through accidents to his machines. He has been able to boost his big three engine machine over the mountains to the coast and on that he must depend for such flights as he makes out over the large area of which nothing is known except what Amundsen saw as he made his flight across it from the pole to Alaska. Wilkins has already made two exploratory flights of considerable length into the unknown, on one of which he was lost for a number of days. He has a supply of gasoline that will permit him to cover at least 1600 miles and it is not improbable that he will yet produce before the season ends some valuable information concerning what is now marked as the unknown area. Land is his objective. He would like to clear up the uncertainty regarding the belief of an island to the north of Alaska and find it possible a landing place for airplanes in making flights across the pole from Europe to America or Asia.

The success of the air expeditions has whetted the interest in the far north and it can be expected that they will furnish material aid in disclosing the secrets of that region.

NEEDED FOR MOTOR THIEVES

By action of a New York judge the Jefferson Valley Horse Thief Detective association is to disband. The association sought the right and there appeared no reason why it should be kept in existence against its will.

This organization was established back in the days when there were many horse thieves and when it was desirable to give such help as it could to the other authorities in running down and prosecuting those who made a business of stealing horses. It worked efficiently and but for the change in conditions there is no reason to believe that it would seek to end its own existence. It knew horse thieves, it made it its business to keep track of them and it was merciless in pursuit of them.

No one will question under present day conditions that the petition for dissolution was justified, but it does seem a bit unfortunate that it could not have changed its name a bit by substituting automobile for horse and continued to render the same high degree of service that it always has.

It is quite certain that there is just as much need of running down and prosecuting those who steal automobiles as there was of providing such service in the case of horse stealing. But if it considered its qualifications restricted to horsedom the example of its good work should make its appeal to those who are now concerned with motor vehicles and inspire them to get together and do likewise. It will not make much difference to the horse thieves these days that the Jefferson association is disbanded, but motor thieves might be a bit more considerate if they knew such an organization of detectives could be expected on their trail every time they did a job.

UNCERTAINTY IN POLAND

Much uncertainty prevails in regard to the situation in Poland. There was a time when everything seemed most favorable to Pilsudski. He put through his coup d'etat in short order and there appeared to be a rallying to his standard. But his action seems only to have inspired others and that makes difficult the carrying out of his plans.

Pilsudski represents his action as growing out of the conditions which he was unwilling to tolerate longer in Poland. His dissatisfaction took the form of forcing a change without regard for the legality of the course. In doing that he of course set an example for others, and there can thus be no surprise when he encounters the opposition of General Heller and his supporters. In much the same way as Pilsudski forced out the president of Poland and his cabinet Heller is planning to dispose of Pilsudski and the cabinet of which he is a member.

Whether he can do it is a question, but until it is found out it means that Poland is going to suffer from the clash. It is a situation which does not augur well for any republic. The resort to bullets instead of ballots at times of election or in making changes in governments or officials is deplorable.

The experience in Poland is not any different than that which has been felt in other republics, but it is unfortunate nevertheless. The change by violent means does not appear to have established any greater certainty and satisfaction than prvailed before the Pilsudski coup and the outcome remains decidedly uncertain.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is time for the song and many would like to be Maying.

The man on the corner says: It doesn't take much to bring back the symptoms of spring fever.

Now that the contests for the water board are settled we can settle down to the election of the rest of the city officials.

The fact that the government pays millions in interest on Liberty bonds this month doesn't interest as many as it used to.

Perhaps the fact that one woman in California shot another was due to the fact that one was Los Angeles and the other from Frisco.

Now that the north pole has been fully discovered there will be a chance now for the intrepid to try to step on the top of Mount Everest.

If those on the Norge found only thin ice and open water at the north pole they must be running the heater overtime up there this spring.

It remains to be seen whether the suds in Pilsudski are going to mean a clean up in Warsaw or whether they will put the skids under the new government.

Now that the tickets of the two parties are in the field it is just a question of votes to determine who shall direct the city's affairs for the next year—possibly two years.

REGULAR MOVIE PLOT

"Of course," said the plump woman in the mink coat, helping herself to another slice of marshmallow chocolate cake, "these things never happen in real life."

"Oh, certainly not," said the other large matron, comfortably. "The idea of a little girl from a shop marrying into the home of people of refinement and cultivation. It's simply absurd." And she poured herself another cup of chocolate, which she covered with whipped cream from a silver jug at her elbow.

"It is diverting to see in the movies, of course," went on the stout woman in the mink coat. "I think it always goes over well with the public. But, of course—" here she paused. "Of course, such things as virtue rewarded and love conquering all—while very good in the pictures on the screen simply would not do at all if you applied them to real life.

"Now, take my son, for instance. He got himself into a mad infatuation for a girl something like that girl in the picture. He really would have married her and ruined his life if we had not put a stop to it. I simply said to him, 'Douglas,' I said 'if you marry that common little thing not one more penny will you get from me! And when I die,' I said, 'I'll leave every cent to charity.' Of course he didn't like it very well, but he had to give in."

"I heard something about that," said the large woman, who had been listening to this revelation. "I heard that he met her when he was hurt in that train wreck and she took him in and nursed him and took care of him."

"Well common humanity could not have done more," declared the fat woman in the mink coat. "I declare, those cookies are good, Matilda! You haven't any more of them in the kitchen, have you. I don't know how you get your cook to make such delicious things."

The large woman rang the bell for more cookies and the fat woman continued: "No, I have told Douglas that any woman in her circumstances would have done as much for him, and that it is in no way remarkable that she should have known just what to do to save his life—not that I believe she did save his life, but you know how extravagant men are when they get to talking like that. And he had never been interested in a woman before in the slightest, so, naturally, he is taking it a little hard at his age."

"Yes," said the hostess. "I think when you wait until you are 30 to fall in love it does come more difficult some times—"

"No," interrupted the large woman hastily, "that it is love at all. It's a mere boyish infatuation. He is still a boy at heart, and if you could see the childish way he has acted you would know that I spoke the truth. Of course, I brought him to heel by letting him know that he need not expect another cent from me. And, fortunately, he believed me, because I do not know what I would have done if he hadn't. Because, naturally, you can't disinherit your own son."

"No," said the stout hostess thoughtfully. "I often wonder how parents do that."

"Well, of course, it's a very convenient threat. And Douglas has entirely recovered from even imagining that he was in love with this girl. Hester, I believe her name was. But, of course if all that had happened in the movies Douglas would have married the girl anyway, and—"

"I should almost have thought he would in life," said the comfortable-looking hostess. "He doesn't look like a man who is easily influenced."

"Oh, well," said the mink-furred lady, bridling, "of course he is not easily influenced by any one except his mother. Naturally. I wind him around my little finger. Well, it's getting dark and I must be going home now."

As they went toward the door the evening paper lay across the sill and the large woman who had been hostess picked it up. "Good gracious," she exclaimed. "Here's your son's picture on the first page."

The woman in the mink coat picked it up and read: "Romantic wedding takes place in courthouse. Rich youth weds Cinderella who nursed him back to life!"

The fat woman in the mink coat had fainted.—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

Benjamin Lincoln, the First Great Lincoln in United States History

When Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown, thereby acknowledging the supremacy of the American Colonies and making possible the establishment of the United States as an independent world power, he handed his sword to Benjamin Lincoln, an American general chosen by Washington, because of dauntless patriotism, to receive the sword of a conquered foe. Thus, at the birth of the United States, as well as the life and death struggle of the Civil war, a Lincoln appeared as a leader of patriotic forces.

The original ancestor of Abraham Lincoln was a certain Lincoln, who left Norwich, England, in 1638, and went to Hingham, Massachusetts. From that place some of his descendants went to Pennsylvania, to Virginia and to Kentucky, where the great president was born. Almost a hundred years after the arrival of Samuel Lincoln in Hingham, Mass., Benjamin Lincoln was born in the same place. It is obvious, therefore, that the two great American patriots who bore the name of Lincoln came from the same family.

The father of Benjamin Lincoln was a common farmer, without means or opportunity to give his son more than the rudiments of an education. He brought the boy up to become a farmer like himself. In that work Benjamin Lincoln labored without event until he was over 40 years of age. He was naturally a forceful man and a leader, and his associates chose him to represent them in political assemblies, and made him a colonel of the local militia.

When the Revolution broke out the stalwart farmer, Benjamin Lincoln, was one of the leaders in organizing troops. Throughout the War of Independence he served with great distinction, fighting at White Plains, Saratoga and in various places in the south. After the Revolution he again led troops, this time in Shay's Rebellion. He was one of the men who urged Massachusetts to ratify the Constitution. In all ways he was a leader and a patriot. In fact, he showed in his long life of 77 years much of the kindliness, the simple faith and the staunch patriotism that characterized Abraham Lincoln. At no time did he desert his farm, nor the principles that he had learned at his father's knee. It was his delight to withdraw from the toils of war to take up the simplicity of country life. The admiring people of Massachusetts honored him with many positions of trust. Even in his last days they made him Collector of the Port of Boston. There is something unusually pleasing in finding Benjamin Lincoln and Abraham Lincoln, two great American patriots, so much alike.

Stories That Recall Others

He Knew.

A certain teacher before giving the word to her pupils to spell was inquiring of them the meaning of certain ones she thought they might not know.

"Anecdote" was one of them and only one child was willing to volunteer but he was quite positive of his interpretation. Finally the teacher nodded to him and he got importantly to his feet.

"It's a lady billy goat," he asserted gravely.

Probably Will Never Happen Again

One morning recently a young housewife, busily engaged about her housework, was asked by her friend to accompany her to one of the stores for a brief shopping trip. Knowing she would not be gone long, and not wishing to change her houseclothes, the housewife decided on using a number of safety pins to shorten the housedress she was wearing, which was of rather an ancient design, sufficiently for her coat to cover her.

After the purchases had been made at the stores, the friend suggested they get a bit to eat. As it was rather warm in the restaurant, the housewife, forgetting the nature of her attire, removed the coat and preceeded to the lunch counter when noticed by her friend, and also by a number of other customers, who seemed to be very much amused. Needless to say, not much time was lost in replacing her coat and making a hasty exit.

Little Talks on Thrift

FRAUDS

Thrift does not consist alone in saving money. Knowing what to do with one's savings is equally important.

Thrift lessons half learned are as unfortunate as no lessons at all.

Learn how to save. Learn how to invest. Learn how to spend.

Unless you do so you do not understand true thrift.

Recently in an eastern city a number of men were indicted for having defrauded hundreds of poor persons out of their life savings on a "free lot" real estate scheme. The victims were first led to believe that they were actually getting something for nothing. They were then induced to put up money in order that they might secure full advantage of their so-called good fortune. All of the victims are described as working people who have lost amounts ranging from $1,500 to $6,000.

The "free lot" scheme is an old trick. There are many like it. Over one billion dollars a year is lost by the people of this country through frauds of various kinds.

The fact cannot be emphasized too strongly that it is hard to get something for nothing—so hard in fact that any scheme with the slightest suggestion of being of this nature should be immediately viewed with suspicion.

It is nothing short of tragic that persons who practice patient economy for years should by one ill-advised investment lose all their savings.

One of the most important lessons in thrift is that you rarely if ever get something for nothing.—American Society for Thrift.

Rev. Peter H. McClean, permanent rector of St. Augustine's R. C. church, Bridgeport, is a patient in Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, Md. Father McClean will submit to an eye operation for the removal of a cataract this morning.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Fork in the Path

Whene'er your path divides, go slow!
The right from wrong be sure you know.

—Johnny Chuck.

You knew what Johnny means? He means that whenever there is a choice of two ways one is bound to be better than the other and it is wise to wait until you know which is the best before you go ahead. That is what Johnny Chuck means.

Johnny ought to know. Yes, sir, Johnny ought to know. He has had to make a choice of paths many, many times. But never in his life was he more uncertain than when he came to the first fork in the old cowpath in the Old Pasture. You see, he didn't know a thing about the Old Pasture. He didn't even know what part of it he was in. He hadn't the slightest idea where that cowpath led to. So when he reached the place where the path forked and there were two paths instead of one, Johnny sat down. He was uncertain. He didn't know which to take, so he took neither. The Merry Little Breezes who were with him grew impatient. "Why don't you go on, Johnny Chuck?" they cried as they danced around him.

He didn't know which to take, so he took neither

"Because," replied Johnny. "I don't know which way to go. There may be no danger either way, but on the other hand, danger may be hidden along one and not along the other. I heard a long time ago that the wisest thing any one can do is to remain safe. That's what I'm doing right now. If I could know what is ahead of me I would know which of these paths to take."

Without another word, away raced some of the Merry Little Breezes. Some danced away down one fork and Some danced away down the other fork and Johnny Chuck remained right where he was. Presently one of the Merry Little Breezes came hurrying up from the path to the right and at once tickled Johnny Chuck's little black nose with a scent he had found.

Johnny wrinkled up his nose and took a long sniff. "You act as if you like that," said the Merry Little Breeze.

"Well, I don't," replied Johnny, and the hair began to stand up along his back. "I don't like it at all. That is why I sniffed the second time. There's one thing I am certain of."

"What is that?" demanded the Merry Little Breeze.

"That I'm not going down that path," replied Johnny. "Old Man Coyote has been down there, and he probably is down there somewhere now. If that is so it is no place for Johnny Chuck."

"Then why don't you go down the other little path?" inquired another one of the Merry Little Breezes.

"Because I haven't heard anything from that little path yet," replied Johnny. "It may be just as dangerous as the other one."

Just then another Merry Little Breeze came hurrying up that other path and tickled Johnny's little black nose with a lot of odors. Johnny sniffed. There wasn't one bad odor among them. Without another word Johnny started down that particular little path, and ahead of him danced the Merry Little Breezes. And as he went along the Merry Little Breezes kept coming back, bringing all the little odors they found in the path, and, as all the odors were good, Johnny felt quite safe. The Merry Little Breezes were helping him, and Johnny was beginning to enjoy the excitement of exploring.

THREE DAY RETREAT OPENS AT ST. MARY'S

St. Mary's Memorial church had a congregation that completely filled it Tuesday evening for the opening service of the three-day retreat in honor of St. Therese, "the Little Flower of Jesus," and an eloquent sermon was delivered by Rev. Father Lucien of Pittsburgh, a member of the Passionist Order of Preachers, following the blessing and unveiling of the beautiful statue of St. Therese, which has been presented to the church. The statue stood at the front of the sanctuary and was attractively decorated with red roses arranged in an arch formation.

The litany was read by the pastor of the church, Rev. W. A. Keefe, who unveiled the statue, which was blessed by Father Lucien before the sermon, which he delivered from the text, "Unless ye become converted and become as little children ye shall not enter the Kingdom of heaven."

Briefly the preacher outlined the history of the little French girl, who was born Jan. 2, 1873, left motherless when a child, her father then moving from the country village to the city. At 15 she desired to enter the Carmelite convent, but she was too young and the bishop bade her wait. Unwilling to do this she went on a pilgrimage to Rome where she sought and secured permission from Pope Leo XIII to enter the convent at the age of 15. Her life was a saintly one, but her sanctity was unsuspected by those around her and she died at the age of 24, on Sept. 30, 1897. Twenty eight years after her death she was canonized among the saints of the church and her life has had a wonderful influence. Over 50 million pieces of literature in all the languages of the nations of the world have been printed about her life and one month after her canonization 125 miracles were performed through her saintly influence, while 400 miracles have been performed in France.

In every period of the history of the church, the preacher said, certain saints seem to have been sent for a certain mission, to give warning against particular evils of the times in this age when men seem to be seeking to get on without God, in this age when there is a spirit of revolt in society, in religious circles, in the home and in government, when men are faced with more serious problems than ever before, the message of "the little flower" is what is needed. This is the message of humility, of self-denial, of purity and holiness, the way of spiritual childhood and self-surrender, which is the secret of the power and influence of "the little flower." The sweet spiritual story of Saint Therese has reawakened up to the simple things of life and speaks to us in the words of text that we shall become as little children in order that we may enter the kingdom of God here and in the life to come.

The service closed with benediction of the blessed sacrament at which Rev Father Keefe officiated. Organist Joseph B. Downes was in charge of the musical part of the service, Miss Elinor Donovan rendered Rosewig's Ave Marie as the offertory anthem.

After the close of the service, practically the entire congregation reverently approached the altar rail for veneration of the relic of Saint Therese and a great number took the privilege of confessions which were heard by Fathers Lucien, Keefe, F. M. Cohoinn and F. R. DesSureault.

During the retreat, masses are to be celebrated each morning at 5, 7 and 8 o'clock, with brief talks by Father Lucien upon the life of St. Therese at the 5 and 8 o'clock masses. Confessions are to be heard every evening after the service and every afternoon from 4 to 5:30.

SPICER DIVORCE CASE BEFORE JUDGE SIMPSON

The contested divorce suit of Mrs. Frances M. Spicer of 27 Union street, whose maiden name was Parkhurst, against Joseph E. Spicer of Laurel Hill was heard in the superior court here before Judge Earnest C. Simpson on Tuesday morning. The divorce is sought on the ground of desertion and intolerable cruelty. About six years ago, when Mrs. Spicer sought a divorce on the ground of intolerable cruelty and habitual intemperance, Judge Banks denied the petition. In view of that fact, Judge Simpson stated in court Tuesday that he would not grant the divorce now on the ground of intolerable cruelty but would consider the desertion charge. Attorney John H. Barnes, counsel for Mrs. Spicer argued that even if the plaintiff did leave her husband, the couple have been estranged for such a long time, about seven years, that the question of support in some instances would substantiate her grounds. In order to further his argument, Judge Barnes will submit a brief in regard to the law.

Judge Arthur F. Libby is counsel for the husband.

The couple was married in this city Oct. 3, 1906 and have three children. Mrs. Spicer testified that on account of her husband's treatment of her, she left him in 1918, and that he never gave her money enough for her support so that she was obliged to take in sewing.

By order of the courts, city and superior Spicer was forced to pay his wife for the support of the children, the amounts ranging from $3 to $18.

On cross-examination, Mrs. Spicer admitted to counsel for the defense that she kept boarders, and the money she got from them went into her own pocket. She claimed that her husband did not object to boarders.

Miss Anna Spicer, a telephone operator, and George Spicer, children of the couple, were called to testify as witnesses for the plaintiff's side of the case.

Joseph E. Spicer, the defendant, who is a teamster, testified that he disapproved of boarders at the house, and said that on account of bills contracted by his wife, his property had been attached and that several thousand dollars left him by his father was almost all gone, having been used up in the expenditures for his wife and family.

JOHNNY GREENE BLANKS PLAINFIELD HIGH ALLOWING BUT FOUR BINGLES

Johnny Greene in the box for the Academy, striking out ten men and allowing but four scattered hits shut out Plainfield at the Campus Tuesday afternoon and his teammates pounded two Plainfield pitchers for 14 hits and nine runs. Greene was not forced to exert himself at any time during the game and only two Plainfield men reached third base and both of these in the ninth inning.

Only in the ninth inning did Plainfield threaten to spoil a shutout victory for Greene, but fast fielding by Jarvis in centerfield saved a score. In this inning French drove a ball over Jarvis' head in centerfield and the ball rolled through the fence. Jarvis fielded the ball fast and with a long throw to Greene who relayed the ball to Goldblatt, French was caught at the plate when he tried to make his triple a homer. Pepin hit safely and stole second and went to third on an infield out but died there when Greene fanned Gilbert. Up to the ninth inning Greene had allowed but two hits.

The Academy went on a batting rampage in the fourth inning and sewed up the ball game in this frame when with six hits they scored six runs. The Academy scored one run in the first inning and two in the third. The attack was led by Cimikoski with a double and a pair of singles. Tombari and Yerrington featured in the fielding, the latter making two nice catches and Tombari accepting six hard chances without an error.

The first Academy run came without a hit, Cimikoski being hit by a pitched ball and stealing second he went to third on the pitcher's error and scored while Sadinsky was being thrown out at first, French to Haddad. Stevens threw out Jarvis and Burke.

In the third inning three consecutive hits netted two runs. Greene singled and was followed by Cimikoski who duplicated the feat. Sadinsky crashed one to the centerfield fence scoring Greene and Cimikoski but was caught between the bags when he tried to stretch his hit into a triple. Jarvis fanned and Burke filed out to Gilbert.

Opening the fourth inning Goldblatt beat out an infield hit and advanced when French threw out Yerrington. Tombari hit a long double to left field scoring Goldblatt, and went to third when Brewer was thrown out at first. Greene singled for his second hit of the game scoring Tombari and then stole second. Cimikoski doubled scoring Greene. Cimy took third on a passed ball and scored on Haddad's error. Jarvis popped into the infield and beat the throw to the bag while Sadinsky went to third. Jarvis went to second and then both he and Sadinsky scored when Burke hit one close to the left field foul line for a single. This ended the scoring for the Academy for Goldblatt popped out to French.

The game was slow and uninteresting. Plainfield giving little opposition and only French showed anything like baseball form. The game was more or less of a practice session for the Academy for their coming game with Westerly on Friday. Greene has been selected to pitch the league game against the Rhode Island boys. DEMPSEY PAYS LITTLE ATTENTION TO BIG OFFER

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 18.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey is paying little attention to the million dollar offer of Tom O'Rourke for a bout with Harry Wills, pending Tex Rickard's selection of an opponent, the champion's secretary, Frank Jones said today.

Jones said that until Tex Rickard had named an opponent for Dempsey "as specified in his contract," Dempsey would be unable to definitely consider the O'Rourke offer. Should Gene Tunney be named, however, by Rickard, it was said that the O'Rourke offer might be negotiated.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE TO PLAY EVERY OTHER DAY IN WEEK

Last night at the Duwell rooms the managers of the teams to make up the twilight league for the coming season finally, after several attempts, adopted a set of rules to govern the running of the league.

It was decided owing to the fact that it would be hard for one of the teams to play on Tuesday and Thursday nights to play all scheduled games on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings any postponed games to be played on the open nights.

During the meeting it was announced that the Elks would donate a cup in addition to the prizes being offered by the Duwell A. A. and it is probable that other prizes will be donated so that the various teams and players will have plenty of prizes to compete for. It will be remembered that last year this system used in the distribution of prizes created plenty of competition causing some real good games. Although a definite day as to the opening of the league schedule was not set the first game will be played about June 14th, so that the schedule will be completed by Aug 19.

NO EASTERN LEAGUE GAMES ON THURSDAY

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 18.—(AP)—Cancellation of all games in the Eastern League on Thursday in tribute to Dan O'Neil, league president, who died in his Holyoke home this morning was announced today. Major figures in the baseball world will go to Holyoke that morning for the funeral services of the man who made so strong an impression for many years on the country's highly organized sport.

Besides being president of the Eastern League and a member of the national board of arbitration, O'Neil dabbled in politics to the extent of being elected a commissioner of Hamden county, and since his death was announced this morning flags on county buildings have flown at half staff.

There will be a high mass of requiem for the dead sportsman in Holy Cross church at ten o'clock on Thursday morning followed by simple burial services at St. Jerome's cemetery.

A. A. U. SANCTIONS DUWELL MEMORIAL DAY MODIFIED MARATHON RACE

The five mile road race to be conducted by the Duwell A. A. on the afternoon of Memorial day will be run under the sanction of the Amateur Athletic union of America. The fact that the A. A. U. has seen fit to sanction this race is of great importance and no doubt will make quite an impression on those who understand amateur athletics. Shortly after the Duwell club received the A. A. U. sanction the sports committee received a communication from William Kennedy one of America's great runners who is coach of the Cygnet A. C. of Portchester stating that his club will send a team of runners to Norwich on that day to compete in the race. Those interested in athletics all know that the Cygnet A. C. is one of the greatest clubs of its kind in the country winning the team trophies in the Boston marathon and also the Saltimore marathon run last Saturday from teams not only of this country but also foreign countries. Bill Kennedy and Whitey Nicholson both famous long distance men are members of the Cygnet A. C. and probably will accompany the Cygnet team of runners to Norwich on that day although nothing definite is known as yet as to what men will represent the club except that a team of at least six runners will be here.

In addition to these boys entries have been received from Middletown, New Haven, Hartford, Storrs college and also several local boys and as soon as it becomes known that the A. A. U. has sanctioned the race no doubt entries will be received from many others who have been holding off owing to the fact that most amateur athletes can not compete in events unless they are under the auspices of the A. A. U.

Through the kindness of the City of Norwich, Rotary club, Lions club Elks, American Legion, United Commercial Travelers, Polish Citizens club, both the Uncas and the Shetucket branches of the I. O. O. F. and also several individuals over a dozen prizes in the form of cups and trophies have already been donated with possibly more to come.

So as to make it fair for the boys from eastern Connecticut for whom the race was originally opened to, a set of prizes will be set aside for them to compete for in addition to the prizes for which all the runners will compete for. While no doubt the local boys will be stacked up against some good runners it must be remembered that it is in this way that new champions are uncovered as was the case at the Boston marathon when Miles absolutely unknown won from a field of runners representing many countries.

This event to be held on Memorial day will no doubt attract hundreds of people to Norwich as it is an attraction that every few of the cities in Connecticut can boast of. Immediately following the race a concert and baseball game will be held at the Duwell field so that there will be plenty of entertainment for the people of Norwich and those who come here on that day.

BRITISH TAKE SIX TO AMERICAN'S THREE MATCHES

WOKING, England, May 18—(AP)—The victory of the British golfers known as "The Moles" over the American Walker cup stars today, six matches to three, has strengthened British hopes of winning the international trophy at St. Andrews, in June. The Americans lost five foursome matches in the morning but came back in the afternoon play with three victories, one defeat and a tie.

Bobby Jones the American amateur champion, Jesse Guilford of Boston, Francis Ouimet, former amateur and open champion and George Von Elm, the young star of Los Angeles played sterling golf in the afternoon.

Their British opponents are Walker cup nominees and consequently the Americans' defeat over the whole day's play had encouraged British golfing fans.

Of the American victories that of Von Elm and Sweetser was the hard-est earned. From the first tee Von Elm and his partner an excellent example and at the turn, where the Americans had gained an advantage of one hole, his play became contagious. Sweetser began to locate the center of the fairway, an art at which he had failed playing with Jones in the morning. His beautiful recovery from a bunker on the twelfth gave the Americans another hole.

At the fourteenth Von Elm pushed his drive deep into the heather at the right, but emerged into another fairway, whence his brassie found the green. Sweetser laid a 20-yard putt to the lip of the cup and when Harris missed a short tap the hole was halved in five. This fourteenth ended the Americans' difficulties.

Gardner, with his team one down at the sixteenth, gambled with his brassie and pulled badly. Young Mackenzie reached home with his third but Hezlet and Roberts both reached in two and were down in four to win.

A. and also has the pick of the New London twilight league of last season. The manager of the J. B. Martin club wishes to state that he will present the same lineup on the field that were in uniform last season and is out to give the baseball fans of this vicinity the same brand of ball if not better. Both lineups will appear in this paper on Saturday. Don't forget Sunday at J. B. Martin grounds the opening game of the season.

The Academy track team will perform today in the interscholastic meet at Chapman Tech this (Wednesday) afternoon. The local school should be well up in the running for the dash men of the Academy squad should be able to out-distance any of the other high school dash men. The distance men have shown good form and may place in today's events and may garner enough points to win the meet in the field events their chances of gaining points are very slim.

DAN O'NEIL, PRESIDENT OF EASTERN LEAGUE DIES

HOLYOKE, Mass., May 18.—(AP)—Dan O'Neil, president of the Eastern Baseball League and a member of the national board of arbitration, died here this morning at 4:40 a. m.

Diabetes is the reported cause of his death. He has been president of the Eastern League since 1916. Mr. O'Neil had also been prominent in local political circles for many years. He rose from the ranks of a player to the presidency of the league.

President O'Neil had been in poor health more than a year, but had been able to attend games in cities around the Eastern League circuit this spring. The last baseball game at which he was present was played at Clarkin field, Hartford, last week.

At that time he did not complain of being sick though he had a slight cold. This cold developed rapidly later in the week and his condition soon became serious. Sunday his condition became critical and Monday it was announced from his home here that no hope was held out for his recovery.

Mr. O'Neil had been urged by his family and friends to stay away from the ball games during the chilly spring, but he felt it his duty to travel about the circuit and refused to heed the advice.

He is survived by his wife, Mary E. O'Neil, five sons, Daniel Jr., William, Timothy, Owen and Frank, and two daughters, Mrs. J. Harry Kennedy and Mrs. John O'Hara, the latter the wife of Jack O'Hara, scout for the Hartford team.

Mr. O'Neil was about 66 years old. Few men have had a more colorful career, and while baseball was his chief interest he had taken a hand in many activities, from pool selling in the old days to politics in his later years. He was a member of the board of county commissioners at the time of his death and in 1910 was the democratic nominee for sheriff.

Born in Ireland, O'Neil came to this country with his parents at the age of seven, settling in Unionville, Conn. The family moved to Holyoke about 1875 and he had since made his home here. He broke into semi-professional ball in his home city in the early 1880's. In 1903 with the late Jake Becker, Albert de Wolfe, Fred A. Winkler, Patrick H. Prindiville and Jens J. Madsen he purchased the franchise of the Waterbury club in the old Connecticut league and the team won the pennant that year. In the winter of 1904 he bought the Springfield club, which he sold to William E. Carey and John A. Zeller in 1908.

In a career abounding with spectacular moves, that of Mr. O'Neil with the New Britain club in 1910 stands out vividly in minor league baseball annals. With his club in last place, and with two months to go O'Neil brought on four Cubans and after controversy succeeded in establishing his right to use them. With their help his club finished in third place and it was predicted that with two more weeks would have clinched the pennant.

When the three New England league and Eastern association were merged O'Neil was boomed for president but the move met with opposition and it was not until 1918 that he was elected. He had held the office since. Following the death of Tim Murnane, he became a member of the national board of arbitration.

Anyone who puts up with coal heat, and all the work and attention it necessitates, another season, is just postponing the relief and comfort Oil-O-Matic heat will bring.

Why delay the day when your home is heated with no more attention than its lighting? You can make the change now without any inconvenience. Your same boiler or furnace is used. The same radiators or registers.

Instead of a coal bin and an overworked shovel, you have a storage tank for the oil and an automatic burner that does things you cannot hire men to do.

And with the coal, goes out all the dirt and drudgery. No more fires to build and nurse. No discomforts from chilly rooms in the early fall or late spring. No more semi-annual housecleanings because of furnace dirt.

If you think coal heat is convenient, let the furnace man quit some cold night. Or your wife refuse to shovel coal. Or wake up some bitter morning and find the fire out.

If you think coal is fairly clean, visit a home where an Oil-O-Matic is installed and note the difference. Ask your wife how often dusting and cleaning must be done when the coal furnace is in operation.

Your home isn't much different from others in Eastern Connecticut that now have Oil-O-Matic heat. No doubt many are heating more rooms than you have in your house and none of these would ever go back to coal.

Your furnace or boiler presents no problems that Oil-O-Matic isn't handling successfully in thousands of homes. We have the facilities and organization to properly study your individual heating problem and install a system that will give you a lifetime of heating satisfaction. Our organization is composed of graduates of the WILLIAMS INSTITUTE OF HEAT RESEARCH, the oldest and largest school of oil burning in the world.

When you have an Oil-O-Matic you can forget you have a heating plant. All the controls are electrical and fully automatic. They regulate the temperature day and night without your giving it a thought and it provides absolutely uniform heat. Oil-O-Matic does not vary 2 degrees from the figure you set on the thermostat.

Make your home completely modern by installing OIL-O-MATIC, the greatest of all modern conveniences. Its real worth is not measured by dollars. It is a lifetime investment that pays perpetual dividends in greater convenience, comfort, health and cleanliness.

DECIDE NOW TO LIVE IN COMFORT WITHOUT FURNACE WORK NEXT WINTER

EWARD DANIELS SAT DEAD IN CHAIR IN NEW LONDON ROOM FOR A MONTH

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 18—The body of Edward Daniels, about 70, was found in a chair near a window of a room he had long occupied, at 24 Golden street, this morning. Death had occurred about a month ago from apoplexy. The body was badly decomposed, the features being completely unrecognizable. So far as is known Daniels had no relatives. He was well known, having resided in New London many years and was a painter and paper hanger. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman, after conducting an examination ordered the body removed to an undertaking establishment. It is more than strange that the body was not discovered long ago for Daniels had been missed about the building, but none of the occupants made any attempt to inquire for him, neither did they visit his room.

The finding of the body was the result of Emile Pijeaux and his sister, Mrs. Mary Peterson, occupants of the building. Detecting a nauseating odor. Going to the third floor where Daniels, as well as others had rooms and personally cared for them, they traced the odor to Daniels' room. Opening the door the man and woman were horrified to find Daniels' body in a sitting position and almost fully attired, occupying a chair that faces the street and could easily have been observed by occupants of a tenement house on the opposite side of the way. Pijeaux and Mrs Peterson went to the police station where they reported their ghastly find. Sergeant Nelson Smith took charge of the body until after Medical Examiner Kaufman had concluded his investigation and caused it to be taken from the building.

SLUMP IN BUILDING BECAUSE COST IS TOO HIGH

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 18—There has been a falling off in the number of applications for permission to construct real property in this city of late. At the meeting of the city council last evening there were but five permits sought and in the number it was disclosed that only two small houses were sought for. Some observers declare that the enormous cost of construction has had an influence upon prospective builders. Carpenters have been granted an increase in wages and now the plumbers are to seek higher pay, which will add to the cost of construction. Houses that cost $5,000 to $10,000 are very common now. The exception is the house that can be erected for less than that amount if the buildings are of usual size and are of any pretentious design.

A story and a half house, owned by the city of New London, and one of several located at the municipal pigstery, Waterford, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin early this morning. The place was unoccupied, the family that had been residing there moving away Monday. Whether vagrants gained entrance to the place during the night and caused the blaze is not known.

The fire was discovered shortly after 3 o'clock and then was burning briskly. A telephone message was sent by an employe of the city to fire headquarters requesting aid. Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman and the Pequot Hose company and Niagara Engine company responded. By the time the firemen reached the place, the structure was enveloped in flames which had shortly before broken through the roof. There are no fire fighting facilities at the piggery other than hand extinguishers so the firemen were unable to play water on the building in an endeavor to save it from destruction.

Carmine DeBascio, 96 Main street, Westerly, appeared at the police station here shortly after last midnight and requested that he be sent to a hospital as he was ill and without funds. City Physician George P. Cheney was summoned and examined the man, who appeared to be suffering from grip. DeBascio was sent to Lawrence hospital and today he developed pneumonia.

Louis Schreiber, 74 Mathewson street, Providence, complained to the local police this forenoon that a sample case containing approximately 48 ladies' straw hats had been stolen from the sidewalk of State street, while he absented himself in a store to show some of his merchandise. It later developed that the hats had not been stolen, but had been taken away by a junk collector, who believed that the hats were valueless and had been placed on the sidewalk to be picked up by one of several junkmen who pass through the street daily. When the junkman discovered his mistake he returned the hats to where he had found them.

William Arno should have more wisdom than to get into a quarrel over crossing land. But he seems not to be thus supplied so he got into the police court today for attacking Lozario Frena. The case was not ready for prosecution so it went over till tomorrow morning, when the parties concerned can tell their stories.

Frank Perkins was presented for intoxication. He said he "supposed" he was intoxicated else he would not have been arrested. He was so frank about his statements that judgment was suspended, and Frank was a much pleased man.

Quiet times are reported in the police department just now, but that is not evidence that such will continue. It is a peculiarity of the business and as in other callings there are periods when there is little doing to claim the direct attention of the guardians of the peace. "It's a feast or a famine," is the way the officers describe the business. This is the famine period.

There have not been as many sailors at this port as there are now since the period during which the war with Germany was in progress. In addition to the large number at the base and at the state pier and at the coast guard academy some 1,500 arrived last evening when the United States Bushnell and Camden reached port with the fleet of submarines which left here last winter. The sailors are well behaved and conducted themselves thus far very creditably.

Barnum and Bailey's and the Ringling Brothers' circus which was to have appeared here on the 14th of June has cancelled its date and will not show in this state this season. The management took some offense because the price for grounds they desired at New Haven was considered too high so the route the circus was to follow in this state has been abandoned.

Mrs. Max Raceff and infant son, of Waterford: Mrs. Bertha Flynn, 32 Montauk avenue; Mrs. Edward Peckham, 89 Pequot avenue; Mrs. Ernest Drury, 46 Ann street and Mrs. Clarence Beebe, Brooks street, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Bridget O'Connor has sold to Dominick Battaglia a house and lot on Lincoln avenue.

Daisy L. Clark and Florence K. Crandall recently sold a cottage on the westerly side of Westerly place, Ocean Beach, to Nelson and Carol P. McArthur. The purchasers have since disposed of the property to Robert P. Collins.

Francis C. Pollard, U. S. N., and Miss Florence M. Prendergast, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Prendergast, 48 Montauk avenue, were married at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Joseph's church in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and acquaintances. The nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons. The best man was Lawrence Prendergast, brother of the bride. The matron of honor was Mrs. Lawrence Prendergast, sister-in-law of the bride.

The funeral of Mrs. Hannibal D. Wilson was held this afternoon at 3:45 o'clock at the residence of her son, Oscar P. Wilson, 837 Bank street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

WESTERLY MARRIED MAN AND YOUNG WOMAN SOUGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 18—The authorities of Westerly have communicated with the New London police requesting that a lookout be maintained for George Bourtmarsh and Josephine Nocofia, who, it is believed, eloped a day or two ago and who may visit New London. Bourtmarsh is married. He is described as being about 30, tall, weighs about 165 pounds and wears a short moustache. The young woman is described as being 19, good looking, medium stout, long brown hair and beauty spot on her chin.

CONDUCTOR G. L. SPAFFORD DIES FROM PNEUMONIA

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 18.—George L. Spafford, 72, veteran passenger conductor in the employ of the Central Vermont railroad, died this morning at his home, 739 Broad street, after an illness of a week with pneumonia. He is survived by his widow. Mr. Spafford was a member of division 500, Order of Railway Conductors, of which organization he had served as secretary and treasurer; New England association of Railroad Veterans; Brattleboro lodge, 102, F. & A. M.; Fort Dummer chapter, No. 12, R. A. M.; Connecticut Valley council, No. 16, R. and S. M.; Beausesant commandery, No. 7, Knights Templar and Perfection lodge, 14th degree, U. D. A. A. S. R., Webster. Mr. Spafford began his career as a station agent's helper and had served continuously 55 years in the service of the railroad.

Mrs. Charles H. Brockelsper, 74, assistant at the B. P. Learned mission, Main street, died this evening at Lawrence hospital, where she had been under treatment about a week. Besides her husband, Mrs. Brockelsper is survived by a brother, Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. Mrs. Brockelsper underwent an operation at the hospital about a week ago. A few days later a change for the worse occurred and all hope of her recovery was despaired of. She had been in a state of coma three days. Mrs. Brockelsper was born in New Haven and had resided in New London about 30 years.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel this afternoon ordered the operator's license of William "Goldie" McKee, colored, 294 Main street, suspended. McKee is held at the Franklin street jail awaiting trial on a technical charge of manslaughter. The automobile he was driving on the Hartford turnpike 10 days ago overturned, fatally injuring Ernest Pender, colored, former United States coast guard sailor, who was a passenger in the machine.

John Castagna, 34 Jefferson avenue, complained to the police late this afternoon that he had parked his automobile on Union street a short time before and upon his return the car was missing. The state police barracks at Groton and Canterbrook, as well as the authorities at Norwich, Westerly and New Haven, were requested to be on the lookout for the supposed stolen automobile. A half hour after Castagna made his complaint, Traffic Officer John Courtney, on duty at the corner of State and Bank street, observed the missing car approaching and holding up the driver, ordered him to go to the police station. When Castagna was notified of the apprehension of the driver, a youth, it turned out that the latter was a friend of the owner of the car. Castagna did not desire the youth prosecuted, even on a charge of taking a car without the permission or consent of the owner, so the young man was liberated.

Dominick Salvatore, of Waterford, and Nazzario Rousseau, Center Groton, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Charles Main, of Waterford, employed at Booth Brothers & Hurricane Granite quarries, Waterford, suffered a painful injury to his right foot this morning and is now under treatment at Lawrence hospital. Main was assisting in moving a large piece of granite when the stone dropped on the foot. X-Ray pictures of the injured member have been taken, for the purpose of determining whether there are any fractures.

A section of that part of Shaw's cove bridge used by pedestrians is to be rebuilt and work will be started tomorrow morning. The bridge will be closed to traffic about two weeks. Many of the timbers have become decayed to such an extent that the bridge is unsafe.

TWO AMERICAN EX. MEN ADMIT THEFTS FROM COMPANY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 18.—Russell Taylor, of Broad street, employed by the American railway express company as truckman and Joseph L. Burnham, 57 Lewis street, employed by the N. Y., N. H. and Hartford railroad as yard brakeman, both married, were taken into custody tonight by Sergeant Patrick Murphy, Captain Charles Kelley of a force of special agents of the N. Y., N. H. and Hartford railroad and William M. Haney, inspector of the employes of the American Railway express company, charged with theft from the express company. Taylor is being held for trial in the police court tomorrow morning in bail of $1000. Burnham's bail was fixed at $100. Neither could furnish a surety on his respective bonds so both were locked up at the police station. Taylor and Burnham have admitted their guilt. Taylor has a wife and two children residing in Westerly, but had a rooming place in New London. The alleged amount involved in the theft of Taylor aggregates $500, while the alleged theft against Burnham involved about $30. The arrest of Taylor and Burnham resulted from an investigation by Inspector Haney of numerous articles in transit handled at the New London station being missing. A checkup was made which resulted in Taylor being implicated in the theft; when questioned he implicated Burnham. Burnham admitted when arrested taking a small quanity of butter and a pair of shoes. Taylor admitted taking articles of various description, mostly women's wear. He admitted his guilt and his admission was substantiated by finding at his rooming house on Broad street, the goods stolen. When officers went there they found a radio set, one pair of men's shoes, one pair of boy's shoes, one pair of women's shoes, about five pounds of butter, a dozen pair of women's silk stockings, chemises, step-ins, bloomers, silk vests, all of the highest grade; men's silk socks, two suits of clothes, a large quantity of cold cream, also several rolls of fancy elastic. These were taken to the police station. Taylor further admitted theft of a quantity of automobiles tires, but declared they were in the possession of his brother in Mystic. When the officers went to Mystic, accompanied by Taylor, but one tire was found and six tubes. It is expected that the other five tires will be turned over to the authorities by Taylor's brother tomorrow.

BRITISH COLONIAL VETS VOTE $25 TO CHASE POST

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 18—At a meeting of the British Colonial Foreign War Veterans held at Bradford, Tuesday night a social time and get-together was held. Action was taken in voting $25 to Harley P. Chase post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of Pawcatuck, toward the erection of the World War mmorial which is to be located on a lot owned by the post at the junction of South and West Broad street, in Pawcatuck. Among contributions received this week was a check for $25 from William Segar.

Wilfred Robert, 21, of Wilford court, groundman in the employ of the south county public service company, of Westerly, was struck in the leg by a falling electric light pole when a dead arm split. His right leg was pinned to the ground by the falling pole, resulting in a compound fracture. He was taken to the Westerly hospital, where the fracture was reduced by Dr. C. G. Savage. This is the second accident of this kind that has happened to men in the employ of the company.

About 8 o'clock, spectators along the bank of the Pawcatuck river were surprised to see the carcass of a black and white cow come floating down the stream. It lodged back of the Westerly Textile mill on Main street, where it hung for some time before going further down the river. The police were notified.

ONTARIO BARRED ROCKS LEADERS FOR WEEK

There was a slight increase in production in the Storrs egg laying contest during the 28th week, with the 1400 pullets shelling out 6202 eggs, or slightly over 63 per cent. This is a gain of 97 eggs over the production for last week, and a gain of 323 eggs when compared with the production for the corresponding week a year ago. The contest flock has laid a grand total of 173,198 eggs in the 28 weeks of competition, which is an average of 88 eggs per bird.

The best record for the week was made by the Barred Rock entry of Ontario Agricultural college from Guelph, Ontario, with a lay of 63 eggs. Second place saw two pens tied with a lay of 61 eggs each. They are the Barred Rocks entered by Merritt M. Clark from Brookfield Center, Conn., and the Winlay White Wyandottes from Mystic, Conn. A pen of White Leghorns owned by Ernest H. Scott from Unionville, Conn., placed third for the week with a score of 60 eggs. Fourth place saw three pens tied, each with a lay of 58 eggs. They are the Rhode Island Red entries of Shell Crest farm from Holliston, Mass., and Robert B. Parkhurst from Boxford, Mass., and the White Leghorn entry of R. W. Colman from Medina, N. Y.

Production by varieties shows the White Leghorns to be in the lead with a lay of almost 66 per cent, and in this they are but a fraction better than the Barred Rocks. The Reds shelled out at a rate that was slightly over 61 per cent, and the White Wyandottes followed closely behind with a production of exactly 60 per cent. The lay for the "Miscellaneous Class" was almost 57 per cent.

John Z. LaBelle's Rhode Island Reds from Ballouville, Conn., continues to lead the entire contest, and up through the 28th week this pen had laid a grand total of 1350 eggs, or an average of 135 eggs for each of the ten pullets in the pen. The Toivonen farm White Leghorns from Girard, Pa., are second with a production of 1279 eggs, his score is 101 eggs behind the mark set up by the Reds entered by LaBelle.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bread Theater

With one of the most thrilling storm scenes ever filmed, in which a wall of water wipes away an entire town; with settings depicting the great operas of the world, the gorgeous throne room in the Royal Palace at Madrid; with a great cast of famous names, headed by Ricardo Cortez and Greta Garbo, the brilliant new Swedish star, the new Cosmopolitan production of Ibanez' Torrent, now playing at the Breed theater, is setting a new mark in screen production.

The story, a vivid romance of Spain based on the novel of Vicente Blasco Ibanez, author of The Four Horsemen, was directed on a lavish scale by Monta Bell at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. It tells the life and love of a Spanish opera singer, the role played by Miss Garbo, and her lover, a young Spanish statesman.

An entire Spanish town was built on the banks or a river, into which tons of water were hurled, in the biggest feat in screen engineering ever attempted, to stage the flood, in which Cortez stages a thrilling rescue of Miss Olmsted.
